CREW LEVICK

Put oil to the stamina test

For that is the one, simple, accurate test that proves oil quality-it also proves why quality oils are economical.

The terrific vibration and side thrust from rocking, that locomotive bearings are subjected to, add just one more destructive element to the great load and speed that breaks down locomotive lubricants. It takes good oil to stand the gaff, as many an engineer knows who has been delayed by a hot box.

Have your oilers check carefully the "hours of lubrication per gallon" that your present oil yields on your rolling stock.

Then make the same test with Crew Levick oil. You will find that Crew Levick oils last much longer. The Pennsylvania paraffine base crude oil from which all Crew Levick lubricants are refined is acknowledged to have the greatest natural heat and wear resistance of any oil produced in America.

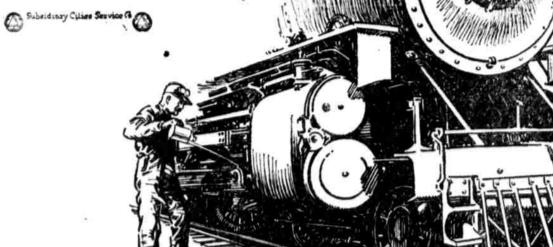

Test Crew Levick oils now, and prove their economy—then use them for a year and note the decreased figures in your "maintenance of way" statement. Note also the greater accuracy with which time schedules are maintained.
