READY FOR THE FUN

She looks as if she expected it to be fun, too, doesn't she? Well, almost anybody can have a good time if she starts out with that satisfied feeling that her clothes are correct. And if the wearer of this coarse straw sailor is off for a picnic, a sail, a paddle, a hike, or even if she is just going down fown to shop or to the office, she has a perfect right to that satisfied feeling. Her hat is trimmed with bands and bows of bright leather, which is decidedly good this season

"Kelth," she called softly. He came to his door instantly, and they stood looking at each other. His young face looked set and hard and Bar-bara stood smiling at him. With a little cry he strode over to her and took her into his arms. She nextled in them like a tired child, quite ready, now that she had nothing also to do to receive his without an egort on her part. All her life she has been spoiled and mar-riage to Keith Grant has been the culmination, for he is the most eligible man of the season. Barbara does nothing to add to Keith's life, she pages on in a whirl of gairty and fever-ish entertaining, hardly ever seeing her hyphand alone and in a strunge way had nothing else to do to receive his caresses. "Barbara." he said his face buried in her hair, "we're leading an awfully artificial life; don't you know it? Can't we do something about it?"

LAURA RUNS BY SCHEDULE, LIKE AN EFFICIENT MACHINE

But She Makes the Mistake of Planning Her Recreation Just as She Has to Plan Her Business-That Isn't Any Fun

"T'D LOVE to go to the movies withil just be an automaton, wound up and you," said Laura, "but this is my swimming night, you know." ""When don't any this is my will give out and then you'll wonder

"Why don't you skip it just once?" why. arged Edith. "There's an awfully good show out there, and it's a nice cool evening. You don't have to swim tonight : you can swim tomorrow night. Oh, come on : it'll do you good !"

"No, I really can't." Laura replied, her usual efficient, businessiike laok re-taking the place of the wistful one that had been there for an unguarded moment. "I must have the exercise, you know, when I'm sitting still so much all day at my work, and this is the ep'y evening I can take. Tomorrow we have our girls' club meeting, you know, and Thur day I always keep for mending coming out? The Angora is white on and things like that. I used to have a black sweater, and the sweater is full thing and generally enjoying herself. Laura got her exercise, as per schedule, swimming dutifully for the full time

URA is very capable and efficient LThere is very little in the business world that gets past her. But she makes a great mistake in arranging her recreation by schedule as well as her business. She feels that she must have exercise and that she must do something different in the evenings. So she should. If a woman just sits in an office all day and then comes home and sits down on the porch all evening, she gets stale and fat and middle-aged before her time. She needs exercise of some kind or other to keep her circulation active and her muscles toned up. She must have recreation of some kind to take her mind away from problems and transmissione that here morelide her during transactions that have worried her during the day, no matter how deeply in-terested in them she may be. Yes, Laura is turned in the right di-rection when she insists upon these evenings of exercise and pleasure, but The property field of the propery field of the property field of the proper

Why, you'll wear yourself out doing so much. Why don't you take it easy once in a while? Come on, go to the movies with me." "No. I must have the exercise. I need recreation when I work so hard all day. I must swim to-night."
