

LEGION POSTS VOTE FOR CONSTITUTION

238 Bodies Already Have Approved Document, Official Records Show

TOTAL OF 335 IS NEEDED

There is every indication that the new constitution of the American Legion in Pennsylvania will be ratified by the requisite number of posts by October 1 and that David J. Davis, department commander, will be able on that date to name the twenty-four deputy department commanders.

Two hundred and thirty-eight posts have approved the new document, according to records at the state headquarters, 841 Chestnut street, and it is estimated that about 335 are required for ratification under the two-thirds rule. At the time of the Allentown cantonment a number of posts had not paid dues, and consequently will not be counted in estimating the requisite number for ratification.

The posts in Philadelphia will be privileged to decide also as to whether or not a county committee is desired here. There has been no organized effort on the part of the friends of the county committee plan, but despite this situation there seems to be a growing tendency in the city toward the formation of a committee in which the representation shall be in proportion to the number of paid-up members of the posts.

An active drive is being made by Stern-Price Post No. 417 for increased membership in the Forty-seventh ward. This post meets at Eighteenth and Jefferson streets, and its meetings have been well attended even through the summer months. Ex-service men wishing to join are requested to communicate with Morris H. Starr, adjutant, at 2530 North Berks street. The other officers are Dr. Charles S. Schaffer, post commander; Howard S. Stern, vice commander; Benjamin H. Simons, finance officer, and the Rev. Samuel Fredman, chaplain.

George F. Baer Post No. 312, through one of its members, E. Walter Hudson, is endeavoring to arrange for a special train for delegates and alternate to the Cleveland national convention. This post is comprised principally of Reading Railway veterans, and its membership has been helpful on a number of similar occasions in providing transportation facilities.

ANTI-PROFITEERING HOUSES ARE READY

100 Homes to be Rented in S. Phila. to Families Forced Out of Present Abodes

DEPUTY SHERIFF A VICTIM

One hundred houses in South Philadelphia have been placed at the disposal of the Thirty-fourth Ward Tenants' Protective Association, to be rented to hard-pressed families. This announcement is made by Joseph E. Molony, president of the association.

The houses have just been built and are equipped with hardwood floors, electric lights and contain six rooms and a bath. They will rent for $35 and six-month and yearly leases will be given. One of the new houses will be placed at the disposal of James McKeith, who is to be evicted today from his home at 1402 North Felton street.

The writ against McKeith will be served, it is said, by Daniel G. Hunter, a deputy sheriff, who has himself been at loggerheads with his landlord. Hunter, however, has capitulated to a $20 monthly increase and his rent will hereafter be $55 instead of $35.

Hunter occupies the third-floor apartment at 4552 Baltimore avenue. To add to his troubles, he has been prevented from linking up with the Tenants' Protective Association by Sheriff Lamberton, who has ordered his deputy, who has supervised virtually all the evictions in West Philadelphia, not to become a member of the association. Sheriff Lamberton told Hunter it would tie his hands in the course of his duties.

An invitation had been extended to Hunter by the tenants' associations to join them in escaping from his troubles.

TRAIN DELAYS COMMUTERS

Hundreds of men and women due in offices and stores at 8 o'clock were made late this morning when the Philadelphia and Reading local leaving Chestnut Hill at 7:10 o'clock and due in the terminal at 7:45 o'clock was twenty minutes late in arriving. "Low on steam," was the explanation given by the train crew.
