

Victim Identified in Trunk Murder

Nothing now has developed to substantiate the theory that the body might be that of Josephine Dan, of Cannonburg, near Washington, Pa.

Birmingham, Ala., July 26.—(By A. P.)—A photograph and detailed description of Allan A. Tatum, a printer employed here, together with a statement by him, was sent today to the Detroit police by the local detective bureau as a result of Tatum's declaration that he believes the woman whose body was found in a trunk in New York was Katherine Jackson, of Starkville, Miss.

Tatum was told by friends that Jackson had been mentioned in connection with the trunk murder mystery. He went to police headquarters and volunteered the information that he was acquainted with the Jackson woman, whom he had met in this city; that he had gone to Detroit to see her at her own invitation and that he knew she had married a man named Leroy.

Tatum said he had never met Leroy, but that the young woman had told him her husband's name was Leroy. The statements of Tatum gave rise to a police theory that Leroy had discovered his wife's interest in Tatum, that he had killed her and then shipped the body to "A. A. Tatum" to incriminate the man whom he thought to be his rival.

No charge has been placed against Tatum and he has been allowed his liberty. Information received here from Detroit employees at the Browning-Francis Clothing Co. now operating over gift sales during the last year in an effort to ascertain who purchased the check suit of clothes found in the trunk with the body, made out a New York express office. Each suit sold by this firm is recorded, the check being taken off and filed with the name of the buyer.

Moultrie, Ga., July 26.—Mrs. J. C. Butler, of Sale City, near here, telegraphed New York police for a description of the body of the young woman found there in a trunk shipped from Detroit. Mrs. Butler said she fears that the woman is her daughter.

The published description of the body, Mrs. Butler said, corresponds closely to that of her daughter, who she asserted, left Valdosta early in June and has not been heard from since. Mrs. Butler has reason to believe her daughter went to Detroit.

York, July 26.—(By A. P.)—Mrs. Joseph Kincher, of the Hyde Park district, announced last night her intention of going to New York today to view the body of a woman found in a trunk, doubting that it may be that of her daughter, Mary.

The girl, who was fourteen years old but, according to her mother, looked much older, left home on Monday, 23 last and has not been heard from since. A young man who roomed at the GENERAL BARON WRANGLER, Anti-Bolshevik commander in southeastern Russia, whose surrender to the Soviet forces is demanded as a condition of the proposed peace conference in London.

Kincher home disappeared at the same time.

New York, July 26.—(By A. P.)—A cancelled check for $6,78, bearing the endorsement of "E. Leroy," was produced yesterday by Andrew J. Bennie, the expressman, who on Saturday furnished the police with correspondence by which they expected to establish identity of the woman whose mutilated body was found here in a trunk from Detroit.

Bennie said he sent the check to "E. Leroy" after receiving a letter from the trunk signed "E. J. Woods," directing him to forward a trunk stored here.

Woods sent him $25 to pay a $10 check and the express charges of the trunk. Woods told him, Bennie said, to remove the initials "E. J. W." with which the trunk was marked. The name "E. J. Woods" was that used by a South American man, Bennie said, he first knew as "E. J. Fernandez."

After reading the trunk, Bennie said he sent the money remaining from the $25 sent by Woods. This was $6.78 check, and Bennie sent it in a letter addressed to "E. Leroy" at the Detroit Y. M. C. A. The letter was returned unopened, and having been called for, Bennie said he then omitted it and later the check was returned, bearing the endorsement of Leroy and the stamp of the Detroit Y. M. C. A., where it was cashed.

LEGION MEN PUSH CHAIRS

Former Service Men Replacing the Shore Strikers Atlantic City, July 26.—Husky young American Legion men are helping to break the backbone of Atlantic City's rolling-chair strike on the Boardwalk. Scores of them, easily distinguished by the little bronze buttons on their coat lapels, propelled richly attired, utterly content hotel guests, some of whom had forewarned their favorite diversion for more than a week, despite the presence of policemen at the chair stations, in perfect safety and fully as efficiently as the 600 striking veterans among the professional chair-pushers were back on the job.

No one seemed to know how many of the American Legion boys are in the chair pushing game. There may be a score of them, some of the managers said, or many more. The fact that any of them are in the administration probably drove to put an end to the strike began two weeks ago yesterday, was said to be not intentional, but quite accidental.

This statement from the chair syndicate heads was borne out by several of the ex-fighting men who tramped briskly at the pushing handles of chairs with smiling riders. Some of them knew nothing about the strike or its objectives.

TWO DIE IN HOTEL FIGHT

Greek Shoots Wife Who Fled With Countryman and Is Killed Washington, July 26.—(By A. P.)—Two persons—a man and a woman—were dead and a second man is reported dying as a result of a haphazard revolver battle yesterday in a cheap hotel in the downtown section of the capital.

Philip Thiosphitis, of Norfolk, Va., according to a police report, found his wife here Saturday with a fellow native of Greece after he had traced the couple through several southern cities. Thiosphitis and his countryman, Thomas Apostolis, on meeting, agreed to make some disposition of their conflicting claims to the woman until yesterday.

On returning to the hotel Thiosphitis and Apostolis with a hatchet, Apostolis wounded the hatchet from him and mortally wounded him. Thiosphitis, however, still retained strength to seize a revolver and kill his wife and inflict wounds on Apostolis, which the police expect to result in his death.

SEEK MISSING PAIR IN LAKE

Searchers Drag Bottom in Hope of Finding Bodies of Boy and Girl Peery, N. Y., July 26.—Searchers with grappling tools dragged Silver lake last night for the bodies of Ruth Rampf, aged fifteen, and Harold Rich, aged seventeen, both of this place, who have been missing since they went out in a rowboat Saturday night.

The overturned boat and the boy's cravat were found floating on the lake yesterday.

Cox Must Boost Own "Circulation"

Rides at 6:30 A. M. Sunday morning he went out for a horseback ride at 6:30. His secretary, newspaper correspondents, whom it would be hardly fair to characterize here, all declined his invitation to ride with him, all except one young correspondent.

When his riding companion turned up at Trailhead at 9:30 a. m. the governor said apologetically, "I'm quite afraid that this is early for you to be up." "Oh, no! Not at all," replied his guest. "I am often up at this time in the morning; this is the time I usually think about going to bed." The governor plays as he works—hard—and so as not to let his play interfere with his work he plays early.

For the big job of putting himself over with the American public the governor has been quality at least—a tremendous capacity to work. His secretary, Charles Morris, brought out to him from Columbus Saturday several volumes which he evidently intended to use in working up his speech of acceptance. The governor took them not negligently, as one glad to put off the evil hour when he must dig into them, but with the absorbed manner of one who was never far away from his work.

At fifty, having spent the energy that is necessary to accumulate $2,000,000, he still has tremendous energy and ambition. He is still beginning life. He has a new wife and a young baby. If he had been defeated for the governorship in 1918 it is generally understood here he had made his plans to invade the larger publishing field of New York city, and since his first election to the governorship in 1912, his friends say, he has had his eye upon the presidency, or rather upon the nomination for the presidency.

The job of winning the nomination for the presidency is so big that it is hard to look beyond it. Governor Cox has the nomination now, and he has to find out what to do with it, now that he has it. He is like a man who, as a result of his energy and ambition, has a revolver aimed at his head and has suddenly translated to a sphere of activity wholly beyond all his previous experience. He has not got his feet on the ground as a candidate. He does not know how he will make a success of his new opportunity. He does not know how he will gain circulation. He reached the governorship and if became necessary to exercise restraint. His quarrels may not always have been just, but they were popular and they cost him little, it is said, in liberal suit verdicts. Dayton has a benevolent autocrat, J. H. Patterson, of the cash register company. The town profited by his benevolence, but resented his autocracy. Cox never tired of telling the community of his autocracy and the town bought Cox's paper and read it. That is not the whole story, but it is an outstanding feature of the story.

The penalty of having a sense of front-pieces in that people always question whether you will not yield to the temptation for sensationalism to reach them, and people do ask that question about Cox, especially the more conservative people, not loudly, as if it were an action surely to be expected, but doubtfully. His newspaper maker's instinct will help change the political psychology of the American people if he keeps himself in hand. No one else will keep him in hand. He is the master of the Democratic campaign. He alone will make it if it can be made.

The opinion here is that to make it is beyond the capacity even of a highly energetic and ambitious man. Politics aside, to say it again, how this highly energetic, resourceful, ambitious man meets this emergency is the most humanly interesting thing now before this country.

"A Pavement Roof!" WHEN you build a roof of machine-made, interlocking, overlapping tiles, they are big. They are strong. They are permanent. But in time it developed the defects of tile and shingle roofs, and in 1880 a wiser general idea was put into the old building from shingles damaged by taking off a board, stone laid and putting on a new TIN roof. For a century inventors have tried to find something as good as the tin roofing. Everything has been tried, from public to paving stones—but still the acroplane that sails over the tin roof of old Independence Hall, on its way to Washington, also circles before landing over the tin roof of the White House. There's nothing else that is better, and you want the BEST. The only roof that will tell you that you are safe is the NU-DURA-TIN. STANDARDIZED NU-DURA-TIN ROOFING
