TSN'T it strange to what extremes ISN'T it strange to what extremes a girl will go in order to vamp some member of the other sex, for whom she has set her cap?
When Constance Talmadge goes "In Search of a Sinner," her newest John Emerson-Anita Loos production, which will be shown at the Stanley next week, she dons a typical "vamp" costume of the "standing-room-only" variety and walks into her victim's apartment, with the intention of being noticed at least. Whether she accomplished her purpose or not is another question. Needless to say, her intentions were earnest, in her latest whirligigs Miss Talmadge is supported by Radcliffe Fellows, Marjorie Milton and Corless Giles.

JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD, author James OLIVER CURWOOD, author of "The Courage of Marge O'Doone," which will be shown in picture form at the Palace next week, has reached popularity through his realistic novels and stories of the snow-covered mountains and waste places of the Canadian Northwest. His stories are in demand for motion pictures, and have a regue with the film public. Mr. Gurwood is one of the best-known writers of wild animal and north country stories. Three pictures made from his recent novels are "Back to God's Country" and "The River's End," both of which scored a tremendous success when shown in Stanley Co. of America theatres recently, and "The Courage of Marge O'Doone."
Vitagraph was one of the first producers to appreciate the value of Mr. Curwood's stories for photoplays, and already has given five of them to the screen.

Mr. Curwood is a descendant on his father's side from Captain Marryat, one of the famous novelists of his day.

DEPENDENT of its other claims to INDEPENDENT of its other claims to attention, Cecil B. De Mille's "Old Wives for New," which will, be shown at the Arcadia next week, will prove an attraction to women because of the richness and beafty of the gowns worn by the women players. The gowns form as fine a display of the creation of fashionable modistes as has ever been shown in motion pictures.

The gowns were chosen and arranged by Alpharetta Hoffman, costume director of the Famous Players-Lasky studie. Many of the gowns are Parisian creations, and their cost, it is said amounted to much more than the average feature picture costs in its entirety.

OUISE LOVELY, who plays the heroine in "The Orphan," William Farnum's latest picture, which will be seen at the Victoria next week, has a very intelligent fluffy little white dog, Chips.

There is nothing this canine pet likes better than to accompany his mistress to the studio and watch her make up. Having done this for several months, the fluify poodle, according to Miss Lovely, has amassed enough intelligence to distinguish between the good and bad make-up.

Let Miss Lovely tell it in her own words:

words:
"Chips has been my devoted friend so long that I do not know what I would do without him When I am making up for my part Chips will sit on a chair near me, watching every move. Really,
I believe he has something more than the wast animal instinct. usual animal instinct.

THE art of the stage "make-up" THE art of the stage "make-up" reached a new state of perfection when Marjorie Rambeau, in "The Fortune Teller," succeeded in changing herself from a young and beautiful woman of wealth and refinement to a dissipated, ugly old hag. How she did it is to he seen in the screen version of the play next week at the Chestnut Street Opera House.

Spiritualism (some prefer to term it superstition) forms an important part of the plot. Psychic phenomena are realistically illustrated. There is also a tender romance and a touching revelation of mother love.

VALUE as a historical work is claimed for the W. H. Clune cinema-operatic spectacle, "Ramona," to be presented for two weeks only at the Chestnut Street Opera House, beginning August 2. It depicts one of the interesting chapters of white settlement and dominance of the North American continent.

The portrayal of the wooling of "Ramona," daughter of Angus Phail, the Scotchman, and his Indian squaw, by Alessandro, the Indian, is a drama of thrill as well as an enthralling love story. [TALUE as a historical work is claimed

Lifelike depiction of the events and incidents in the lives of the characters in Helen Hunt Jackson's celebrated book is claimed for "Ramona."

Photographic achievements are said to have been surpassed in picturing the splendor of the beautiful mountains and valleys of California in which the scenes are laid.

COTHE IDOL DANCER," the picture which will be the feature at the Stanley the week of July 26 is the production which nearly cost the life of its moted director, D. W. Griffith, and many members of the cast. There should be an added thrill to those who remember the story as it was printed in the newspapers all over the country just before last Christmas, for practically every character who appears on the screen character who appears on the screen played a part in the mishap.

"The Idol Dancer" is Griffith's very latest—a colorful enthralling story of far-off southern seas, of a wonderful love affair and wild adventure.

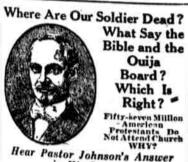

"DURNING DAYLIGHT," Jack Lon-BURNING DAYLIGHT." Jack London's novel, has been turned into a motion picture and will be presented at the Victoria the week of July 25. "Burning Daylight" is the name by which Elam Harnish is known in the Yukon, where, as a prospector, he discovers a gold field that makes him a milliomatre.

Marjorie Rambeau's Career

Marjorie Rambeau's Career
Marjorie Rambeau, emotional actress of stage and screen, made her dramatic debut at the age of sixteen. An engagement with Morosco followed, in which she was starred in "Merely Mary Ann" in Los Angeles. She toured the country with Willard Mack in "Kick
In," and subsequently was signed in "Cheating Cheaters." She had success in "The Eyes of Youth," and starred in the stage production of "The Fortune Teller." Miss Rambeau is an accomplished equestrienne and dancer.

Music Treat for Colonial Patrons

Music lovers in Germantown are promised a treat vocally next week at the Colonial, where, as an added feature, Marguerite Palcho, who scored when she appeared earlier in the year with the Philadelphia Operatic Society, will be heard in new selections. Miss Palcho, a soprano, made her debut at the Bellevue-Stratford June a year ago, whese pupils of Mrs. Phillips-Jenkins gave a concert. After that she took a position as usher in a local theatre that she might hear opera and study the slingers. She made her first hit in the winter, when she sang the role of "The Juggler Maid" in "The Feast of the Little Lanterns," under the direction of Wassill Leps. He chose her for one of the leading parts in the operatic society's presentation of "Boccacio" and later she was moved up to the leading role.

Vacation time from the legitimate theatre often permits the appearance of entertainers elsewhere. The management of the Walton Roof is therefore able to present a dancer whose work has attracted much attention, Pearl Regay. She was taught from a child to dance. A new dance will be one in which fans are used to carry out the story of a lost prince in search of hits beloved. Nina Payne will present a somewhat different and eccentric dance.

You're Invited Out to the Kitchen

The next time you're stopping at the Pennsylvania, I wish you'd ask to be shown through the kitchens. They're well worth seeing.

Not only because they are the biggest hotel kitchens in the world. That's something, of course, and we're duly proud of it. But because we don't know of any better, more efficient, more interesting and attractive workshop of the sort anywhere. Cleanliness-you wouldn't believe until you saw them how clean and bright and wholesome kitchens can be that are turning out six to ten thousand meals a day. And that higher figure is a good many thousands under their capacity.

What we're talking about now is what we call the "main kitchens." There are also kitchens-separate establishments, in other parts of the building-for the Roof Garden Restaurants, and the Ballrooms and Banquet Rooms. The big Main Kitchens are the most interesting, because they include the Bakeshop, Ice Cream Room, Butcher Shop and other special facilities for the large-scale housekeeping we do at this largest hotel in the world.

Come any time-even at the rush hours, when everything's at its busiest. This invitation is made without reservations.

A memo just came to my desk with figures on one day's consumption of bread in the hotel: 25,700 rolls, 455 loaves French bread, and 160 loaves (6 pounds each) of sandwich bread. That will give you an idea of the scale on which the Kitchens work.
