

The Marriage Trifler

HAZEL DEVO BATCHELOR
(Barbara Knight, the acknowledged leader of the younger set, has captured Keith Grant, the most eligible bachelor of the season.)

you're not ill, are you? What time is it? "It's early," Barbara whispered. "No, I'm not ill, dear. I'm just thinking about things and the fact that I'm going to leave you all. Practically I'm going to be different."

gift from her father's brother in San Francisco, and then the wedding gown and the veil with its clouds of tulle. She had a sense of the twinkling laughter of the bridesmaids. Eleanor's calm, little face under the rose-colored hat, the fragrance of flowers everywhere, and herself at the center of everything.

of unreluctantly persisted. It wasn't until she walked up the long aisle of the church in her trailing gown with her arms full of white orchids and roses, and met Keith's burning eyes in a very white face, that with a little sob of relief she felt that everything was all right. And so they were married!

Tomorrow—The Let-Down
The clean, washed air is cooled before being sent into the Store and, as a consequence, the Down Stairs Store is usually much cooler than the streets—even the shady side.
