HIS SECOND WIFE By ERNEST POOLE

Author of "The Harbor," "His Family" Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Co.

THIS STARTS THE STORY Ethel Knight is country bred, idealtotic and utterly unsophisticated. Her father's death forces her to make her home with Amy Lanter, her sister, A month later Amy dies of ptomaine poison, and Ethel keeps house for Amy's husband, Joe, and the child, Susette. Ethel and Joe marry. She orranges to take voice culture from Joe's friend, "Dwight." They plan to reamaken in Joe his genius at drafting. But, fearing Dwight may be too interested in her, she tells him "to be sensible, etc." if they are to continue Fanny Carr pays Ethel a gist and hands her some typewritten pages detailing her acquaintance with Disight. Ethel defies her to show them to Joe. She pitties Fanny's way of looking at life.

Be careful, Joe," she cried angrily.

But in his condition, nerves on edge, he paid no heed and went rapidly on: paid no heed and went rapidly on:

"I'm just a business man! And you've made me feel your contempt for all that! And he's a musician, he's different—he has exactly what you want! So you went to his studio twice a weeky-for months and months—without letting me know—although he was a friend of mine! And you went to the Ritz and the opera! And then I brought him here to dine! How you two must have smiled at each other—when I wasn't looking!"

"Joe! Joe!"

Oh. rubbish! Use more common sense!
All I've got to do is to make him see why I never told him about Dwight.
It was only part of that plan I had.
But what a fool! Oh, what a fool!'
When at last Joe's key was heard in the door, both women leaned slowly forward, as though the strain were unbear-ward, as though the strain were ward to love was to let you think you were doing it. "No, I won't keep quiet! Joe has got to be told of this!" Ethel wheeled on her:

"How odious!"

"I can't help it—he's my friend!"

And the next moment with Joe in the room, both women were talking to him at once—angrily, incoherently, almost shoving each other away. But only for a moment. It was too disgusting! Ethel left off and stood rigid there, while Fan-

No! It was just her odious trick—her pretending!"

Pretending? How about you? Why did you pretend, when I brought Dwight here, that you'd never laid eyes on him before? Had you or hadn't you? Careful, now! Fanny says it is all here!"

Till explain in one word!"

"What's the word? Say it, please—and clear this up!"

She was breathing hard, frightened, her mind in a whirl. Oh, to be able to think clearly! Use a little common sense!
