WORKS IN ATTEMPT TO "STEAL" A'S PLAYERS BY THE STEEL LEAGUE APPEAR TO HAVE GONE RUSTY

SOMEBODY IS ALWAYS TAKING THE JOY OUT OF LIFE BALL CLUB MAY BE DOWN, BUT NEVER OUT," SAYS MACK AS HE SENDS INDIANS A WAY DEFEATED

"A BALL club may be down, but it's never out," murperspiration of his brow and smaled a wan smile at the broup of visitors in his office, "I just went through a bard afternoon's work and I'm glad it's over. It was a hard ball game to win."

Connie felt much better when the final figures were hung up and the park closed for the night. There wasn't any chance for his youngsters to toss away the game, for It would not be according to the rules. He had squirmed and fumed in the seventh inning when, after the A's apparently had the game all sewed up by the score of 3 to 1, Naylor uncorked a wild heave which permitted two counters to count and put a deadlock on the score.

Then in the eighth he witnessed a weird, woozy play by Dykes which had every appearance of a delayed pass in football. Johnston was on second, one out, and Uhle hit a sharp grounder to third. Jimmy fielded the ball and held it while Johnston rushed toward the bag and then stopped. Instead of trying to get Doc. Dykes, for some reason or other, threw to first too late to get the runner. That one play paved the way for what seemed to be the winning run and Counte was ready to call it a day.

However, a batting rally, aided by Uhle's wildness, shoved over a pair of markers in the other portion of the eighth and an unexpected victory was registered by the ne folks. Joseph Dugan, the former slugger, was reusible, for he stepped up in a pinch and delivered a rousting single which allowed the runners to score,

The loss of the game was a hard blow to the Indians, for the Yankees lost to St. Louis and they had a chance to gain a full game on the runners up. There was a lot hard baseball played in the closing lenings and the spectators got their money's worth. Belated railies by the home club are so unusual that they are quite in-

AFTER absorbing the defeat the Clerchind club departed for Boston, where they will meet the Red Sox today. The St. Louis Browns will appear here this afternoon in two separate and ditinct performances, the first to begin at 1:30 p. m.

A's Players Deny They Will Jump

COME of the joy of yesterday's victory was taken away when Connie learned that an official of the Stee League had received the signed contracts of Dugan, Witt and Rommel and the trio would play with the Lebanon club today. The players denied this and assured the boss they would not beat it, but there still is a feeling of unrest at Shile Park.

They say the Steel League has been quite active of Inte and much money has been offered to several players to jump the Athleties. According to reports, Raiph Perkins, one of the classiest catchers in the league and who has a bright future before him, has been receiving telegrams every day from outlaw clubs, offering big in-ducements to change his uniform. Perkins, however, is too wise to fall for anything like that and turned all of the offers down. In fact, he has ignored them.

There is a rule in the major leagues which states that an jumping his contract to join the outlaws will be blacklisted for five years. This is strictly adhered to and sone of the jumpers has been taken back in the fold. Walter Kinney tried to get back after his flying visit to Franklin, but there was nothing doing.

Ball players are scarce this year and will continue to be scarce for some time. It is hard to get talent even in the minor leagues. The other day a representative of one of the small North Carolina clubs was looking for a fair pitcher and was ready to pay him $350 a month, That's a good salary in the bushes, but the job isn't

The outlaw leagues also are having trouble, and per haps that is the reason for the sudden activity.

Connie Mack, however, is not worrying. "I would hate to see the boys leave," he said, "but if they ever thing like that. When they go, they will go for good so far as I am concerned."

"GAN says he is going to stick around, and so does Witt, so it looks as if the statement issued yesterday was a trifle premature, or something like

R. Miller Back in Phils' Line-Up

RALPH MILLER, the kid third baseman of the Phils, is back on the job again after an absence of more than a week. He joined the ciub in St. Louis yesterday and was ready to get into action immediately. Miller was one of the finds of the year. He never was accused of having previous experience in the big leagues, unless that brand of baseball is played at Fort Wayne, 'He stepped into the big show, made good, and. while a trifle rough in spots, should develop into one of the best third sackers in the league,

When the club went on the road Miller complained of feeling ill and fell into a slamp. He had been gassed while serving in France and said his lungs were troubling him. Cravath decided a vacation would do the boy good, he was sent home for a work. Now that he is back, in his old-time form, the Phils will make a better showing. The trouble with Miller was he worked too hard. When the Phils were playing here he was on the field every morning, doing twice as much work as any other piager. He made up his mind to make good at third base, and constantly was practicing around that bag. The Oil City Club is making bids for Gene Paulette, our Phils' first sucker, but so far the transaction has been only bidding. Gene is still at first base for Gavey Cravath.

THE Phils have been losing some hard-luck games on the vestern trip, but have hopes of putting on a winning streak. It will do them no harm

Ruth Is Bigger Attraction Than Ever

Now that Babe Ruth has equaled his home-run record, he will be a bigger drawing eard than ever before. The fans will turn out in droves to see it broken every day. Ruth has been a paying investment for the Yanks. He was billed like a circus, tales of his prowess were spread broadenst, and in spite of this the big boy made good. He seldom was given a good ball to hit at, but managed to pile up home runs just the same.

The New York club now is enjoying its most prosperous season. Attendance records are being broken in every American League city, and at the Peio Grounds they have forgotten all about the Giants. The Yanks are the big favorites in Gotham and the matinees are vell attended.

Every once in a while an argument starts as to who s the most valuable ball player in the American League this year. That means a comparison of Ruth. Cobb, Sister and Eddie Collins.

Cobb, of course, is out of it, and Collins, while still the greatest second baseman in the game, never has attracted many customers at the gate. Sisler also is a great player, but lacks the personality of a great star. This is not a slam at the wonderful first baseman, for easily stands head and shoulders above the others in either lengue. Still, he doesn't compare as a drawing card with Ruth or Speaker now or Ty Cobb before he almost an era or an enoch. Jeffries knocked out Fitzsimmons in 1898, or 1899. His next big fight was in 1910, when he was beaten.

Rt TH is a slugger. He is likely to break up the game at any time with a long hit, but outside of his batting he is just an ordinary player. Spraker is a good hitter, a great outfielder, a brainy manager and a sensational player. At the same time, a manager would have a hard time in picking one of the tico if he had the opportunity.

After winning from Jeffries, Jack Johnson's big fight came with Willard in 1915. Willard's big engagement came with Dempsey in 1919. Note the span between these battles of big interest—1898, 1910, 1915, 1919—four in twenty-one years, a five-year gap between upon an average.

Dempsey may have two or three minor engagements to face, But it may be two or three years before he has a worked up to the recent Toledo pitch, where any considerable part of the nation is aroused as it was a year ago.

A match with Carpentier would arouse this interest, but no one clse is apable of producing the dramatic estable of the producing the dramatic estapable of producing the dramatic estapabl Jeffries knocked out Fitzsimmons in 1898, or 1899. And that is to build a heaver penalty against any sort of pass, intentional or otherwise. C. E. Van Vleeck, Jr., the old Yale pitcher, suggests that the batsman be given two bases where the nitcher fails to get one strike out of four attempts. This would be a big help in breaking up any intentional pass. And a pitcher who can't get one strike over the plate out of four trials should suffer a double penalty, anyway. If he should get one strike over and the batsman missed it, he could then go about his business of walking the slugger in a crisis. But the heavy hitter would at least have that one crack at it.

This latter suggestion seems to be a first-class solution of the problem-one at least worth consideration. (Copyright, 1920 All rights reserved.)

New York, July 17.—Jack Dempsey, champion heavyweight of the world, is in town to listen a while and later to box. In the meantime Dempsey may take n Wild William Brennan for a second time. Dempsey knocked Wild William for the traditional goal once before, but Wild William would be willing to be knocked for the same distance again

What stands in the way of this return match is the fact that Jack Kearns, manager for Dempsey, believes that the champion should have at least $100,000 every time he dons the mis, and promoters are wondering about the chances of getting that much in at the gate for a Dempsey-Brennan bout.
