At $14-well-tailored tweed coats are smart enough to be cunning. The tweed is in brown or green mixture and the coats have linings to match. Hats of corduroy, brushed wool, velvet and velour are $2.35 to $6.50. (Central)

WANAMAKER'S

Sometimes it's for box pleats, another woman may prefer knife pleats, accordion pleats, or side pleats-they are all here in a great variety of materials and colorings. Serges, velours, prunellas and novelty worsteds are here in stripes, plaids, checks and plain navy blue and black. The Autumn plaids are particularly lovely in the soft flannel-finish serges and in velours-delightful ruddy browns with a flash of bright orange; dark blues mingled with green, or here and there a dash of red-truly there's a fragrance of the heather and the Highlands about them.

Prices start at $5.75 for navy blue or black serges; there are smart plaids and checks at $7.50 to $12.75 and at $16.50 upward to $35 are the finer plaids and stripes.

Soft Black Skirts appeal particularly to elderly women. Silk-and-cotton faille skirts are $3.75 and black baronet skirts are $12.75. Extra sizes in baro-net are $16.50. (Market)

WANAMAKER'S

(Many of these suits were specially purchased and are marked at savings of $8 to $18)

All fashion authorities are predicting a vogue for tailored suits this winter and surely when women see how pretty the suits are and how moderate the prices, they will readily understand why. There's a charm of line, a sprightly youthfulness, about them that is altogether fascinating.

Velour, silvertone, worsteds, serge and tricotine are the materials most favored for street suits, while sports suits lean to jersey and tweed. Navy blue, Pekin and French blues, black and the fashionable browns are the colors.

Nine of the suits from this gathering are sketched. Several of them have collars of sealene, nutria or Australian opossum and every jacket is lined with silk. About their making are many little touches that you will like-well-tailored pockets, sleeves of the proper length and tightness, new collars and pretty arrangements of tucking.

There are suits for women of all types and fittings in sizes 14 to 40. Prices range from $17.25 to $63.50. (Market)
