Negro Chauffeur Gives New Clue to Baffling Murder Mystery

QUERY MRS. LARSEN AGAIN

New York, June 25.—The official inquiry into the slaying of Joseph Bowne Elwell turned again yesterday to the dead card expert's housekeeper. Mrs. Marie Larsen, and to his chauffeur, Edwin Rhodes. It was learned that late Wednesday evening John T. Dooling, assistant district attorney, had called unexpectedly upon Mrs. Larsen at her residence here and questioned her at great length.

Edgar Walters, the negro chauffeur who is believed to have driven Elwell home from the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic, was one of those questioned in the district attorney's office. He asserted postrict attorney's office. He asserted pos-itively that the passenger he took from the theatre to the house at 244 West Seventieth street at about 2 o'clock on the morning of the murder was attired in street clothes, while Elwell is known to have worn evening clothes. He also asserted that this man purchased no morning paper on the way home, while Elwell is known to have purchased a morning paper which later was found in his room. He said he believed his passenger had at first asked for 204 West Seventieth street, and that arriving there he had said: "This is not the right house. I want the house two doors the other side of the big apartment." WEAKENS BERGDOLL CASE The house referred to was the Elwell residence.
