Paris, the Travel Center of the World

WHEN you plan a trip abroad your itinerary may include Italy, Great Britain, the Netherlands or the Continent, but it is sure to include Paris, for Paris is the travel center of the world. To get from London to Rome, to Barcelona, to the Riviera, you travel through Paris.

But Paris is far more than a stopping point on a European itinerary; it is the Mecca of travelers. It is the city of romance, of art, of life. A business trip to Europe that did not include a stay in Paris and a sight of its wonders would be an opportunity neglected.

From Paris comfortable motor cars of the Societe des Auto Mails make tours of the battlefields. The battlefields of France, the scenes of the greatest events in history, the most desperate struggles of nations in all times are being plowed under. There will be no battlefields to see in another year. To visit France and not to spend a day in the devastated area would be to ignore the greatest lesson in the world's history, and to miss an opportunity that can never come again.

From Paris there are aeroplane flights to London, Brussels and other cities; there are innumerable trips to interesting regions; there are direct lines of travel to the other important cities of Europe.

When you come abroad, you will come to Paris, and in Paris, at 11 Rue Scribe, you will find the American Express Company ready and glad to give you the information you seek, to make your travel arrangements for you, to do your banking, to receive your mail for you, to assist you in every possible way.
