

JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Talks About Gayety at Penllyn Country Club—Marriage of Interest Here to Take Place in Lenox, Mass., in September

WELL, I'm here to ask you—of course, I'm here for other reasons, too, but at present, I'm here principally to ask you—whether you ever saw two more glorious days in the latter part of July than Sunday and yesterday? And lots of people look at the Penllyn Country Club on Sunday for that is a most popular place now—days. You see everybody you know there, and everybody has a wonderful time. The tennis and polo and swimming to say nothing of tea, and there's always somebody you know at the table. Mrs. Gordon Hardwick, for instance, was pouring this week. She was Major Taylor just a few weeks (or is it months?) ago, and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Taylor were there, too.

Catharine Cox was there, having just come back from West Virginia where she has been spending part of the summer, and her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Toland—their engagement was announced not long ago—seemed to be enjoying themselves, and Gladys Fox, Elizabeth Fields, Dorothy Kly, Caroline, and Miss Cornelia Baskin evidently felt that it was a pretty nice place to be. And did I say Eleanor Davis? I should have. The Charles E. Ingersolls were there, and the John Baskins, Mr. and Mrs. Leidy and Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Cheston—and oh, ever so many people. It really is awfully nice up there.

BY THE WAY, I hear that Beatrice Clarke and George C. Thomas Remington, whose engagement was announced just a week ago, have decided to be married late in September. The marriage will take place at Fernbrook, Lenox, Mass., where Beatrice's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Shields Clarke, live. You know he is the son of W. Schuyler Volkmar, and a grandson of the late George C. Thomas. Mrs. Volkmar was Miss Sophie Thomas. He served in the navy during the war, and has been at Yale since then. Beatrice and her sister, Alma, have just returned to Lenox, after visiting Mrs. Volkmar at Lake Forest, Ill., where she is living now.

THE midsummer ball at the Casino in Narragansett Pier comes off this week. That's always an exciting event, and everybody goes. As usual, there are lots of Philadelphia people there. Mrs. W. Plunkett Stewart, of Haverford, and the William Townsend Wrights, of St. Davida, all the Morris, of course, and Mrs. Altemus and the Williams, of Philadelphia. Mr. and Mrs. F. B. are thinking of living in New York next year? Then there are plenty of other people up there, but, of course, I can't list them all. It's a funny thing the way you never can think of what you want to think of at the time you want to think of it?

ONE was standing on Chestnut street talking to two boys, one of whom had been walking with her when they met the other. While they stood there a third boy came across the street and spoke. He shook hands first with one boy and then with the other. During all the handshaking, introducing, smiling, bowing and how-do-you-doing, three carefully creased, carefully placed felt hats remained right slip where they had been put—on three slip leads.

Then the newcomer spoke to the girl and graciously twined his hat as he did so. They talked for a while, and then the girl and the first boy went on down the street. As they left all three boys lifted their hands, raised those carefully creased hats an inch off their sleek foreheads and twined them, carefully back again.

But then, of course, perhaps, they were in the army for so long that they have not completely out of the habit of raising their hats when they speak to anybody! Perhaps.

WILL CASE TESTIMONY ENDS
Decision Expected Soon on Assignment of Clement Estate

The final hearing in the proceeding instituted to test the validity of a scrap of paper purporting to be the will of Dr. Hayes August Clement, took place yesterday before Register Sheehan. The writing in question, which consists of nine words and leaves the entire estate of $20,000 to the widow, Mrs. E. Louis Clement, is alleged to be a forgery by Mrs. Ruth A. Clement, mother of the testator. The estate is worth about $40,000.

Mrs. Jane Audenried Fallor, of 1621 Walnut street, a sister of Judge Charles Y. Audenried, testified that she had known Doctor Clement for twenty-five years. In conversation she had with him in the fall of 1919 he referred to his wife, who was seriously ill at the time, and said that if she lived she would receive all his estate.

W. Horace Hepburn, a member of the bar, stated that while he was being professionally attended by Doctor Clement, in Philadelphia, in 1918, the question of wills was discussed and the latter stated that he had drafted his will and left everything to his wife. He told the witness he wanted him to look over the will to see that it was drawn in legal form, but he never submitted the writing to him. This concluded the taking of testimony. The attorneys will submit briefs to the register and that official will announce his decision in a short time.

Try this method of eliminating carbon

Have crank case drained, cleaned and filled with correct type of Sunoco Motor Oil. Sunoco is free from elements that cause carbon deposit.

Carbonization of engines is caused chiefly by improper lubrication—the use of oils inferior in quality or wrong in type (body).

Inferior oils break down quickly in the explosion chambers. Their thick, gummy residues cling to the cylinder walls, piston heads, etc., and form hard carbon deposit—the cause of engine knocks, pre-ignition, loss of power and a host of other similar troubles.

The wrong type of oil will not provide and maintain a piston-ring seal. If the oil is too light, a surplus is drawn into the combustion chamber on each inlet stroke. Rapid carbonization follows.

Sunoco Motor Oil burns clean. It leaves no sticky residue to form carbon. That is because Sunoco is a non-compounded, 100-per-cent distilled oil, absolutely pure.

Sunoco is made in six distinct types. They insure a proper piston-ring seal for every design of motor. The "Sunoco Lubrication Guide" will tell you the right type for your car. Ask your dealer for a free copy or write us.
