Nancy Wynne Talks of the Scenario Which Miss Thayer Has Written and Which Will be Presented by Members of the Society World

I AM awfully interested in the sce-nario which Molly Thayer has writ-ten and in which a lot of the girls are taking part. You remember the one that was gotten up several years ago for the benefit of the Charlotte Cushman (Jub and was given out at the Griscom place in Haverford? Well, this one has a number of like performers, that is all amateurs, and the girls are mem-

Peggy and Polly Thayer, Peggy Dallett and Elizabeth Trotter are the fair heromes, and the men who are taking heromes, Saunders Henry Coxe, Ted Browning, Saunders Henry Coxe, Ted Browning, Saunders Meade and little Calvert Cheston.

The picture itself should be beautiful, let alone the interest surrounding it, in let alone the interest surrounding it, in knowing the actors and actresses. For knowing the scenes are laid at Doctor you see, the scenes are laid at Doctor you see, the place in Chestnut Hill.

MOLLY THAYER has a great deal Molly Thayer has a great deal work so far, though is her first scenario. Remember her amusing little book, "Advice to Will-He Debutantes," which she published the year Dorothy Newbold Ritchie came out, and which was dedicated to her? Dorothy and Molly are first cousins.

And she has written several serious articles for the magazines. Quite some articles for the magazines. Quite some budding talent, though I don't see how on earth she has time to do it, for she is always on the tennis grounds. You know from her wonderful color that she is an out-of-doors girl.

HAVE you seen the Thayers' house that Twenty-second and Locust streets, which they fixed up this year and lived in until they moved to the Adiondacks for the summer months? They painted it gray, and the shutters and window frames are all dark blue. Then they have planted privet hedge on Twenty-second street and on the Locust street side. It's unusual for a town house, and very attractive looking. The Russell Thayers, I mean, Molly Thayer's parents.

OPEAKING of the Thayers makes me of think of the Newbold and Dixon connections and that I heard that Mr. John Newbold and his daughter Virginia and Mr. Percy Keating and Lindley Johnson, Jr., are all taking the same at the country home of her parents near Willow Grove.

He swept his hat from his head and said: "I've always heard there was safety in numbers; may I stroll along with you?"

The indignant woman turned and looked at him from head to foot. "You certainly may not," said she. "You just stroll along by yourself about as fast as you can go." and, needless to say, he strolled. NANCY WYNNE.

There is Economy in Buying Coffee Packed in Tins

Look at a can of Morning Sip Coffee and then at a package of bag-packed coffee to realize why it is economical to buy Morning Sip. Bag-packed coffee loses much of its aroma and strength because the package is not air-tight. Morning Sip Coffee is packed in tightly sealed tins that keep all the strength and aroma in the coffee. That is why Morning Sip Coffee makes better coffee with half the quantity you ordinarily use.

Morning Sip sells rapidly and your grocer's stock is continually being replenished with tins fresh from the roasters. Try Morning Sip—and use only half the usual quantity to a cup. Everybody in the family will vote their Morning Sip a regular cup of coffee.
