Nancy Wynne Regrets the Death of Mrs. John Wanamaker-She Tells of the Beauty of the Macdonough-Mitchell Wedding This Week

THE death of Mrs. John Wanamaker at Atlantic City yesterday throws mother large family connection into mourning. Though Mrs. Wanamaker had been ill for nearly nine months, she had rallied a little from a bad sink-ing spell in the early part of the week, and her death was a shock to her family and friends.

and her death was a shock to her family and friends. Mrs. Wanamaker was widely known for her charitable work and for her devotion to her family. Her children and grandchildren were perfectly wrapped up in her, and in fact, this summer they have all remained in At-lantic City, rather than risk being away learn her in her illness.

summer they have all remainder marker antic City, rather than risk, being away from her in her illness. Mr. and Mrs. Wanamaker had six children, two of whom died very young. Another, Thomas B. Wanamaker, died twelve years ago. The other children are Rodman Wanamaker, who has been lying in New York for five or more years: Mrs. Barelay Warburton and Mrs. Norman MacLeod. The grand-children are Mrs. Arturo de Heeren, who was Fernanda Wanamaker; John Wanamaker, Jr., who married Pauline Disston; Marie Louise, whose husband is Gurnee Munn; Barelay Warburton, Jr., who married Rose Lancaster last December; Mary Brown Warburton, who is named for her grandmother; Edgerton Warburton and Rodman and Tom Wanamaker, Jr., sons of the late Tom Wanamaker, dense wife, the for-mer Miss Mary Welsh, is now Mrs. Archbald Thomson. Archhald Thomson. I understand the services for Mrs. Wanamaker will be held on Monday. She will be greatly missed, for few women were as earnestly interested in good deeds all their lives as was she. Archhald Thomson. was always very retiring, caring te for society, loving her home and family.

THAT was a most artistic wedding Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Spencer, of Villa-nova, will leave on Tuesday for Nar-ragansett Pler, where they will be the guests for several weeks of Mrs. Spen-cer's mother, Mrs. Dobson. Worthington Mitchell's on 1 of Worthington Mitchell's on Wednesday. You know, she married Dent Macdonough, of New York, but what you did not know, unless you went to the weddine was that she was married out in the garden of the farm which her father the late Doctor Mitchell, owned for many years, The farm was owned, before Doctor Mitchell came into possession of it, by his wother and her father, Mr. Elwyn, before her.

wonderful old lace. Mabel Bayard Kane, who is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Bayard Kane, and cousin of Worthie's, was one of her idesmaids and Miss Agar, of New York, a cousin of Mr. Macdonough, was the other bridesmaid. They wore lovely frocks of pale pink. The collation was served at little tables under the trees, and the whole affair was very lovely. Mr. Macdonough had his father as his best man, I do like that: I just love to see it at a wedding. There's nothing like having your father for a best friend, especially when you are a man.

see it at a wedding. There's nothing like having your father for a best friend, especially when you are a man. After the breakfast they went on their wedding trip in a motor, and they will be ia the Adirondacks for a while, I understand, though in a few weeks they will return to Mrs. Mitchell, at West Chester, to stay several weeks be-fore going to Mr. Macdonough's cattle for going to Mr. Macdonough's cattle for going to Mr. Macdonough's cattle the Chester and Mrs. William M. one wanted to be caught by the bear. The animal keeper, who had been left locked up in the bear's cage, as told in yesterday's chapter, yelled loudly for help, but there was so much noise during the show that he wasn't heard for a long time; and by then the bear had carried Peggy and Billy to the safety of the distant woods.

"Ugh! Ugh! It's good to be free." grunted the bear, plunging deep into the forest. He went on and on until he came to a river. He was turning to go along the bank of the river when Billy spoke:

"Perhaus that animal keeper will "Perhaus that animal keeper will chase us," said Billy. "If you go into the river and wade upstream, the water will wash away your tracks and the keeper will not be able to follow you." The bear took this advice and walked along through the shallow water until he came to a ford, and there he crossed to the other bank of the stream. "I think you had better go home to your cave the shortest way," advised Billy.

your cave the shortest way," advised Billy, "My cave is many days' journey from here. I must eat and rest before I start for there," replied the bear, sitting down suddenly and tumbling Peggy and Billy off his back. As they jumped up to scold him for giving them this rough surprise, he began to lick his chops hungrily. "I could not take food while I was homesick." said the bear, "but now I've got a terrible appetite. I think a couple of plump children would taste mighty good to me right this minute." The bear looked at Peggy and Billy in a way that made them feel creepy. Had the grief over being shut up in a cage made Lonesome Bear crazy? Had he become wild again, and was he actually thinking of eating them? "How gueer you talk. Lonesome "How queer you talk.
