Warns Against Rowdiness and 'Commercial' Games

Tells Delegation Working Man Must Have Some Diversion. Points to Autos

Mayor Moore will not forbid Sunday baseball games or other sports when they are indulged in merely as recreation, he informed a delegation of ministers today.

The Mayor expressed upon his visitors, however, that he would not tolerate rowdiness or commercialism at Sunday ball games.

This was his reply to a demand that he enforce the law of 1793 against Sunday sports and have the police prevent all Sunday ball games.

The demand was made by a committee of five clergymen, representing the Ministerial Union, headed by the Rev. J. M. S. Lenher. The committee was ushered into the Mayor's private office shortly after 11 o'clock and were there for more than an hour.

Doctor Isenberg, as chief spokesman, made vigorous plea for enforcement of the old Sabbath laws.

Text of Wet Plank Offered to Convention by Cockran

Auditorium, San Francisco, July 2.—(By A. P.)—The text of the prohibition plank offered by W. Bourke Cockran is as follows: "The validity of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution has been sustained by the Supreme Court and any law enacted under its authority must be enforced. In the interest of personal liberty to conserve the rights of the states we favor federal legislation under the eighteenth amendment, allowing the manufacture and sale for home consumption only of cider, light wines and beer, preserving to the various states power to fix any alcoholic content other than as fixed by Congress as may be demanded by the opinion or wishes of each locality."

MINORITY REPORTS ARE FOLLOWED BY BITTER CLASHES

Commoner Wages War Against Liquor on Floor of Auditorium

NEW YORKER URGES WINE AND BEER PROVISIONS

Plea Is Made for Ireland—Big Demonstration for Suffrage

By the Associated Press. Auditorium, San Francisco, July 2.—The battle of the "wets" and "drys" got under way in the Democratic National Convention this afternoon when, after the platform had been read without making mention of a prohibition plank, William J. Bryan was recognized to offer a bone "dry" plank, as a minority report.

Mr. Bryan presented five planks of his own and a prohibition plank, which while declaring for the validity of the prohibition amendment, also declared for the "manufacture for home consumption only of cider, light wines and beers."

Chairman Glass concluded the reading of the platform at 12:47 p. m. (3:47 p. m. Philadelphia time), two hours and seven minutes after it began. At the concluding words the band started up and the delegates stood and out loose with a crash of applause. Then there were cries for "Bryan" and clamoring for the fight over adoption to begin.

Commoner Presents Planks
Under the rules Bryan was required to read all of his proposed planks before the discussion of any of them could begin. The bone-dry proposition he presented first and then followed the declarations he had drafted for publication of a government bulletin for dealing with profiteers, and to put the party on record as opposing compulsory military training in times of peace.

When he came to the last of his five planks, which dealt with the League of Nations, Mr. Bryan prefaced its reading by saying that nothing contained in it was intended to conflict with the majority platform's words of praise for the President. The peace treaty, he added, was "better than any one had a right to expect," considering the circumstances with which the President had to deal.

Cockran's Plank Wet
Mr. Cockran's minority report was a wet plank. He told the convention that had Mr. Bryan consented to let the committee's report stand he doubted whether the wets would have raised the question. "But Bryan and evasion are irreconcilable within the same hall," he added, "and now that the issue had been raised, thank God the convention can no longer dodge it."
