L terday out at the Philadephil Club. It's the women's national cham-pionship tournament, you know, and every one was out there; and the sky was so blue and the trees so green and the white tennis clothes of the players so cool, while the pretty frocks of the undergone seated on the club sterms and so cool, while the pictor focus of the sudience seated on the club steps and on chairs alongside of the courts were beautiful bits of color. I noted among the players Molly Thayer, Carolyn McFadden, Caroline Remak and Caro-
