MYSTERY SHROUDS AUTO KIDNAPPING

Patrolman Sees Man Thrown Into Machine After Street Struggle

EXCHANGE REVOLVER SHOTS

An unidentified man was thrown into a black touring car at Eighth and Willow streets last night and whirled away, one occupant of the car exchanging shots with a patrolman, who saw the occurrence.

Patrolman Hays, of the Tenth and Buttonwood streets police station, was near Eighth and Willow streets at 10:45 o'clock last night and noted a man standing on the corner. The touring car shot across Eighth street, running parallel with the railroad tracks, and came to an abrupt stop.

One man leaped out, grabbed the man on the corner and thrust him into the tonneau, with the captive kicking and struggling. The machine sped east on Willow street, skirting several boxcars there, and turned south on Seventh.

Hays ran after the machine, but soon lost the car. As the patrolman ran south on Seventh street he heard two shots. The touring car had been halted in front of 626 Callowhill street, the chauffeur joining in the attempt to subdue the third man.

The noise of the struggle aroused I. Seckel, who lives at 626 Callowhill street. Believing he was witnessing a hold-up, Seckel got his revolver and fired two shots in the air. The men in the automobile were still struggling as Hays turned into Callowhill street.

The patrolman was seen by the others. The chauffeur leaped over to the front seat and grasped the wheel again, sending the car racing east on Callowhill street toward the river. Hays fired three shots after it. One man in the car returned the fire.

Running at high speed, the automobile quickly outdistanced the patrolman, who hurried to a police call box and notified his station house. Hays picked up a straw hat which had fallen from the car.

Police believe the affair resulted from a feud between the men. They doubt that it was a hold-up.

BUSINESS MEN IN CELLS

Germantown and Jenkintown Residents Pay Total of $140 Fines

Eleven men, seven of them said to be well-known Germantown and Jenkintown business men, spent several hours in cells at the Abington police station last night, and were finally released on the payment of fines aggregating $140 on a charge of shooting craps on an estate on Meeting House road.

Chief of Police Lever, of Abington township, made the raid yesterday as the culmination of an epidemic of gambling said to have swept this section in recent months. According to reports received by him the games have been extensive, a dollar being the lowest bet, and the sky the limit. One man is said to have dropped $1200 in one game.

The men caught in yesterday's raid were not allowed to sign their own bail bonds, nor communicate with their families. They had a hearing before Magistrate Williams in the evening. He gave them their choice of paying fines or going to court, in which case the entire gambling scandal would be aired and scores of prominent business men involved. All the men paid their fines and promised to refrain from gambling in the future.

VARE TO LEAVE FOR ORIENT

Congressman to Arrive on Coast in Midst of Democratic Convention

Congressman William S. Vare will leave Philadelphia Friday on the first leg of his trip to the Orient with the congressional party. The congressman denied today reports from Washington that his name had been removed from the list of those who are going.

He will go to Chicago, and then on to San Francisco, where he will arrive in the midst of the Democratic National Convention. He said today he did not know whether he would look in at any of the sessions of the convention, although he might do so to get campaign material for use later.

NEW $5000 REWARD IN COUGHLIN CASE

Friends of Parents of Kidnapped Baby Make Offer for Information Concerning Child

DESCRIPTION ON CARDS

A $5000 reward has been offered by friends of the parents of Blakely Coughlin, the thirteen-months-old baby kidnapped from his home in Norristown, for information regarding the child.

Notice of the new reward offer has been sent by the postoffice department on postcards, directed to every city mail carrier and rural mail carrier in the United States. These cards read:

"$5000 Reward $5000.

"Reward offered by friends of Parents.

"Blakely Coughlin was stolen from crib in parents' home, Norristown, Pa., night June 1, 1920. Blackmailers have already obtained $12,000. Above reward offered for information leading to return of child or apprehension of kidnappers.

"Description: Age, thirteen months; weight, thirty pounds; height, thirty-two inches; eyes, light blue; hair, light; four upper and four lower teeth when taken; when standing turns right foot outward; after crying shows slight red spot on forehead."

Rewards now offered for the return of the baby total $12,500. The Coughlins offer $6000; there is the reward of $5000 offered by friends and the $1500 offered by the Montgomery county commissioners.

Letters continue to be received by the parents of the lost child from various parts of the country. The latest is from Los Angeles. In this one the writer declares he knows where the child is. He writes "I will let you know more after I receive a complete description and picture of the child."

The two other children of the Coughlins, David Watt, eight years old, and McLean, five years old, have returned home. They were sent away to relatives following the kidnapping.

Postoffice inspectors have taken a hand in the case and are endeavoring to locate the man who wrote that he had the child, obtained $12,000 and was heard from no more.

PENN PROFESSOR QUITS

John B. McMaster Givess Up Teaching—St. G. L. Sioussat Successor

After teaching for thirty-seven years, Dr. John Bach McMaster has decided to give up the chair of American history at the University of Pennsylvania. He will continue only as professor emeritus. The announcement was made yesterday.

Doctor McMaster is regarded by prominent educators as America's leading historian.

Doctor McMaster was born in New York city in 1852.

He is a past president of the American Historical Association and at present is president of the Franklin Inn Club of Philadelphia. He became professor of American history at the University in 1883 and has therefore taught there thirty-seven years. Many of the most influential professors of American history in various universities and colleges have been students under Doctor McMaster.

Prof. St. George L. Sioussat has been elected professor of American history at the University to succeed Doctor McMaster.

Witt Bowden has been appointed assistant professor of European history. Like Professor Sioussat, he is a southerner, having been born in Arkansas.

PAIR OF YELLOW SHOES SAVED LIFE OF RUSSIAN NOW HERE

Russian Colonel Rescued From Trotzky's Ire by Girl's Love of Footwear

He Declares That Bolshevism Is Gradually Working Itself Out

COLONEL KALPASCHNIKOFF

In a famous essay, pins are said to have saved the lives of thousands of children, because the children didn't swallow them. Now a pair of yellow shoes, bought for $6.50 in a Fourteenth street store, New York city, bids fair to rival pins as a life-saver.

In 1917 Andrew Kalpaschnikoff, who for several years had been an attache of the Russian embassy in Washington, sailed for Russia. He engaged passage on a boat that was held up at Halifax for one week in order that the passengers could be examined. It was immediately following the sailing of Ambassador von Bernstorff, and the officials were becoming more careful.

Colonel Kalpaschnikoff served as interpreter for the returning Russians, and it was through his work that Trotzky was held at Halifax, vigorously declaring vengeance, as Kalpaschnikoff sailed away carrying with him a pair of yellow shoes for Daria, the household servant.

They were far too gorgeous to be worn, and Daria kept them as an ornament on her dressing table.

Trotzky Caused Arrest

Shortly afterward Trotzky caused the arrest of Kalpaschnikoff as "the soul of the American plot" in which Ambassador David R. Francis was believed to be the arch-conspirator for a movement against the Bolshevist government.

The arrest of Colonel Kalpaschnikoff and his imprisonment in the Fortress of Peter and Paul would have been enough to arouse Daria's anger against the Bolshevists, but the theft of her yellow shoes was almost a graver offense. Her wrath knew no bounds. She was impolitic in her treatment of the government. But finally through strategy, she secured her master's release, and suffered herself the punishment of the Bolshevists when Colonel Kalpaschnikoff was on his way to America.

Colonel Kalpaschnikoff, who has been visiting in Philadelphia, is firm in the belief that bolshevism defeats its own ends and that the national movement has gained fully 80 per cent of the people in Russia.

"It is easy to make an American believe anything about Russia for the country is like a sick man—one day looking well and on the way to health; and the next day in a fevered state of restlessness," says Colonel Kalpaschnikoff.

"There are only two ways to reach the great masses. They cannot be held by one form of politics—some think this is the best form, some that. But they can be held united by a policy on land and by religion and the national movement has for its leaders the patriarchs.

Working Itself Out

"Bolshevism is gradually working itself out. There is more bolshevism in Europe itself than in Russia. The Russian people want something that is practical and if our neighbors would leave us alone we could get through with bolshevism very quickly."

The revolution through which Russia has been passing has brought distrust, and there have been advances in education more rapid than during the peaceful living of more than a century.

Newspapers had a circulation of perhaps one million copies before the war and today the circulation may be seven million. Every peasant is learning to read because he has learned that it is necessary to understand what he is fighting for.

Colonel Kalpaschnikoff looks for a union of interest among all Slavs. He is of the opinion that those of southeast Europe are sympathetic toward Russia and would fight with the Russians.

The suppression of the Russian religion in Poland is likely to lead to the crushing of Poland, according to Colonel Kalpaschnikoff, who says that the Bolshevists have made the Polish Russian war a religious war and the last religious war ended in the crushing of Poland.

Colonel Kalpaschnikoff will stay in this country until conditions settle themselves more satisfactorily in Russia. He married Miss Celia Campbell Higgins, whose mother was Miss Susan Rush, of this city, before her marriage.

Deaths of a Day

Mrs. Hutchinson Smith

Mrs. M. Elizabeth Smith, widow of Hutchinson Smith, who was president of the Jenkintown National Bank, died yesterday at her home, 414 West avenue, Jenkintown. Mrs. Smith, who was in her eighty-first year, was born in Horsham, Montgomery county. She was a descendant of one of the oldest families of Friends in Pennsylvania. She had been ill about six months. Her husband, Hutchinson Smith, died in 1911. A son, C. Comley Smith, of Germantown, and a married daughter, Mrs. A. Le Roy Fetter, of Jenkintown, survive her. Interment will be private at Abington Friends' Cemetery.

George Haig

The funeral of George Haig, a cousin of Sir Douglas Haig, field marshal of the British army, who died in the Presbyterian Hospital on Sunday, after a protracted illness, will take place tomorrow afternoon from his home, 2350 Reed street. Interment will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery. Mr. Haig, a native of England, came to this country when quite young and settled in Philadelphia. For the last eighteen years he was connected with the Bureau of Health as an executive clerk. He formerly was a member of the Board of Education, having served ten years. He is survived by six children.

Appeal Made for Books

An appeal for magazines, books, puzzles, talking machines and records is made by authorities at the Eagleville Sanatorium, which is now conducting the hospital wards at Phipps Institute, Seventh and Lombard streets, this city. Many of the patients are discontented because of lack of adequate amusement, according to Dr. A. J. Cohen, medical director, at Eagleville, and the addition of a few books and other amusement features will speed their convalescence.

Boy Accidentally Shot by Brother

Sixteen-year-old Albert Truitt, 1101 Vine street, was shot in the left thigh this morning as the result of an accidental discharge of a revolver which was being cleaned by his brother, Elmer. The boy was taken to the Jefferson Hospital.

BOOST HARDING AT LUNCH

Union League Members Hope to Convert Democrats at Table

There is now a "Harding Boosters' Table" in the big dining room at the Union League, where every noon forgather the most enthusiastic of the followers of the Republican nominee, under the chairmanship of Frank Caven, administration leader in the Thirty-fourth ward.

As there is no need of seeking converts at the league, where all are Harding enthusiasts, Mr. Caven and his associates are planning to bring in some Democrats as their luncheon guests, to see if a little missionary work cannot be done for the Ohio senator.

Two of the Caven lieutenants are A. Lincoln Acker, city purchasing agent, and Fred Dunlap, chief of the bureau of highways and reputed appointee for the vacant post of director of public works.

Three visitors entertained at the "Boosters'" table at noon today were City Solicitor Smyth, Durrell Shuster, the Mayor's secretary, and Joseph K. Costello, chief of the Bureau of Claims. Mayor Moore is to be a guest when he returns next week.

Moose Convention Advises Method to Hit H. C. L.

Aurora, Ill., June 23.—As a means to check the rising tide of unrest and the increase in the cost of living, the Loyal Order of Moose, in convention at Mooseheart today, adopted a resolution urging all its 600,000 members to invest as much of their funds as possible in Liberty loan bonds and Victory notes.

Cole R. Blease, former governor of South Carolina, as chairman of the resolutions committee, urged adoption of the resolution.

Another resolution adopted by the convention indorsed a $10,000,000 endowment for the Moose vocational school and farm at Mooseheart for children of deceased Moose.

SURPRISED THIEVES FLEE, LEAVING AUTO

Robbers, Detected at Work in Store, Second and Pearl Sts., Run From Police

HAD SUGAR IN MOTORCAR

Thieves in the act of robbing the store of the American Stores Co., at Second and Pearl streets, Camden, were surprised by two patrolmen early this morning and were forced to make such a hasty departure they left behind them an automobile and several hundred pounds of sugar they had placed in it.

At 3:30 o'clock Patrolmen Opfer and Bakley saw an automobile in front of the home of Opfer, who lives but a short distance from Second and Pearl. They were curious to know what the machine was doing there so early in the morning.

The patrolmen investigated and discovered one 200-pound sack of sugar and another 100-pound sack lying in the automobile ready to be carried away.

"There must be something doing here," said Opfer. "We'll lay low."

They did and soon noticed four men slinking out of the American Store carrying a safe. When the men saw the policemen they dropped the safe and ran down Second street. The patrolmen followed them, but no shots were fired.

The automobile bore a New Jersey license, No. 150,469. The police are looking for the owner. They do not know whether the car was stolen, in which case it may be difficult to identify the thieves, or whether it belonged to the thieves.

9 BARRELS OF WHISKY GONE

Saloonkeeper Says They Were Part of Fifteen Received Yesterday

A detective was assigned today to investigate the theft of nine barrels of whisky from the saloon of Max Moskowitz, southeast corner of Sixth and South streets.

How such a large quantity of "red eye" came into Moskowitz's possession is a mystery to the police. Moskowitz said fifteen barrels of whisky were delivered to him yesterday by the Federal Distilling Co. of Baltimore.

During the night some one forced the lock on the door of the saloon and removed the nine barrels. Detective Letzing, of Central Station, is investigating.

Legion Post Contributes $50 to Sum for Work at Carnival

A $50 check was received today by James T. Cortelyou, director of public safety, from Sergeant Harry Ireland Post, No. 218, American Legion, for the benefit of the Police Pension Fund.

Accompanying the check was a letter, signed by Edward J. Puhl, the post adjutant, expressing appreciation of the services of the police at a recent carnival held by the post. The post has headquarters at 1616 Arch street.

Sergeant Harry Ireland, after whom the post is named, was killed in the war. He was the son of Davis Ireland, who is a messenger in Director Cortelyou's office. A Distinguished Service Cross and Croix de Guerre, awarded posthumously to the son, are in the father's possession.

Field Artillery Moves

Two battalions of the Nineteenth Field Artillery en route from Camp Lee, Va., to Camp Dix, N. J., will pass through Philadelphia about noon tomorrow. The battalions are traveling by motorcar, motorcycle and wagon. The detachment is camping today outside of Kennett Square. After resting until tomorrow morning an early start will be made. The men will enter Philadelphia along the Baltimore pike.

JUDGE BROOMALL TO ANSWER ATTACK

Delaware County Jurist Will First Study Charge of Misconduct

EXPLAINS CIRCUMSTANCES

Judge William B. Broomall, of the Common Pleas and Orphans' Court of Delaware county, said today he would think carefully over charges of unethical conduct brought against him by the Pennsylvania Bar Association before making reply.

"I want to think the entire matter over before replying," he said.

The judge had not yet received official notice of the action of the bar association in its convention at Bedford Springs, and wanted to have all the information possible at hand, he said, before making any comment.

The report is the verdict of the committee upon charges preferred against William B. Broomall, judge of the Court of the Common Pleas of Delaware county, by Henry W. Jessup, a member of the New York bar and one of the executors of the will of Mary S. Crozer, a resident of Delaware county, who died September 15, leaving an estate of some $700,000. The complaint accuses Judge Broomall of violating the law of April 14, 1834, which provides:

"No judge of any court of this commonwealth shall practice as attorney or counselor in any court of justice in the commonwealth or elsewhere."

The committee characterizes the judge's action in the matter as a violation of the law, wholly unethical, inimical to the best interests of the profession and practices of the law and the best interests of justice.

The committee, after an extended inquiry, found the facts to be that the will of Mrs. Crozer, with five codicils was drawn by Judge Broomall as a lawyer and executed under his direction and advice as counsel, and subscribed by him as a witness while he was a judge in commission.

Conduct Called Unethical

That after the death of the decedent Judge Broomall offered the will for probate, agreed to act as counsel for the executors and did so act; that he expected compensation for such action as counsel and attorney, and advised concerning the settlement and disposition of the estate, though the validity of the will and questions concerning the distribution of the estate were subject to the jurisdiction of the court of which he was one of the judges.

It was also brought out that by the will large sums were bequeathed to charities, in one of which Judge Broomall was interested as trustee. That, it was charged, raised a question of the validity of such bequest by reason of his having been a subscribing witness to the will.

The committee concludes that for a judge to practice law in his own county is as unethical and improper as it well could be. There being no specific penalty provided by the statute, the committee says the only remedy is impeachment by the Legislature.

The report is signed by Frank McGirr, of Pittsburgh, chairman; John S. Rilling, Erie; Thomas Ross, Doylestown; Robert Grey Bushong, Reading, and Robert F. Hopewood, Uniontown, members.

Broomall States His Reasons

Judge Broomall appeared before the committee and in defense of his position stated that, of course, in obedience to the law and as a matter of common sense he did not practice law while filing the office of judge, and that he only yielded in this case because of his acquaintance with the affairs of the decedent, because of his long friendship for Mr. Roop, one of the executors, and for the reason that in no event could the will come before him as judge, nor could he be called to pass upon any question concerning the estate. The testimony showed that Judge Broomall had returned a check of $5000 tendered him for services in the estate, but the committee stated that this was after the charges had been filed against him.

The difficulties in the way of unscrambling the legal mix-ups caused by the independent and unrelated activities of forty-eight lawmaking bodies in as many states of the union, some of which have been grinding out statutes since Colonial times, were in part set forth on the report of the committee on uniform state laws, submitted at yesterday's session.

The report states that the committee has been working in connection with various other agencies, the principal one of which is the national conference of commissioners on uniform laws, under the auspices of the National Bar Association and composed of commissioners from every state and jurisdiction of the United States.
