DODGERS AND GIANTS CRAWL UP ON REDLEGS, WHILE THE LEADERS TAKE DAY OFF FROM THE DIAMOND

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL

WHILE the Cincinnati Reds were not looking yesterday, both Brooklyn and New York put over some funny work and now the National League pennant chase is close enough to be covered under a single blanket. The Giants took advantage of Boston twice in the same place and the Dodgers made the Phils do a Miske on the home

Therefore, the men of McGraw now are but two nes away from first place and the Brooklyn bunch is one-half game behind the Reds. From now on anything is likely to happen, but the advantage is with the two eastern clubs because they will play in their own back yard the greater part of this month.

"We will win the pennant," admitted Uncle Wilbert Robinson last night. Similar statements can be obtained from Pat Moran and John McGraw, now that John has quit the Lambs Club.

In the American League, Cleveland and the Yanks re idle, so far as regular games are concerned. The Yanks beat Pittsburgh, but it didn't mean anything. Neither did the home run made by Babe Ruth. This wallop was superfluous.

The White Sox trimmed St. Looie and moved a couple of whispers closer to the Yanks. The three leaders in this circuit can wear the same cap and are all set for the finale. The Sox and Indians are playing at home and therefore have the edge. The Yanks are traveling this

Today will start what is commonly known as a crucial series in Cleveland, when the Yanks visit that metropolis. There is likely to be some trouble and, fearing this, Carl Mays was left at home. Although the bean ball pitcher has been cleared in New York, the fans in other cities cannot forget Chapman's death and the pitcher will not be allowed to forget it, either.

But while these close races are being staged, our Phils gained one-half a game on the Braves in the battle for eighth place. The Boston gang lost two games and the Phils one. Perhaps that was because only one game was played. If the Braves continue to play double-headers and the Phils only one game per day, we are likely to climb out of the cellar.

WESTERDAY the Dodgers ruined Lee Meadours and copped the final contest of the set, 7-4. Betts finished and did very well. Today Pittsburgh will be here, if that means anything.

Maybe Gamblers Crossed 'Em

TUST because our Phils trimmed the Chicago Cubs in a ball game one day last week, there was so much surprise in the Windy City that an investigation has been ordered and the grand jury is on the job. It is claimed that some hocus pocus stuff was put over and some of the boys might have been chumming with the gamblers.

There was a great hullabaloo in the Chicago newspapers, but after reading all of the accounts enrefully. we can't understand why the story was published in the first place. Nobody has been accused, a lot of telegrams given wide publicity, but in every case the telegrams were signed by some fake name. Not one has been traced yet, much trouble has been caused and the situation is the same now as before it started.

Everybody knows that the gamblers are close followers of baseball. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are wagered throughout the country every day and it can't be stopped. If a man wants to gamble he will do so. Therefore, the betting on that particular game was nothing out of the ordinary. The strange part of it was that the Phils were picked to win.

Perhaps—and this is just a guess—the smart gamblers put something over in that game. They knew it was Lee Meadows's turn to pitch and Lee has been going good. They figured Lee had a good chance to win, and perhaps Hendryx would make trouble. If they could work a pitcher out of turn, like Alexander, who, by the way, has not been effective against the Phils, the sure thing gents would feel better. They got away with it, the Phils won.

STILL, this investigation will be a good thing for baseball. The players will realize more keenly that they are being watched-not that they need to be scatched or anything like that—and if there is any so inclined, they will think twice before attempting to pull a Lee Magec or Hal Chase in a game. A little scandal helps the sport and keeps it clean.

Leonard Taking a Chance

OUT in Benton Harbor the fight fans still are talking about the White-Benny Leonard battle which was staged in Fitzsimmons's arena on July 5. This is not strange or unusual, because boxing shows are very rare out there and the natives have excellent memories.

Before the Dempsey-Miske affair was staged, the folks had a lot to say about the lightweight fuss. Leonard, according to eyewitnesses, had the narrowest escape in his career and really was fighting a losing battle when he put over the knockout wallop which ended the fracas in the

"Leonard got more than he was looking for," orated one self-confessed critic. "White tore after him and had him backing up and hanging on. In the fifth, he scored a clean knockdown, although it is claimed that Benny slipped. He slipped after getting that wallop on the head and had it been a couple of inches lower, the championship would have changed hands.

"White, however, made a big mistake in not having a smart second in his corner. He was handling his own affair and messed things up. Had he been in the hands of a capable adviser he would have scored a great

Perhaps the reason for Leonard's poor showing was the long layoff. Benny had been idle for almost a year and this was his first battle. However, the folk out West believe he can be beaten and are very much interested in the bout tomorrow night with K. O. Loughlin at Camden. Loughlin is a very tough bird, can hit a terrible slam and Leonard will not have a set up. In a way, Benny is taking a chance in stepping out of his class to meet Loughlin. He will be forced to extend himself to the limit and must watch himself at all times. Twelve rounds is a lengthy period to linger with a twofisted bone-crushing knockout artist and the battle should be well worth seeing.

THE other bouts also look good. Joe Benjamin, Joe Burman and Tommy Toughey are pretty fair battlers to have in the prelims. Herman Taylor deserves credit.
