BLUE AND SILVER A GOOD COMBINATION

Daily Fashion Talk by Florence Rose THIS Liason there is little restrain-I ing influence from Dame Fashion on the brilliance of the color that may be worn in connection with the navy blue street costume. We can go as far as we like in selecting our hat—the girdles made to be worn with the eton suit also show unusual richness of color and often the gilet or waistcoat selected for the pen-front suit coat is of Barbaric brilince.

It is a fact that not for many seasons have really well-dressed women induled in their taste for bright headdress to a great extent as this year.

But with this brilliance the navy blue sult itself seldom shows much color. Colored embroidery on the suit itself is very unusual this season. What is, however, in high favor at the present is the dark blue and silver combination. Onite a few suits and frocks have come from Paris, showing heavy silver metal embroidery on dark blue, both on woollen and silk fabric.

In the short-jacket suit of navy blue Poiret twill shown here silver braid is simply applied to edges of the coat, sleeves and turnover collar. But that is not all—the sash that shows in the front of the jacket and peeps beneath around is of red shot with silver. The same rich red in taffeta forms the soft round hat which is jaunitly finished with a blue feather at the back.

PEARSON WILL PROBATED

Sox Manufacturer Leaves Estate of More Than $150,000

By the will of Joseph T. Pearson, a box manufacturer, who died July 22 at his home, 5103 Newhall street, Gerhis home, 5103 Newhall street, Germantown, more than $150,000 was devised to his family. The document was admitted to probate in the register of wills' office today. One hundred thousand dollars is created as a trust fund for his widow, together with the household goods. The residue of the estate is left as a trust fund for the children. The entire estate becomes a trust fund for the grandchildren upon the death of the present heirs.

Heavier Fabrics Compromise With Net in Women's August Millinery!

The heavier fabrics — velvets, satins, imitations of duvetyne, duvetyne itself, etc .- will come in almost ahead of time, but, Summer makes them compromise by using net brims or bits of Summery brightness so that they shall not be mistaken for Autumn hats. Summer is by no means ready to be put upon the shelf! The hat that is sketched has a crown of velvet and a brim of pleated material—an imitation of duvetyne in a rose shade; it fairly illustrates the spirit of these August hats, for, surely, no one would accuse it of an Autumnal suggestion!
