Nancy Wynne Tells of Some Who Will Not Come Out This Season-She Discusses the Flagg-Sage

Wedding in Southampton

Y is coming out next year, and who is not, that it seems to me wise to re-mark those who are not to make their dout as well as those who are. For in-dout as well as those who are. For in-tance. I have heard several times that Alberts Reath is to be presented. In the first place. Alberta is just about seventeen, and there is no iden of her making her debut. Instead she will go abroad and finish her studies. Alberta, who is the danghter of the her Dr. Benjamin B. Reath, and whose mother was Miss Florence Pancoast, is wery pretty girl, with curling light rown hair, sparkling brown 'eyes and prely coloring. She has had an awfully god time at the dancing classes and other parties, for I have noticed her many a time, but she does not seem at other parties, for a nive not seem at many a time, but she does not seem at all the type that cares only for amuse-ment. She is splendidly educated, having studied abroad for several years before the war, and her French is beau-

ind. She is an unusual type, exceptionally sweet, and will undoubtedly be a great success when she does make her debut, which will probably be in the following

HEAR that Ellen Lloyd, daughter

I HEAR that Ellen Lloyd, daughter of the Stacy Lloyds, will not come est next year either. She is around seventeen, and her parents have wisely decided to wait another year. She will ge to Europe to study for a year, too. Klen's mother was Miss Eleanor Mor-ris, asister of Mrs. Trenchard Newbold and "Buck" Morris. Eleanor's first rousin, Rhoda Morris, was a debutante of the last season. She and the two Wurts girls, Eleanor and Rosamoud, have gone abroad this summer with their ant. Mrs. Edward McCullough. That is, she's the Wurts girls' auut, and she is a sister of Rhoda's stepfather, so I suppose Rhoda calls her Aunt Ethel, too.

Mrs. Richard Stockton Hunter, of this city, is his great aunt, and Mr. Ned Robins, Mrs. Joseph Pennell and Mr. Thomas Robins are cousins. There are to be four bridesmaids at the wedding, Mrs. Richard F. Bab-cock, Fanny Baldwin. Katherine Emmet and Marion White, all of them New Yorkars. New Yorkers.

New Yorkers. Lowrie Sage is an interesting person to New York as well as to Philadelphia. She is a granddaughter of Mr. Henry Sage, of New York, who, you remember, endowed Cornell University. And Governor Curtin, of Pennsylvania was a reat grandfather. It seems that both rties to the alliance have an enormous ationship of interesting and prom-

int persons in this city. I have never been to St. Andrew's Church at Southampton, but I any of the churches at the summer sort, so the wedding is bound to be a bretty sight. Good gracious! I read this over and I never said who Lowrie's parents are. They are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sage, of New York New York.

T WAS walking through the City Hall one day last week, expecting to cross at the Broad and Juniper side, when suddenly I saw a policeman raise his whistle to his lips and blow for all he was worth. Like a flash, the trolleys. motors, bicycles, pedestriaus, carts, horses n' everything stopped. There was something rather excited about the policeman's manner, and the stopping of the traffic seemed so sudden I began to wonder, and then I heard a little ripple of audible smiles about me. If the ripple of audible similes about me. I followed the crowd's gaze and there, if you please, sailing across the street entirely by herself on a small kiddy car, came a wee tot of three years. On she ding along with a little fat leg on either side, smiling in perfect abandon up into the tall policeman's face.

And so we all stood, pedestrians, trolleys, motortrucks, limousines, tour-ing cars, bicycles, horses and wagons, till the small maid and the small car eached the curb, and a frightened mother and nurse tore across after her. NANCY WYNNE.

SHOPPING IS AN ART WHICH RE-QUIRES THOUGHT, PRACTICE AND TIME

-THAT IS WHY IT IS AN ECONOMY OF

You really must see the new ensemble of Chertak-Wenger millinery now being shown at the House of Wenger, 1229 Walnut street-it is both indescribable and irresistible-ranging from a summery hat of palepink organdie, wreathed in roses and foliage of the very same material and the very same hue, to an ecclesiastical little fall model of geranium duvetyn appliqued with hand-painted blue taffeta outlined in gold thread. There are hats for every occasion during late summer and early fall. Upon the floor above Mr. Wenger is yet taking orders for fall furs at summer prices—which means a considerable saving. Also, there is the new cooled fit-ting room, so that model fur garments can be tried on in fall and winter temperatures.

L. Stone & Co., at 1306. Walnut street, is having one of the most interesting sales of the season-every summer dress is reduced emphatically to clear the shop for new fall goods, and many a garment is under half the original price. "Why." said one patron, "you're fairly giving things away!" And it is almost that. There are sheer and dainty frocks to be had at $15, $25 and $35 instead of the former prices from $35 to $75. And you should see the capes, coats and dolmans for $35, $50 and $100 which were $75, $110 and $225. Satin frocks, too, suitable for late summer and early fall are selling for $50, though, their original prices were as high as $125.

All smart Philadelphia women are familiar with Dann millinery to be had at 1506 Chestnut street-exclusive chapeaux that include many copies of importations, importations themselves, and Dann's own originations. Therefore, my bargain-hunting soul delights in telling you that this week every hat in the Dann shopwhich means all the newest late summer and early fall inspirations-is subject to a 25% discount off the tag price. Of course, this makes the prices ridiculously low, considering the quality of the materials and the excellence of the workmanship. Do you know that a Dann hat is never heavy, not even when it is made of duvetyn or velvet-but that is only one of the virtues of a Dann chapeau.

An increasing number of women are singing the praises of the permanent wave, and Denny & Denny, Inc., located at 1513 Walnut street, one of the last reliable hairdressing establishments to approve it, because of waiting for it to pass the experimental stage, are said to give the wave in its nerfection. It is a wonderful summer comfort, as well as a winter luxury, and costs from $18 to $40, depending upon the number of curls. Vacationists particularly appreciate the permanent wave, as rain or salt water but increase its beauty, just as in the case of naturally curly hair. Just now is an excellent time to make an appointment for this process, as the experts are not so rushed as early in the season.
