DREAMLAND ADVENTURES

UNDER THE CIRCUS TENT By DADDY

Pigs at School "BEHOLD the circus arena!" said the "BEHOLD the circus arena!" said the comical clown to Peggy and Billy and the pigs drew the chariot into the huge show tent.

As told before, Peggy and Billy had agree under the circus canvas and had been saved from the cross camel by the friendly elephant. Then they had been rescued from the ugly animal keeper by the comical clown, who had taken them into his chariot, which was drawn by funny pigs.

"Sit you here, noble lady and galling with said the clown. "For your lant youth," said the clown. "For your lent youth," said the clown. "For your enjoyment. I. Dodo, the greatest of clowns, will have my wonderful educated pigs give a special performance. Whoop-la, my heartles!"

The pigs trotted into the center ring, which was right in front of the reserved which was right in front of the reserved gests where Peggy and Billy sat. They gipsed out of the chariot harness and mounted little stools.

"Why, they look like children at school" cried Peggy.

"They are at school—this is a pig stool of the surghed Dodo. "My pigs are stool."

So said Sadie Sanderson, tossing her bobbed head in dainty disdain. Sadie and her friend, Mary Roberts, were busly engaged shelling peas for canbing in a rose-arbored summer house. Mary looked at her companion resentingly, and, to a close observer, pityingly.

Sadle continued: "I don't know what the Simple Simon is thinking of. He certainly had the nerve to think a college girl, living in the city would dream of coming out here to live in that shack
of a house he has on that little farm."

Mary was about to reply to the scornful words, but bit her lip and remained silent. Sadie. noticing her reticence, went on: "It's all right for you to live in the country—you have a nice big house with modern conveniences, a car,
and income enough to enjoy yourselves.
But no love in a cottage for me with primeval methods. And Merle Morrill is one of those Simple Simons who would live that way. If, like old Bill

Things You'll Love to Make

With narrow girdles so much in vogue, you will like this one with its odd ornaments. Near each end of a three-yard piece of narrow, two-toned grosgrain ribbon is tied a wooden bead or round wooden button mold, painted in colors to match the ribbon. Another bead forms the top of each tassel. A truly fascinating girdle, you'll agree.

Mary's explanation was a passionate clinging embrace, with her face pressed under his chin.

"And." continued Doctor Morrill, "I haven't a diamond suspended from every hair of my head, but I have a wealthy relative who has bought a big estate for me to transform into a hospital for special surgical operations. I have worked especially for that the last two years so we shall not live in my 'primeval shack' except for a possible vacation and to visit old friends."

Now, to be quite frank, I am not sure as I write this Adventure that you are going to buy the handkerchiefs, and to tell you the truth, I am not even to tell you the price of them. Because my primary motive in telling you about them at all is to get you to go look at them. These handkerchiefs undoubtedly are something you ought to see, for they are beauties. For instance, one will have running through the center a black thread, taking the place of a white one that has been pulled out. These black threads may form squares through the handkerchiefs, and then in each of the four corners will be tiny little flower design in Bright, happy colors. But there, I have given you no idea in my description of their daintiness and loveliness. Just stop and see them when you are in town.

Quite some time ago, I told you about rainproof maline. If I remember rightly, I spoke of great length about the beauty of fresh crisp maline, and the sorry, bedraggled appearance characteristic of maline that has been dampened. Well, maline that will withstand the weather, and retain all its fresh crispness, is naturally something to find favor, and so, of course, there were many "calls" for it. And now, I have found another shop that is having a special sale of the same rainproof maline, in almost every wanted shade, both dark and light and the price is fifty cents a yard. Of course, Quite some time ago, I told you about price is fifty cents a yard. Of course, it will be necessary for you to see about it without delay for values such as these
