Committee Would Have Posts Adopt Certain Features for All Meetings

WOULD HONOR FALLEN MEN

vania by a special committee appointed by George F. Tyler, past and will be forwarded headquarters at 841 Chestnut street, according to announce-ment made today. That the Legion posts shall participate more extensively in work that will benefit the community, and shall de-velop interest in Americanism, educa-tion and social service are the major recommendations of the committee. A. Sevin Detrich, commander of the Lieutenant Henry H. Houston Post No. 3. Germantown, was chairman of the special committee which drafted the prothe other members being Elizabeth R. Wunderle, Yeomen (F) Post No. 50; Dr. Wade Brinton, Harry E.

ngersoll Post No. 174; Luther C. Costerman, Post No. 10; William H. Creamer, Jr., Joseph Faucett Bellak Post No. 195; and Charles M. Jones, of Post 224. The first suggestion of the report is that immediately after the post meetings are called to order the members stand at attention, in honor of the departed comrades, and the chaplain offer a prayer. The preamble of the constitu-tion of the American Legion, setting forth its purposes, shall then be read, and it is further suggested that imme-diately before adjournment the men-

Star Spangled Banner. On the question of social service the report points out: "The post should strengthen its position not only by asisting its members, but also in aiding the community. The returned soldier and trained man has learned the power of co-operation and the concerted action of any forceful and intelligent body of men or women is bound to have distely before adjournment the mem

Harry H. Ingersoll Post 174 will hold a special meeting at the Pen and Pencil Club, 1026 Walnut street, 5 o'clock Wednesday, for the purpose of ratifying the new constitution. The post had suspended meetings for the summer months and the special call was made in compliance with directions from department headquarters. The post will also receive a report on the field day events at Franklin Field on September 18 next.

WOMAN ILL; HOME

Deputy Sheriff and Constable Remove Everything Except Few Sticks of Furniture

A deputy sheriff and a constable dripped the house at 1810 North Six-centh street almost bare of furniture while Mrs. Charles Schmidt lay ill in from nervous exhaustion.

All that remained after the officials entered the house last Thursday was Mrs. Schmidt's bed, an old table, a few chairs and a narrow bed on which Mrs. Schmidt's four small children . Even the baby's crib was carried away, according to neighbors.

Mr. Schmidt, a mechanic, and his wife were ordered to vacate the property. They were told it had been sold. They searched for another home but were unable to obtain one. Schmidt bought a house at 2328 North Sixteenth street, but the tenant's lease does not expire until September. The deputy sheriff, who is said to be a division leader, and the constable are said to have carried out the ice-box, after setting a piece of ice on the floor and surrounding the ice with food that had been in the refrigerator. Mrs. Schmidt asserts the men told her she was shamming illness and wanted her to leave her hed so they could take away to storage with the other fur nishings.

"Then you will always have to be hiding; you will no longer be free to roam the woods," urged Peggy.

Lonesome Bear thought this over, then let the Inquisitive Pig drop to the ground, where he lay gasping for breath, "But this pig ought to be punished for hurting my little chum, Toddie Pupkins," growled Lonesome Bear. "Besides a pig has no business in the woods with the wild creatures. He belongs on the farm, where he will be safe.

"That is true," agreed Billy, "What are you doing in the woods, Mr. Inquisitive Pig?"

"It was dull on the farm—I ran away to seek adventure," panted the pig.

"There, I knew he was a bad pig," growled Lonesome Bear raised his big paw and save the pig a whacking swat—a swat harder than a dozen ordinary spanks. The blow sent Inquisitive Pig flying for-ward, out of the grasp of Peggy and Billy, and over the edge of the bluff.

"Wee-wee-wee!" squealed the pig.

"Now, you hold him while I spank him." urged Lonesome Bear. Taised his big paw and gave the pig a whacking swat—a swat harder than a dozen ordinary spanks. The blow sent Inquisitive Pig flying for-ward, out of the grasp of Peggy and Billy, and over the edge of the bluff.

On the desk in front of the magistrate and between the two women sat house afire," as Billy said. Peggy and Billy had never heard such squealing in all their lives.

"Waw-ugh! This pig is nice and fat. He will make good eating," growled Lonesome Bear, At that Lonesome Bear hugged the pig tighter than ever, squeezh ugged the pig tighter than ever, squeezh died away like the wail of a broken squawker.

"Wow-wow-wow! I'm hungry! Gies me a bite!" barked Toddle Pupkins exting a little nip out of the Inquisitive Pig's leg.
"Stop" cried Peggy, who thought Lonesome Bear and Toddles meant to gobble the Inquisitive Pig right there and then. "The farmer who owns the pig will be angry if you eat him up."
"And he will come hunting you with a gun." added Billy, who saw that Peggy's argument didn't have much terror to Lonesome Bear.
"The you will always have to be hiding; you will no longer be free to ream the woods," urged Paggy.
