IT TOOK PHILLIES TEN INNINGS TO LOSE BALL GAME TO PIRATES; RECORD AGAINST BUCS IS CLEAN

SOMETIMES it is hard to lose a ball game, but if you keep on trying it can be done. For references, see box score of Phils-Pittsburgh battle which was staged here yesterday. It took ten innings to turn the trick, but at the end no one was in doubt as to the final result. The Phila kept their record clean-lost every game they played with the Pirates.

In a way, the slam was a tough one to absorb. The home folks got off to a five-run lead in the first two innings and it looked as if the battle had been put on the However, Manager Cravath made a mistake. He should have called it a day at the end of the sixth inning, and then it would have been all right. His club was lead-

George Smith breezed along beautifully for three innings, but in the fourth his chance to twirl a no-hit contest was ruined. A base on balls and a home run by Southworth gave the enemy a pair of markers, and cluster of singles in the sixth gave them two more. That would have been fine and lovely if George had stopped the visitors then and there. But he made a mistake in the ninth when he grooved one for Nicholson, a pinch hitter, and-bloole! a homer landed in the left field bleachers, the score was tied and the chance for our boys to win was lost.

There was a peculiar play in the tenth which almost changed the result of the game. Fletcher was on first. two men out and Paulette missed the third strike. Schmidt also missed the ball, but Gene, sore at himself, meandered down to first, just going through the motions. The catcher, however, made a bum throw, the ball hit Paulette in the back. Fletcher went to third and it looked as if the Phils had a chance. Mack Miller tried hard to come through, but lined to Cutshaw for the third out.

Another one for the book was inserted by Stengel in the second inning. Casey connected with the pill and sent it on a line toward the center field fence. The ball struck the wire netting, but instead of dropping back in the field it kept on going and broke through the barrier. It was one of the hardest hit balls ever seen in the park, and had it missed the wire it would have been

FLETCHER and Rawlins played a great game. In the fifth Johnny fell after stopping Bigber's hard grounder, and while lying on the ground made the throw to Fletcher in time to force Schmidt. Fletcher did scell in the field and starred at the plate. Twice he came up in a pinch and drove in two runs the first time and one the other.

Cards Look Like Aces

THE St. Louis Cards have been playing the best ball in the National League for the last three weeks and now loom up as pennant contenders. Fourteen of the last sixteen games have been won, but yesterday's victory was a costly one. Rogers Hornsby, the principal cog in the attack, got in the way of a thrown ball, was hit in the head and carried off the field. The accident was a most peculiar one. Hornsby went over to cover first after Lavan fielded the ball, and Johnny's throw hit him in the head. Rogers was counted out.

This surely will affect his hitting for a couple of weeks,

Sports Editor Eventag Public Ledger if he gets back in the game by that time. Many good players have been ruined by stopping the "bean ball." Last week John McGraw offered $200,000 for Hornsby, and it is a strange twist of fate that he should be disabled in a game against the Giants. The Cards, however, have been stepping some and really are playing the best game of the bunch. Down in Brownsville, Tex., last spring. Rickey said he would be up in the running if his pitchers came through, and it looks as if Branch knew what he was talking about, Fournier, the old White Sox first baseman, has taken on a new lease of life and is busting the ball like a real slugger. The same goes for the others, and if the injury to Hornsby does not set them back the Cards loom up as formidable contenders for the pennant.

THE St. Looie gang will be with us tomorrow and I will stick around until the end of the week. Cincinnati will be here Monday.

Wilson Will Box O'Dowd Again

TOHNNY WILSON, middleweight champion of the J world, is in Philadelphia to prove his bout with Mike O'Dowd was not a fluke. He will be seen in action for the first time since winning the fitle from O'Dowd when he mingles with Augie Ratner at Shibe Park tonight. Augie is not a gentle person and has roughed it up with a lot of tough guys in the squared circle.

Wilson is a quiet, modest man, who speaks only when spoken to. He does not bluster about his fistic prowess. but says he is willing to go out and do the best he can every time he boxes.

They say O'Dowd lost his title on a questionable decision," said Wilson, after several attempts to have him open up. "Well, if the public thinks so I am willing to box him again, any time and any place. If there is one man in the world that I can lick, it's O'Dowd, Six months before our bout I asked my manager to get him for me. I wanted a chance at the title and trained hard with that one object in view. I was in wonderful shape the night I met him.

'A boxer naturally is nervous when he meets a champion, but I don't think I was. I knew that my style of fighting would baffle Mike for a time, and while he was figuring it out I would pile up enough points to win. You know I box like Lew Tendler-my right arm extended and my right foot out.

"In the second round I caught O'Dowd with a straight left hand punch and sent him to the canvas. After that I knew I had him beaten."

Marty Killilea, his manager, then took up the oratory. "There have been some remarks made by certain people that Wilson can't make 158 pounds," he said. "That's all hokum. Johnny is a legitimate middleweight and will see that every man he meets weighs 158 or under, and he will do the same. Before the summer he will box O'Dowd again, and this time Wilson will knock him out. Just see if he doesn't."

WILSON does not look like a husku guy. His shoulders are broad, but his legs are thin. He did not look to aceigh more than 160 in his street clothes.
