Lowrie is really a New Yorker, being the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sage, of that city, but as I told you before, she is a granddaughter of the Rev. Dr. Samuel T. Lowrie, of 1827 Pine street, and a greatgranddaughter of Governor Curtin. Allston Flagg is the son of Mrs. John Turner Atterbury, of New York, but he, too, has Philadelphia connections. he, too, has Philadelphia connections, for Mrs. Atterbury is a granddaughter of the late Thomas Robbins, of this city, and a niece of Mrs. Richard Stockton Hunter. That makes her son a cousin of Mr. Edward Robbins, Mr. Thomas Robbins and Mrs. Joseph Penthuller, and so, the marriage is very nell. And so the marriage is very interesting to us.

MELL. it's come round again. No. notice, that has come around again as as usual, too. That's getting to be such a regular thing that we just naturally expect it. But what I refer to is far different from Sunday, although, as far as that goes, a good many Sundays would be spoiled if it didn't come around. To get to the point, "It" is the annual fair, moving-picture show and dance given at Cape May for the W not Sunday, although as you may and dance given at Cape May for the benefit of the Church of the Advent. You know all about the church, or you ought to, because I've told you enough times. It is an Episcopal church sup-ported by the summer people, and they ince it. Every summer just about this time they have this large affair, and everybody in Cape May goes to it, and that helps support, the church for the following year. They usually make about a thousand dollars.
