By DADDY In other stories it has been told how Peggy and Billy found Lonesoma Bear's twin brother, Pudgie, in a circuis, and how they brought him to Lonesome Bear's cave. There they learned that Lonesome Bear's right name was Podgie Beur. The two bears, Pudgie and Podgie, promised to take them some day on a visit to Bearland.

CHAPTER I

"Ahem! Ahem! What's this I hear. A maid that's keen to roam, I fear! She better stay at home secure, Than dangers of the woods endure." Than dangers of the woods endure.

Peggy turned so quickly to see the speaker that the hammock upset, Flippety-flop, she landed on the ground, and found herself looking up into the face of the oddest kind of a little old man! He had long white whiskers and he wore large shell-rimmed glasses, at all peaked hat and a black robe all covered with pictures of cats and owls and southers and southern shades.

ogs and squirmy snakes.

"Hello! Who are you?" gasped Peggy, as soon as she caught her breath. The little old man answered with a song:

black, But still never know! Oh, clickety-

Peggy didn't think that a very polite answer, but the little old man's eyes twinkled so merrily she couldn't feel cross at him.

"Well, if you will not tell " cross at him.
"Well, if you will not tell me your name, perhaps you will tell me what you are doing here?" she said with a smile. Again the little old man answered with "Hippity-happity, yes and nay, I've come to carry Peggy away, Happity-hippity, straw and hay. Til take her far ere the end of day."

Fumes choked him.

Fumes choked him.

Fumes choked him.

"Thank you, sir, but I don't think I'd better go," she replied. "I'm very comfortable right here at home." The little sid man's eyes still twinkled, but his voice was firm as he sang still another voice was firm as he sang still another song:

"You made a wish that must come true, A wish you'll like, a wish you'll rue. You'll be happy, and you'll be blue, And lots of folks will envy you."

Peggy was more disturbed than ever when she heard this song. Part of it sounded good and part of it sounded bad. She had made a wish and evidently she had to take it whether she wanted to or not. But the little old man chuckled and giggled and laughed, and at last he winked at her. That wink was very teasing. It seemed to promise a lot of fun, and yet it was much like a boy's wink when he is up to mischief. She hesitated. "I guess—I guess—" she said uncertainly, meaning to say that she guessed she'd stay at home. But the little old man turned her words into another meaning.

ne little old man turned her words in nother meaning.
"Chuckle-huckle; giggle-glee! I guess that you will ride with me. Woggle, Boggle, steeds so queer. Come to carry us from here." In answer to the song of the little old man two peculiar animals that looked just like their names, woggled and boggled into view from behind the shrubbery. More about them will be told in tomorrow's chapter.

INCHES FROM

The Golden-Plated Rule By Lillian Paschal Day

Tim Grogan

There was a fire down street. Engines dashed up, crowds gathered. Whistles blew, bells clanged. Smoke poured from the house. Peggy Makes a Wish

PEGGY made a wish as she lay daydreaming in the hammock. "Oh, I wish a wisard would come and carry me away to a strange land where a lot of surprising things would happen," she said aloud.

No sooner were the words out of her mouth than a squeaky voice spoke behind her, saying this queer verse:
"Ahem! Ahem! What's this I hear."

Hed-tongued flames licked it up,
Just as a cat licks cream.

Firemen swarmed up the ladders.
At last every one was out and sai
Or so we thought.

But a shriek rent the air.
A frantic mother wrung her hands.
"My baby! I left him asleep!
I had to go to the market." Red-tongued flames licked it up, At last every one was out and safe. Or so we thought. A frantic mother wrung her hands Let me in there! My baby!' They held her back. "It's no use," said the chief. You'd only burn up, too." "My little new baby!" she wailed.
"Only a month old! O save him!" big fireman stepped up. Where's yer kid?' He shouted above the flames' roar. "Third floor front- God save ye!"
The chief raised his voice: 'Tim Grogan, you're mad! forbid you to try it. "Oh, clickety-clack! Oh, clickety-clack! You'll go to your death! You'll go to your death! Think of your wife, man!"

And keep on guessing until you are But Tim Grogan turned back. He fairly flew up the ladder. Flames crackled around him. Black smoke at last hid him. The crowd watched breathlessly 'Into the mouth of hell." we said. 'He'll never come back." But he did. A yell arose. It changed to a cheer. At the third-floor window he stood A white bundle was in his arms. He swung out gropingly.

The mother's arms received it. Tears streamed down her face. "Thank God !-- and Tim Grogan !" She choked and sobbed. She kissed the corner of his coat. The big fireman roused. The chief pushed the crowd. "Stand back! Give him air! Are you all right, Tim, lad?" 'Aw-ri'.' said a swollen tongue. The chief gulped and blinked. 'Tim, you heroic young fool! Whatever made you do it?" Cracked lips essayed a grin. "See here, chief, it's this way. Yez said to think o' me wife. That's what made me do it. She had a kid this marnin'. Timothy Grogan, Jr.'s, his name. An' I thought what if 'twas him? Kinda Golden Rule sort o' stuff, I couldn't let 'im burn up. Mary'd hate me ferivermore! I just hadda go get 'im!" And he slid through the crowd. They wanted to lionize him. He put up a protesting hand. "Aw gwan! None o' that now! It's all in our day's work!' But he got a medal all the same I saw it pinned on him. Mary and Tim Junior were there. She was mighty proud of both lads, Young Tim gurgled and cooed. Presentation speeches were made. 'The pair o' thim did it."

Galvanized Boat Pumps

That was Tim's speech in answer.

We all preach the Golden Rule.

It takes heroes to apply it.

God bless him!

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

HELEN DITTIE

MARY DITTIE William Dittie enrolled in the Night School of Strayer's Business College in 1914 and attended Strayer's Night School three winters. He graduated in the Combined Course as a stenographer and bookkeeper. As a result, at 20 years of age, he has been earning $50 a week, $2600 a year.

Helen Dittie enrolled in the Day Sessions of Strayer's Business College in September, 1915, took the Combined Course and received her diploma after an attendance of a little more than 12 months.

Mary Dittie began the Combined Course in the Day Sessions of Strayer's Business College on August 30, 1916, at 13 years of age, and continued her studies until she graduated.

Helen is now 18 and Mary is 17 years of age, and together they are earning very close to $2400 a year.

The stendards of Strayer's Business College are high, but it pays to graduate at Strayer's because graduates of Strayer's are worth larger salaries and get them. If three children from one family can graduate at Strayer's, what is there to prevent your child from doing so? Read about the success of Rose Welsh and her sister Margaret in next Thursday's paper.

Schools for the Education of Women For the Nursing Profession

Young Women and Girls

Believing that many young women would be glad to enter training schools in hospitals throughout the State of Pennsylvania as pupil nurses if they knew of the great opportunity for service and to qualify in one of the greatest professions open to women, a Committee appointed to serve in the interests of the Nurses' Training Schools, whose names appear in these columns, are conducting a campaign for the purpose of securing enrollments in this noble profession.

In the Service of Humanity

Message on the Ethics and Practice of Nursing

"Nursing is an art, and if it is to be made an art it tequires as exclusive a devotion, as hard a preparation as any painter's or sculptor's work, for what is having to do with dead canvas or cold marble compared with having to do with the living body—the temple of God's spirit? It is one of the fine arts, I had almost said the finest of the fine arts." (Florence Nightingale)

If this is true, and who will doubt it, what an entirely satisfactory work is nursing, and yet how necessary that we remember we are dealing with something that requires not only our energy, our interest and our skill, but our deep reverence and highest thoughts?

A young poet killed in France, wrote, "Like the statue in Michael Angelo's lump of marble, there is a friend in every passerby, and in one there may be a new Christ," and so there may be in any human being. What Dr. S. Weir Mitchell says of the physician is true also of the nurse: "He sells that which men neither weigh nor measure, and this sets him over all professions save one, and far above all forms of mere business. What such a life makes of a man is largely a question of original character, but in no other form of occupation is there such constant food useful to develop all that is best and noblest."

The highest type only of healthy young womanhood should take up this work, for it is certainly the highest given to any woman to do. What can be greater than by skill and knowledge to help fan the feable. highest given to any woman to do. What can be greater than by skill and knowledge to help fan the feeble spark of life to the bright flame of health; to make the stiff arm supple and strong; to tide the Typhoid or the Pneumonia patient past the danger post; to give back to the children, the mother who almost crossed the dark river; and to save the baby with all life's road before him.

Nothing can adequately pay for the skill which has brought to the bedside renewed strength, and perhaps even the "sweet boon of life?"

If she have given back our sick again.
Is it a little thing that she has wrought?
Then Life and Death and Motherhood be nought!"
