JACKSON TRAINS FOR TENDLER GO; BABE RUTH RESIGNS AS AUTO PILOT; OTHER HAPPENINGS IN GOTHAM

MANY things can happen in a city like New York in a single afternoon. In fact, many things can happen in any city on any afternoon, but the isle of Manhatian happens to be the scene of this narrative. Your correspondent wandered over there yesterday afternoon to we a look, just by way of diversion. Here is what

EPISODE I

Stillman's Gymnasium

STILLMAN'S gymnasium is located on 125th street. There is another street nearby, but the bandit who operated the taxicab replied $3.75 when I asked the name of it. That being settled, a visit was paid to the gymnasium, which can be reached by any one who climbs three flights of stairs.

A lot of boxers were steaming up the place. In one corner Johnny Dundee was shadow-boxing with himself and winning easily. In another corner F: ancis Charles Moran was sparring with some middleweight who didn't know any better. Francis Charles, who recently returned from Europe, was demonstrating the reason for Joe Beckett's refusal to meet him. After the middleweight had been swept up. Francis Charles also shadow boxed.

In another part of the hall a ring had been erected and a couple of boxers were engaged in a friendly game "knocking each other's block off." This is played with big boxing gloves and the players laugh and joke as they try to bounce the gloves off the other's map. It is very exciting, especially when one sits down and

One of the participants in this game was Willie Jackson, who is to play for keeps with Lew Tendler at the Phils' park next Monday night. Willie wore a head harness which protected his forehead, chin and ears, while his opponent, a southpaw welterweight entitled Harry Martone, came in au naturel above the neck.

Willie socked this gent for three rounds, and at the end Harry was satisfied to call it a day. Jackson seemed to be in rare form or Martone was in raw form, for the lightweight perpetrated some wonderful work. It wasn't hard to outbox the big guy, but Willie was not content with that. He also outslugged him, landing several sleep-producing wallops which lost their effectiveness because of the heavy gloves. His punching was accurate and powerful, which showed he had been training hard re-

After Harry got the gate a featherweight named Charley Hayes stepped in and out for two rounds, extending Jackson to the limit. This was a speedy session and the spectators, who used up all of the space not taken by the boxers, were all het up.

AFTER the session with Hayes, Jackson jumped around the floor, took some more exercise and retired to the weighing room. Doc Bagley, his manager, invited me in to see him weigh, and he tipped the beam at 133. Therefore there will 'e no trouble about the weight on Monday night. Jackson is a legitimate lightweight and probably will scale 132 when he meets Tendler.

EPISODE II

On the Sidewalks of New York

A FTER leaving the gymnasium Doc Bagley had a few "Jackson is in better shape than I have seen him for a long time," he confessed. "He knows he is up against a hard proposition and realizes he must be in perfect physical trim to win from Tendler. This match, by the way, is more important than you imagine. Tendler has licked all of the lightweights except Leonard, and it is the same with Jackson. The winner of this bout will be in a position to force Leonard into a match for the title, and if Benny refuses-well, you know what will

"I'm not saying that Leonard will refuse. Don't get me wrong on that. What I mean is that he will have to recognize the victor and give him a chance as the most

'Willie is the hardest hitting lightweight in the world. He can hand out a terrible wallop, and if it lands, you know what happens. Tendler also knows. In addition, Jackson is mighty clever. If he uses this cleverness instead of trying to land a finishing sock he can't be beaten in a limited round engagement. I'm not boosting my fighter, but telling you the truth about him.

"He will be in shape to give his best, and that's all any one can ask. He will be dangerous at all times, because he is a harder puncher than Tendler and can finish the battle with a single blow. He has been working hard. Every morning he is out on the road and in the afternoon starts out with shadow boxing two three-minute rounds, punches the bag three rounds and then boxes anywhere from five to eight rounds. He was to have worked with Johnny Wilson, the middleweight champion, but John had to go home to Boston. "Willie will give Tendler all he has, and I am confident that will be enough to win.

A ND now," continued Doc as he raised an im-perious finger at a passing taxi-cheater, "let's go to the ball game and find out why the Yankees are almost in first place."

EPISODE III

The Polish Grounds

Some 12,000 persons either quit work early or didn't have any work to quit, for they were draped all over the stands, getting an eyeful of the contest between the Yanks and Detroit. It was a great game, but some of the scenes had been lifted bodily from Shibe Park. Connie should get sore and make the Yanks stop stealing his stuff.

The opposing teams were pretty decent about it, because neither side scored while we were absent. Then they put on a couple of more scoreless stanzas and afterward staged a Mackian skit. This was done perfectly and without a slip. First the Yanks won the ball game and then lost it. Even Babe Ruth couldn't help, although he inserted a triple in some inning and scored

This, according to Al Munro Elias, who always picks on strangers, was the twenty-second consecutive game the Babe had hit safely in, and his average for those contests was .420 or something like that.

Tyrus Cobb and his bum leg really won the battle, for Tyrus was asked to get out of a box seat in the fifth inning, don a uniform and pinch-hit a single in the ninth. But that is neither here nor there.

THE moral of this episode is that other home clubs besides ours can lose ball games in full view of the weeping spectators.

EPISODE IV

Clubhouse at Polish Grounds

DABE RUTH walked into the clubhouse after the Bame. This is not unusual, because he always walks. He also walked from Wawa, Ca., a couple of nights ago after refusing to ride any more in his automobile. Babe's left wrist was bandaged and there was a big deut in his bankroll. When asked some personal questions by your correspondent he said: "I think baseball is a great game and will continue to play it. If I ever take a day off I am going to look for the guy who sent me that book entitled 'The Life and Battles of Barney Oldfield."

"No, I am not going to take up auto racing. The records of De Palma, Milton, Oldfield and others are perfectly safe so far as I am concerned. I have no further desire to go from town to town in the shortest space of time unless it is in the baggage coach ahead.

"I was breezing along the Baltimore pike on Wednesday morning, minding my own business, when another car, taking up all of the road, approached, - I swerved to one side to give him more room, hit a ditch and turned over. That's all. Know any one who wants to buy a FTER this narrow escape Cap Huston and A Manager Huggins ordered the athletes to discontinue automobile touring and when the team travels jump on a train with the others. No more narrow escapes for the Yank stars. They get hurt easily enough in the ball games.

CARMAN AND BEDELL BRING BIKE VICTORY TO AMERICA

United States Riders Take First and Second, Respectively, in International Forty-Mile Grind Against Italy. Ten Thousand See Races

A NOTHER victory for America in fessional race:

[International teams match, forty-mile prefessional race: Leader Time the long list of 1920 international sporting events was chalked up at the 20 Point Breeze Velodrome last night when Clarence Carman, the world's champion, and Menus Bedell, the grand old man of the bicycle game, carried the Stars and Stripes to a triumph over Vincenzo Maddona and George Colombatto, representing Italy, in a fortymile motorpaced race.

More than 10,000 persons saw the two American riders finish first and second, gaining eight points for the United States. Maddona and Colombatto rode gamely to the end, but were forced to take third and fourth places, respectively. In justice to the Italians it must be stated that both were handicapped by tire and motor trouble.

Paced by the peerless Jimmy Hunter, Carman rode the forty miles in the remarkable time of 52 minutes and 58 seconds, which is approximately forty-five miles an hour. Never once in the long grind did his front wheel leave the motor. He was out in front at the very start and led Bedell to the finishing line by four leave the motor. line by four laps. If Carman had carried on at his average speed he would have cracked the record for an hour's race. He will have a chance to get the mark in the Brassard classic tomorrow

The arena was packed to overflowing by the largest crowd that ever attended a bicycle event in this city. Every seat was taken and the arena held more than 1000 of those who were too late to get In one of the most thrilling match sprint races ever staged, Willie Spencer, the Canadian champion, scored a straight heat victory over Orlando Piani, the Italian titleholder. It was a race of brain as well as brawn for in both heats the athletes jockeyed for positions so long that once they stood still during the race for as long as two minutes. As evidence of this, it took them more than four minutes to finish the second heat. Junior Walthour Impresses

Scraps About Scrappers

Now it develops that a cnampion-ship match between Georges Carpentier and Jack Dempsey may not be held until some time in 1921. It has been learned definitely that the Frenchman is signed to an iron-clad contract by Charles B. Cochran, of London, for a match with Dempsey, and the British promoter has until December 31, 1920. in which to get the signature of the American for a bout with Carpentier. After that date the Frenchman will be at liberty to box Dempsey anywhere. That a Dempsey-Carpentier match never will be held abroad is assured, because the champion has announced time and again he never would leave the United States to box. All of whis means that it will be a long, long while before the European title-holder and the world's champ get together.
