Nancy Wynne Talks of Next Year's Debutantes-She Hears of a New Kind of Rummage Sale—The Gilbert Mathers to Take Horseback Trip

VIRGINIA CARTER is to be intro- are spending the summer at Bar Har-Vinced next fall, as you know, and ber grandmother, Mrs. Edwin N. Benson, of Chestnut Hill, will give the tea, son, of Chestnut Carter, of Bryn grand Mrs. Carter, who was Miss. Rev. George Calvert Carter, of Bryn Mawr, and Mrs. Carter, who was Miss Mary W. Benson. She is a consin of Mary Law and of Ellen and Eugenia

Virginia is tall and has brown nair, which she arranges very simply and becomingly. She is very generally liked becomingly. She is very generally liked and will doubtless have a very good time when the balls and all the rest of the doings start. She and her sister Mary are at present at Spring Lake with their grandmother, and in August they will all go to Hot Springs, Va.,

TIAVE you heard about the rummage HAVE you heard about the rummage sale which all the women on the Main Line are arranging for the fall? It's remarkable in that they have actually a new idea as to the rummage, for what on earth do you think they have decided to call it? A NO-TRASH rummage sale. Furthermore, it is to be a joint affair, and the women on the committee of the Home of the Good Shepherd at Rosemont, the Bryn Mawr Hospital Social Service, the Federation of Churches and the Conestoga Community Center are all to join forces and contribute to the mammoth sale.

It is to be held in the Bryn Mawr for Remember the no-trash end of it. because lately there has been so much trash as well as good things at the rummages that a great many have sort of got "fed up" on them. This time it is going to be different, owever, and me, I'll be there. I'll be there.

Mrs. Charles Sinnickson is to be Mrs. Charles Sinnickson is to be chairman of the affair, and she will have on her committee Mrs. Alexander Brown, Mrs. Clarence W. Dolan, Mrs. Thomas Newhall, Mrs. Harry M. Shaw, Mrs. Alfred Lowry, Mrs. Dunn and Mrs. Frank Tracy Griswold. As soon as I hear more about it I'll tell you, and when it will be an' everything. when it will be an' everything.

THE Gilbert Mathers are about to I take a wonderful trip. They are leaving this week for Glacier National Park and are going to spend several weeks out there on a horseback riding trip. Doesn't that sound ideal? Far away from the toil and bustle of the city and the numerous people who are city and the numerous people who are always 'round, fairly living in the open wearing riding clothes, free, easy and comfortable. Chat's the life, I should say; for a few weeks it is, anyway.

Gladys Mather is so sweet looking with her fair complexion and bright eyes and pretty gold-shot hair. She is not anything like as tall as her sister, Mrs. Victor Mather, and yet they look more alike, I think, than Mrs. Patterson, the third sister, though those three bear a Wyers, and her daughter Miss Morrors. third sister, though those three bear a strong resemblance to each other. The other two. Mrs. Beggs and Mrs. Lee. Mr. and Mrs. Jo

A Station yesterday morning perhaps you saw the little children and their one summer and if ever there was a good work undertaken in this city it is that.

Paradise Fann is way, way out beyond Paradise Fann is way, way out beyond Paoli, beyond Fraser in the most perfect country. There's a stream where the children can swim and paddle, and there's the most wonderful old spring house. It had watermelons lying in it the day I was there and, oh, boy! I sat on the farm-house porch and ate some of said watermelon. And the house where the women and children stay, has a lovely his general room with a talking mabig general room with a talking mabig general room with a talking ma-chine. And there's a garden for the boys to work in; and there are hills, and dales, and cows, and chickens, and pigs; and it's just wonderful. Indeed
