Service Normal on Baltimore-Washington Divisions, Pennsy and B. & O. Officials Say

BROTHERHOODS ORDER MEN TO RETURN TO POSTS

Governor Sproul Probably Will Take Up Situation in Con-

Brotherhood of Enginemen and Fire They have been striving to get the union men now on strike on the Pennsylvania system to return to their posts by midnight. Unless this is done the railroad officials have threatened to discharge the strikers.

Governor Sproul was too busy today with other conferences to take up the question of the strike. The agents of the State Department of Labor have been actively at work all day, however, and it is expected at Harrisburg that the Governor will hear their reports to-morrow and decide what may be done to bring about a settlement.

Striking yardmen on the Pennsylvania Railroad's lines near Chester and Wilmington have returned to work 100 per cent strong, according to a state-ment issued this afternoon at Broad Street Station. There has been a large return like-wise at the Baltimore yards of the same company, according to the state-ment, and by evening the entire work-ing force is expected to be back on the job, the railroad says. Locally, the P. R. R. reports that 100 out of 118 crews are at work, and that many of the local freight yards are working on a 100 per cent basis.

Both gains and losses were reported by the P. R. M. in another butterin is-sued at 4:30 o'clock. Seven conduc-tors and twenty-four brakemen, it was stated, had returned to work at Balti-gineer, one passenger trainman, all of failed to report with the afternoon shift today. The Pennsylvania Railroad has advertised for guards. At Broad Street station this afternoon officials admitted that they wanted to hire men to guard railroad property in case of trouble. It was said that this step had been taken more as a matter of precaution than in anticipation of real trouble. Reading Report Optimistic

Reading officials reported this afteron that the situation was improved. Today the Reading has been able to move some other freight besides perishable goods, and among other things some coal has been handled at the Port Richmond yards. A certain amount of freight likewise has been handled on the Bethlehem branch of the Reading's New York division.
