gomery Will Entertain for Miss Da Costa

EMILIE KENNEDY'S engagement to Julian Bishop is interesting, is it not? Alliances with persons from other cities are always more interesting it seems to me, despite the fact that when the man is from another city, we lose the girl in a way, for no matter how much she may return home she is really no longer a Philadelphian and really no longer a Philadelphian and reannot join in every thing here as Julian Bishop is the son of Mrs. M.

To return to Lucille, I saw her the ther day looking very well. She cer-tainly does wear pretty clothes. And while on the subject of pretty clothes, I saw Mrs. Lewis Audenried yesterday in one of the stores. She was wearing a frock of black crepe de chine, the skirt of which was fashioned of a succession of knife-pleated ruffles about five inches wide. The bodice was cut on surplice lines, and her hat was a small model of black velvet, trimmed with coque feathers. She is, without doubt, one of Sartorial dreams, indeed, are the new fall hats which Chertak of the House of Wenger is now displaying. One of her newest notes is a turban of black satin ing. One of her newest notes is a turban of black satin antique, whose pale sapphire plumes wave gracefully back from a close front. A marvelous ostrich feather handbag accompanies this, which on occasion can be used for a fan. The bags come separately, too, in lovely, jewel-like colors. The plumed hat described is but one of Chertak's exquisite new group. By the way, the Hause of Wenger has no connection whatever with any House of Wenger has no connection whatever with any other house bearing the name of Wenger, so be sure that you seek both House of Wenger furs and Chertak's chapeaux at the right shop, 1229 Walnut, just opposite the St. James and next to the corner at Thirteenth street.

Now is the time when women begin to feel the need of those smart little animal scarfs of Russian and Hudson Bay sable, stone and baum marten. An especially worth-while ensemble of these is to be found at that reliable shop of Theo. F. Seifert's, 1426 Walnut. The quality is excellent and prices within reason. Beautiful stone marten pieces of one to four skins are $65 up. Natural baum marten scarfs—scarcely distinguishable from sable—are $100 up. The $100 baum marten pieces are stunning and so large that a single skin will often suffice even a large woman. Seifert's exquisite Russian sable scarfs are from $175 to $325 a kin, made up, and Hudson Bay sable pieces of the same design are $75 to $375. I have found from personal experience that this shop of integrity quotes prices no higher than houses. shop of integrity quotes prices no higher than houses dealing in inferior furs.
