LIGHTNING KILLS 1, SERIOUSLY STUNS 5 IN JERSEY STORM

F. Sullivan Dies Instantly When Bolt Passes Down Chimney in Home

OTHERS IN PARTY KNOCKED UNCONSCIOUS BY FLASH

Watch on Victim Attracts Electric Flash—Mother and Baby Escape

One man was killed instantly and five persons were stunned when a bolt of lightning ran down the chimney of the dead man's home at Delair, N. J.

The accident occurred at 9 o'clock last night.

The dead man was: Jerome F. Sullivan, sixty-five years old, Velde avenue, Delair, N. J.

Those stunned are: Gladys Sullivan, seventeen years old, 740 Carman street, Camden, his granddaughter.

Ethel Sullivan, twelve years old, same address, another granddaughter.

Harold Conover, twenty-two, of Parkside, shocked.

Charles Parker and Frank Sullivan, Jr., had gone to Camden before the storm started. The thunder and lightning began about half past eight. It was the most terrific storm in the memory of any one living in Delair.

Was Telling How Cousin Was Killed

The family group in the Sullivan home had been sitting at the table in the living room. The man who was killed had been telling them, during the height of the storm, how a cousin of his had been killed by lightning which came down a rain-pipe three years ago. Somewhat awed by the recital in the midst of the flashes of lightning, the family sat in silence for a few moments. Gradually the flashes and the roll of the thunder began to abate and the old man finally remarked: "I guess it'll all over now; I'll sit down."

He had been sitting there a short moment when there was a deafening report, which every one of the survivors thought had been an explosion in the cellar. They saw no flash or ball of fire. When they recovered from the shock young Conover noticed that Mr. Sullivan was sitting slumped down in his chair, his hands pressed over his eyes. They laid him on the floor; three men over him and tried to resuscitate him by working his arms. When there was no response Gladys went out with Harold Conover to seek a doctor.

The lightning struck the watch, which was in the breast pocket of Mr. Sullivan's shirt, and followed the watch chain and entered his body over the heart, making a small hole. It came out at the back and under the ribs, burning three small holes in the skin at the point of egress.

Neighbors Run to Aid

Neighbors who heard the crash and saw the lightning flash in the Sullivan home ran through the darkened streets of the riverside town to the aid of the family.

It was more than an hour later before a physician could be summoned, a messenger making the trip and bringing him back. The girls and the Sullivans had recovered at that time.

Sullivan, he said after an examination, had been killed instantly.

With no wire communication to Camden, a messenger was sent there, and early this morning Coroner Holl arrived to the scene and made his report later to the city officials.

Sullivan and the Parkers moved into the Delair house two days ago. The girls were visiting their grandfather.

3 DIE AS AIRPLANE BURNS

Victims Include Pilot and His Ten-Year-Old Nephew

San Francisco, July 1.—(By A. P.)—Two men and a ten-year-old boy were killed and their bodies were found in an airplane in which they were riding here yesterday struck a high-voltage electric wire and crashed to the ground in flames at the Marina Flying Field.

The pilot of the airplane was David Lane, an overseas veteran. The other two men were his young nephew, Paul Lane, and H. L. Tucker, of San Francisco, civil engineering graduate of Harvard University.

DUBLIN TROOPS CALLED OUT

Firing at Railroad Terminal Renewed During Morning

Dublin, July 1.—(By A. P.)—Soldiers were hurriedly called out at 1:30 o'clock this morning by the discharge of firearms in the neighborhood of the Great Southern Railway terminus of the Great Southern Railway. The troops patrolled the streets and stopped all pedestrians and examined their permits to go home as quickly as possible.

Firing was renewed later, but there has so far been no explanation of the disorder.

Surviving member of the class of 1900 of Harvard University, who was the first to receive a Ph.D. degree in the United States, died at his home in Cambridge, Mass., yesterday.

President Wilson Looms on Convention Horizon

San Francisco, July 1.—Managers for candidates fear President Wilson may be brought to the fore and made the logical nominee. A report from Washington says that Mr. Wilson has interpreted the demonstration for him as an acceptance of the Republican challenge to make him the campaign issue, and that while not desiring the nomination, he would welcome the tender of it.

While the report was given credence, it was believed that the President would refuse such a tender, and in doing so would provide a program that he believes would bring party success.

CHILDREN HIT BY CARS

Two Youngsters Seriously Hurt When Run Down by Trolleys

Two small children were seriously injured when they were run down by trolley cars this afternoon.

Five-year-old Clifford Gilliam, 329 South Thirteenth street, was playing in front of his home with some companions when a ball, thrown by one of them, rolled into the street. The little fellow dashed after it and directly in front of a trolley car. The child was knocked down and the forward truck of the car passed over him, jamming him under it.

Patrolman Moran, of the Twelfth and Pine streets station, crawled under the car and took the child in an automobile to the Pennsylvania Hospital, where it was found to have sustained a fractured right arm and internal injuries.

Louisa Fullmer, a three-year-old negro child, was struck by an east-bound car while crossing the street in front of its home at 1703 Lombard street. Patrolman Anderson, of the Twelfth and Pine streets station, picked the child up and ran with it to the Polyclinic Hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate its left arm.

HOTTER TODAY, BUT IT ISN'T

Temperature Higher Than Yesterday, but Humidity is Less

It is much hotter today than yesterday, figured by the thermometer, but from the standpoint of linen collars unwitted it is not so hot.

The temperature at 2 o'clock reached 82 degrees, while at 5 o'clock it was 80 degrees at the same hour yesterday. Later this afternoon the temperature dropped slightly.

The weather is comfortable today, in spite of the higher temperature, because the humidity, which was 90 per cent yesterday morning, stands at 58 per cent today. This is abnormally low for this time of year. It will be fair tonight, and on Friday partly cloudy and unsettled, probably with local showers.

DIVER HUNTS BOY'S BODY

Searches Bottom of Quarry Where Youth Lost Life Tuesday

A diver, with full deep-sea equipment, searched a water-filled quarry at Cottman street near the Roosevelt boulevard, this afternoon, for the body of Edward Glazier, sixteen years old, Harrogate and Nicetown lanes.

The weathering began Tuesday morning while swimming with several companions. Police obtained a rowboat and grappled for the body without success. Mr. Glazier was wearing a life preserver. Twenty-second street and Hunting Park avenue, worked all night trying to pump the quarry dry.

As the puffing fire engine sucked the water from the quarry, the diver, who was working slowly, police appealed to the Bristol Shipyard for a diver. The underwater worker reached there about 1 o'clock and began a systematic search. It is estimated the water is 130 feet deep at some points in the quarry.

JEFFRIES QUILTS POLICE

Lieutenant Resigns Rather Than Take 2d and Christian Sts. Post

Police Lieutenant William J. Jeffries today resigned rather than accept appointment as lieutenant in charge of Second Police district, at Second and Christian streets. He is the second man within twenty-four hours who has resigned rather than take the place named by the promotion of Lieutenant Noon to an acting captaincy. Lieutenant Ewing resigned yesterday for the same reason.

Resignation is considered one of the most difficult in the city.

Ewing and Jeffries had excellent records, never having been the target of charges in years of service. Both go on the pension roll. Jeffries is fifty-nine years old and was made a patrolman in June, 1918.

PENNA. DELEGATES MAY SWING SOON TO M'ADOO'S SIDE

Expected to Shift Unless Palmer Shows Convincing Strength on Early Polls

FIRST BALLOT TO BE CAST FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

Demonstration for Keystone Leader Fails to Change a Single Vote

By a Staff Correspondent

San Francisco, July 1.—Pennsylvania's seventy-six delegates went into the Democratic convention hall this morning avowedly solid for Palmer. But unless the attorney general is able to show convincing evidence of a power to gain after the first ballot, there is sure to be a break.

A confidential poll of the delegation by one of the most active members, a man of prominence in the party councils in Philadelphia, was made last night and early this morning, and he found a surprising growth of sentiment for McAdoo.

"At least two-thirds of the delegation are ready to vote for McAdoo at the first sign of a swing that way by the convention," this delegate told your correspondent.

"I do not mean by this statement to imply that there is a wish to desert our state leader, Mitchell Palmer," he continued, "but I find McAdoo is the second choice of nearly fifty of our men. So keep your eye on Pennsylvania's vote after the early balloting. It may turn the trick and start the stampede."

Privately some of Palmer's most ardent followers are a bit disappointed over the effect of the demonstration for the attorney general after his nomination was secured by the Pennsylvania delegates. It was felt that the demonstration would have been more effective if it had been held in the morning, when the delegates would have been more alert and the demonstration would have been more effective.

CONVENTION SHOWS EVERY INDICATION OF NOMINATING "CROWN PRINCE"

By CLINTON W. GILBERT

Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Co.

San Francisco, July 1.—The convention gave every sign when Mr. McAdoo's name was presented late yesterday afternoon that he was the man it intended to nominate.

It listened to seven hours of oratory, singing, music and yodeling. It gave a long but perfunctory demonstration in behalf of Attorney General Palmer. It went through a lot of organized antics in behalf of Governor Cox. It paid a spontaneous and extraordinary tribute to Senator Al Smith, of New York. It sat patiently through speeches in behalf of many minor candidates.

But when at nearly 6 o'clock in the afternoon the Rev. Basil Jenkins, of Kansas City, ascended the platform to present the name of Mr. McAdoo it burst into applause as if at last it had got down to its real business. Doctor Jenkins told the delegates how he had intended to make an address nominating his candidate, but had been forbidden to do so. He announced in a few words the intention to draft the ex-secretary of the treasury, and then the convention broke out in its one demonstration that had the appearance of being meant, except that in honor of Governor Smith, which was too nearly unanimous to indicate more than sympathy and admiration.

HAD AN ELECTRIC QUALITY

This McAdoo demonstration did not include a majority of the delegates, but it did involve more than participated in the parades following the naming of either Palmer or Cox. It swept over the galleries as neither the Palmer nor Cox demonstrations had. It had an electric quality about it that neither of the big rival demonstrations had, and it bore little sign of having been organized. The cheering and parading that followed the presentation of Cox's name was the most elaborately organized. That which followed the naming of Palmer was of the familiar "we must make a record for our candidate" variety. There was an emotional quality about the McAdoo display that was lacking in the others.

CONVENTION STRONG FOR M'ADOO

The convention means to nominate McAdoo. The galleries want it and expect it to nominate McAdoo. One could not read what happened in any other light. Doctor Jenkins' statement that Mr. McAdoo would be drafted came after a day of rumors, doubts and conferences. Plans were changed more than once. At one time it was intended formally to nominate the ex-secretary. At another time an effort was made to write a statement which would assure the convention Mr. McAdoo would accept if nominated. But finally Doctor Jenkins made only a brief declaration to the delegates of an intention to draft his candidate. The report was that Mr. McAdoo had sent another telegram to his supporters denying that his name should not be presented to the convention. This story was denied by them.

But there was every indication that they spent some anxious hours before finally announcing the intention to draft their man.

Now that his name is before the convention, nothing seems likely to prevent his nomination, except a statement from

BOOM LACKED CONTAGION

But there was something lacking. The huge audience had not warmed up to the excitement. It was the first staged demonstration of the convention and the people were still under restraint. The delegates from the other states remained calm and unmoved. The galleries looked on quietly and seemed amused. That was all. So the delegates of the states mentioned were left to their throat-tying and perspiring work unaided. There was no contagion in the enthusiasm. After thirty-six minutes, they gave it up and subsided. Not a man or woman in the hall not previously for Palmer had been won over. Therefore the disappointment.

If every one of the delegates in the

GREAT OVATION GIVEN HIM

San Francisco, July 1.—The convention resolutions committee reconvened at 11 a. m. today to take up the platform struggle which it ended long after midnight. A sharp fight on the "dry" plank offered by William Jennings Bryan was in immediate prospect when Chairman Glass called the committee to order and newspapermen and propagandists were hustled out of the hall to their dreary water in the corridors.

Mr. Bryan was early in the committee room, where he held a score of personal conferences. He said he was prepared to fight to a finish for his "dry" declaration against the disposition of the subcommittee on platform to keep the party declaration silent on prohibition enforcement.

The Nebraska announced he would battle for his plank precisely as he had framed it, and that the "only ballast" it contained which he might be willing to sacrifice was an adjective here and there for more-dry enforcement of the eighteenth amendment.

Senator Walter of Montana, said he "hoped" the committee would be able to report the platform to the convention later in the day.

The Irish plank also remained to be acted upon by the full committee. Placards displayed about the corridors signed by a half a dozen delegates called for a "caucus" of delegates friendly to Irish independence. It was to have been staged in a hall adjoining the committee room. There was no sign of it, however, when the resolutions committee convened.

REPORTERS "DEADLINE" PUSHED BACK

New efforts to prevent leaks in the platform deliberations were ordered by Senator Glass. The dead line, drawn first yesterday twenty feet from the doorway of the committee room and later sent back to fifty feet under a skirmish line of police, was sent clear to the ends of the corridor today.

Newspapermen were not permitted to approach within fifty yards of the door and the committee members today, the draft showing blanks for the "dry," Irish and educational expressions.

In addition to the Irish and "dry" planks, the only point remaining to be covered when the committee met, it was said, was whether creation of a separate federal department of education would be recommended. Printed copies of the planks agreed to during the long night session were said to be available to committee members today, the draft showing blanks for the "dry," Irish and educational expressions.

TRIP WAS SCHOOL REWARD

A motor trip to Washington ended tragically for Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Searl, of 521 Bryn Mawr avenue, Cynwyd, when their two children, Althea Elizabeth Searl, eleven years old, and Walter F. Searl, Jr., ten years old, were drowned in Occoquan creek, Virginia.

The drowning occurred yesterday. The children will be brought here for burial.

Mr. and Mrs. Searl were on a motor trip to Washington and had stopped at Occoquan creek for lunch. The parents chose a camp near an abandoned mill. Unnoticed, the children wandered away. After they had been gone a few minutes the parents began searching for them.

The bodies of the children were found in twenty feet of water. A fishing rod which the boy had taken with him when he wandered away was found floating on the stream.

"If there had been a pulmotor around I believe little Walter and Elizabeth might have been saved," the father said.

The boy and girl, who was known among her playmates as Elizabeth, were popular youngsters in Cynwyd.

The father, who is a machinist, said

San Francisco, July 1.—(By A. P.)—William J. Bryan's prohibition plank, around which today's fight in the platform committee is centering, is as follows:

"We heartily congratulate the Democratic party on its splendid leadership in the submission and ratification of the prohibition amendment to the federal constitution, and we pledge the party to the effective enforcement of the Volstead law, honestly and in good faith, without any increase in the alcoholic content of permitted beverages and without any weakening of any other of its provisions."

Hope of Balloting Today Glimmers—More Demonstrations for Wilson's Son-in-Law

By the Associated Press

Auditorium, July 1.—The Democratic National Committee met in its fourth day's session, and additional names were presented in the contest for the presidential nomination.

The names of Ambassador John W. Davis, of West Virginia; Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, and Senator Glass, chairman of the resolutions committee, were placed in nomination.

A long, bitter fight over the League of Nations declaration, in which the supporters of President Wilson were forced to accept an amendment to the administration's plank before it could be adopted, so delayed the work of the platform committee that there is little likelihood the delegates will get down to balloting before tomorrow. The vote for the amendment was 32 to 18.

May Report Late Today

Members of the committee expressed the hope they will be able to make a report to the convention late today, but as fights soon developed in the committee on the prohibition and Irish questions, and with another battle on the floor of the convention over these planks and the League of Nations in prospect, leaders in control of the convention have stopped figuring as to when the first ballot will be taken. Voting for President will not begin until the platform has been adopted.

Conferees of the forces seeking to effect a combination to defeat the nomination of William G. McAdoo failed to reach any agreement on a candidate and their only accomplishment seemed to be a stiffening of the determination to hold solid if possible a veto block of votes.

As the counter move to meet the combination against McAdoo, administration forces were scouting for a dark horse of their own who could break the combination if it proved effective.

Marshall Again Looms

Vice President Marshall had been talked of to head the combination against McAdoo, but Thomas Taggart, head of the Indiana delegation, did not attend the conferences.

There was mention of Homer S. Cummings, who has always been a factor since his keynote speech as temporary chairman, and a new name heard was that of Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state, but there was no trend toward either of these or any new names introduced until the Palmer or Cox forces, or both, definitely join the combination which has for its purpose the defeat of McAdoo.

No progress was made in the movement to bring Mr. Bryan into the combination and have him place in nomination former Speaker Champ Clark, which was one of the ideas favored during the preliminary conference.

A factor in the situation was the absence of agreement on the prohibition plank of the platform. The position of Mr. Bryan is tightly bound up in that issue.

Bryan a Possibility

There are some who say that if Mr. Bryan should be successful in obtaining the plank he has introduced, he is the only man who could run on it, and these same old-line leaders charged that the creation of that situation was a part of the Bryan program.

When the convention was called to order by Chairman Robinson the roll of the states was called. New Mexico, first on the roll, simply seconded the nomination of William G. McAdoo. It was the signal for a demonstration which started in the galleries and spread to some delegations on the floor, but did not last long.

North Carolina sent W. C. Newland, of Lenoir, to the platform to place in nomination Senator Simmons, for whom the North Carolina delegates are instructed.

Mrs. Martha Nelson McCann, of California, made a seconding speech for Simmons, merely saying: "Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise to second the nomination of Senator Simmons, of North Carolina."

Oregon for McAdoo

North Dakota passed, and Oregon announced that the delegation "joined the movement to draft the Honorable William Gibbs McAdoo." The McAdoo boomers, helped out by the band, made that the signal for another brief demonstration.

Rhode Island passed, so did South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas, and

Bryan a Possibility

There are some who say that if Mr. Bryan should be successful in obtaining the plank he has introduced, he is the only man who could run on it, and these same old-line leaders charged that the creation of that situation was a part of the Bryan program.

When the convention was called to order by Chairman Robinson the roll of the states was called. New Mexico, first on the roll, simply seconded the nomination of William G. McAdoo. It was the signal for a demonstration which started in the galleries and spread to some delegations on the floor, but did not last long.

North Carolina sent W. C. Newland, of Lenoir, to the platform to place in nomination Senator Simmons, for whom the North Carolina delegates are instructed.

Mrs. Martha Nelson McCann, of California, made a seconding speech for Simmons, merely saying: "Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise to second the nomination of Senator Simmons, of North Carolina."

Oregon for McAdoo

North Dakota passed, and Oregon announced that the delegation "joined the movement to draft the Honorable William Gibbs McAdoo." The McAdoo boomers, helped out by the band, made that the signal for another brief demonstration.

Auditorium, July 1.—The Democratic National Committee met in its fourth day's session, and additional names were presented in the contest for the presidential nomination.

The names of Ambassador John W. Davis, of West Virginia; Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, and Senator Glass, chairman of the resolutions committee, were placed in nomination.

A long, bitter fight over the League of Nations declaration, in which the supporters of President Wilson were forced to accept an amendment to the administration's plank before it could be adopted, so delayed the work of the platform committee that there is little likelihood the delegates will get down to balloting before tomorrow. The vote for the amendment was 32 to 18.

May Report Late Today

Members of the committee expressed the hope they will be able to make a report to the convention late today, but as fights soon developed in the committee on the prohibition and Irish questions, and with another battle on the floor of the convention over these planks and the League of Nations in prospect, leaders in control of the convention have stopped figuring as to when the first ballot will be taken. Voting for President will not begin until the platform has been adopted.

Conferees of the forces seeking to effect a combination to defeat the nomination of William G. McAdoo failed to reach any agreement on a candidate and their only accomplishment seemed to be a stiffening of the determination to hold solid if possible a veto block of votes.

As the counter move to meet the combination against McAdoo, administration forces were scouting for a dark horse of their own who could break the combination if it proved effective.

Marshall Again Looms

Vice President Marshall had been talked of to head the combination against McAdoo, but Thomas Taggart, head of the Indiana delegation, did not attend the conferences.

There was mention of Homer S. Cummings, who has always been a factor since his keynote speech as temporary chairman, and a new name heard was that of Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state, but there was no trend toward either of these or any new names introduced until the Palmer or Cox forces, or both, definitely join the combination which has for its purpose the defeat of McAdoo.

No progress was made in the movement to bring Mr. Bryan into the combination and have him place in nomination former Speaker Champ Clark, which was one of the ideas favored during the preliminary conference.

A factor in the situation was the absence of agreement on the prohibition plank of the platform. The position of Mr. Bryan is tightly bound up in that issue.
