HEARD the most beautiful story the other day about a recent brideom, and I just pass it along to you. he was married in another his best man, who was also Philadelphian, had a great time help-ig said bridegroom to keep up his ve. Finally, the time for the wedding being very near, the bridegroom, who was getting more and more nervous ninute (entirely forgetting that the wedding, as no one ever looks at the bridegroom) suggested that they walk to the church. He felt he meded the sir. And so they started forth and walked briskly along, the bridegroom, with dreamy eyes, striding shead, apparently thinking of nothing.

The best man, however, began to look.
