Hold-Up at Westmoreland and Memphis Streets Nets Highwaymen $72

Motor bandits operating in the north and downtown sections of the city this morning executed two hold-ups which netted them approximately $1500. Three men in a touring car rode up to the tailor shop of Morris Klein, 1610 South Twentieth street, about four blocks from the Twentieth and Federal street station house and, after breaking the window, got $1450 in cloth.

They were seen while taking the cloth from the window by a man living nearby who was awakened by the crash of the glass. He sounded the alarm and soon several men were on the street.

The bandits made a quick getaway in the automobile just as the first neighbor reached the scene. It was some time before an automobile to pursue them was obtained. By that time the bandits had escaped.

Neighbors of Klein, who saw the men at work, were able to give the police a good description of the bandits. The bandits made a quick getaway in the automobile just as the first neighbor reached the scene. It was some time before an automobile to pursue them was obtained. By that time the bandits had escaped.

The five men got out. These covered him with revolvers and demanded his money. He handed over the $72 he had in his possession.

When the bandits drove off, Weiss reported the robbery to the police at the Delgrade and Clearfield streets station.

Then Koval jumped. Badly shaken up by his plunge, he staggered to his feet and built a pyramid of empty boxes

Will Restrict Resales

"There will be restriction of resales in the trade, and the percentage of profits to dealers will be limited, as in the bituminous cases," he added.

Prices Stopped Jumping

Machinery is Lacking

"Their case would be covered by the Lever act," was the reply. "We have the authority in it to act in gross overcharges for food, coal and other essential necessities. The only trouble is that the machinery is lacking. Now we have the law, but we lack the machinery and we haven't the money to get it."

Attorney General Will Probe Rise in Price Above Wage Increase to Men

Col. McCain is Frankly Skeptical of Palmer's Scheme; Will Take Too Long a Time

By GEORGE NOX McCAIN Staff Correspondent of the Evening Public Ledger

Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Co.

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 7.—The government will act in the case of the profiteering anthracite coal operators.

Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer assured me today that the situation so far as it concerns the operators in increasing the price of coal to double the amount necessary to liquidate the advance in the coal commissions award to the miners, will be the subject of departmental action by Washington.

Further, he informed me that no further advances in the price of anthracite coal to the consumer will be permitted.

I called on him by appointment at his home in Stroudsburg. He returned only a few days ago from a short vacation trip to New England. However he did not say as much, I fancy that the sudden crisis in the anthracite situation as it affects the operators, the miners and the people shortened his stay.

He is, I found, fully posted on anthracite conditions. When I asked him for his views and purposes regarding the $22,000,000 held by the operators, over and above the $18,000,000 necessary to pay the miners' award in wages retroactive to April last, Mr. Palmer said:

"No further advances will be permitted in the price of anthracite coal. Any increase in the price larger than the wage increase to the miners, to which you refer, will be made the subject of rigid investigation. Prosecutions will be instituted if the facts warrant."
