NEW GRID ERA DAWNS AT PENN TOMORROW

Heisman Will Give Football Fans Here First Glimpse of Famous Shift in Delaware College Game at Franklin Field-Contest Not Real Test

PROBABLE LINE-UP FOR OPENING PENNSYLVANIA-DELAWARE GAME

By SPICK HALL

OINCIDENT with the opening of the 1920-21 scholastic year at the University of Pennsylvania, a new era in football dawns. Whether this smiling surors will be followed by the noonday sun of victory or the somber clouds of defeat remains to be seen.

Dr. John Heisman, the man who put Georgia Tech, an obscure southern institution, on the football map, is the medium through which the University athletic solons hope to rescue the Red and Blue's smeared gridiron banner from the quagmire of dissension and failure and unfurl it in its proper place on the flagstaff of unanimity and success.

The peace was in the signal drill yesterday and expressed himself as confident that he will get into tomorrow's game. In case Whitehall does not start Joe Straus probably will get the call. The practice yesterday was the most abbreviated of the season, the heat and the fact that Coach Heisman had to leave early for New York to attend the rules committee meeting being the reasons for the curtailment of the drills. After a tackling workout and running with the ball and the usual fundamental drills. Heisman sent the first varsity through a stiff signal march lasting over half an hour. The players all showed considerable dash and spirit.

Knows Heisman's System

Coach Shipley probably knows more

The new mentor comes here under a three-year contract to reconstruct Pennsylvania's disjointed system with one whose underlying principle is harmony off the field and the famous "Heisman shift" on the gridiron.

The new regime will get its baptism of fire tomorrow afternoon on Franklin Field, where the little, but well-coached. Delaware College eleven goes to battle with the husky athletes of one of America's greatest universities. As a test either of Doctor Heisman's system two the individuals on the varsity eleven, tomorrow's game will count for ittle. Those who expect to see some great revolutionary change will be dis-Can't Be Done

No man can install an entirely new No man can install an entirely new football system and have it working for the opening game of the season. In fact, an entire season may roll around before the players become thoroughly acclimated to Heisman's football atmosphere.

Doctor Heisman comes to Pennsylvania at a rather unfortunate time, as far as football material is concerned. If far as football material is concerned. If the Red and Blue's chances of success this season are to be judged solely on the individual ability of the players who have reported, the outlook is far from rosy, but they should not be judged in that way. Many great coaches, and Doctor Heisman is one of them, have welded mediocre material into a win-ning football machine.

melded medicere material into a winning football machine.

That is the not too enticing task that confronts the new coach, but he has begun right, and it would not be surprising to see Pennsylvania's team this year wax stronger and stronger as the weeks go by, emerging for its final games a powerful eleven able to give its best opponents a real battle.

Lest either the team or the coach be judged too quickly, it should be remembered that not just tomorrow's game, but the entire season is largely an experiment. If all goes as Doctor Heis-experiment. If all goes as Doctor Heisman hopes, not only will the eleven this year make a good record, but there will be enough players grounded in the new system to insure a winning team in the future, regardless of the loss of individual stars.

In the past those in charge of Pennsylvania's football teams have been forced to put all of their energy into a current season's play, rather than to develop a stable system that would be self-perpetuating and one that would have insured big squads of well-trained Doctor Heisman has literally had to begin at the bottom, not only because he is introducing a system, but because the material is not studded with luminaries. Bill Ward, the big tackle who made such a great reputation in France, both on the firing line and on the Third division's football team, is the only man that stands out pre-eminently. wan that stands out pre-eminently. Ward is not an experiment as a player. He "arrived" long since and today is as one of the best tackles that has graced a Pennsylvania uniform in years.

has graced a Pennsylvania uniform by years.

Alex Wray, Lud Wray, Heine Miller, Hobey Light, Ben Derr, Dieter and Danny McNichol, the men who made the team what it was last year, are missing. There isn't a great player in the backfield. Rex Wray is a fast, open field runner and possesses many other attributes which brand him as a high-grade man, but he isn't heavy other attributes which brand him as a high-grade man, but he isn't heavy enough to do the work that a backfield man should do. What the team needs badly and hasn't is a man of the caliber of Bill Hollenbach, Roy Mercer, Owsley Manier or George Brooke. These men were big, fast and could rip a line to shreds. And they had the stamina to start ripping early in the game and keep it up on high gear until the final whistle. Possibly Heisman will find such a man. It is to be hoped, but at present be hasn't one.

High School Hope

Vie Frank is now Penn's hope at center. The former Central High schoolboy, after playing guard and tackle for almost three weeks, yester-day was shifted to center and performed creditable. creditably, so creditably in fact that he will, in all probability, be used at the pivot post when the Red and Blue lines up nainst Delaware.

Frank is a husky boy, tipping the scales at 180 and hittrng the height machine at six feet and two inches, His machine at six feet and two inches, His general agressiveness and all-around play this year have made him too valuable a man to leave out of the varsity line-up, and Coach Heisman finally decided to try him at center. Thomas, who was groomed for the pivot post, may be lost to the team tomorrow because of his injured shoulder. He expects to be in shape to scrimmage next week and enter the Bucknell game.

There was one other surprise that

There was one other surprise that brought joy to the squad yesterday and that was the return of Herman Harvey. that was the return of Herman Harvey. The Minersville youth, after playing through the summer on his home town's baseball team without a scratch, on his third day out for football hurt his knee. The injury developed into "water on the knee," and it took all the resourcefulness of Mike Dee to bring it back to shape. Yesterday Mike told Harvey to go out on the gridiron to work out and if the knee did not worry him to get into the signal drill. Harvey did as he was told and after romping around for so hour entered the signal drill and showed all his old-time vim.

WILL TACKLE PENN TOMORROW

Penn Pencilings

The ineligible list dwindled almost to nothingness yesterday with the announcement that Rex Wray and Joe Straus had righted themselves with the faculty. Eddie Farrell and Griffin have high hopes of being right today.

Clifton Crawford is perhaps the only member of the squad who may be out for the season. It appears that Craw-ford has five conditions, but he, like the others, is hopeful that he can get into right standing soon.

Four new men reported yesterday for the team. All have had some experi-ence in the gridiron sport. They are Peters, Hamilton, Dipple and Town-send. With this quartet the squad now numbers much over sixty, and Coach By Dickson has at last an opportunity to get a good scrub eleven together.

Coach Shipley probably knows more about the Heisman system than any coach whose team will face Pennsyl-vania. He comes from Maryland State and has followed the Georgia Tech Next week the entire Penn student body will attend a mammoth rally for the football team to get more candi-dates for the team and to start the ball a-rolling for the cheering section. Every student this year must purchase an A. A. book for $10.

The squad is physically fit with one or two exceptions. They went through a grilling two-hour scrimmage against Maryland State at College Park, Md., on Wednesday. Aiken, last year at Perkiomen, played a good game at guard, but unfortunately he developed a severe cold which kept him in the infirmary all day yesterday and last night. It is uncertain whether or not he will be able to play tomorrow. In that case Shipley will start either Delucca or Lilly at guard in his place.

Donaldson, center last year with Wilmington High, also made a good impression by his work against Maryland State. Coach Jack Keogh, the coach of the freshmen squad, has one of the most promising array of futures in years. Sixty-three men by actual count were on the field yesterday afternoon for preliminary practice. Manager Pete Daly is busy arranging the schedule for the yearlings. the yearlings.

Peter McGovern, who last year and for two years previous was an all-around star at Catholic High, reported pression by his work against Maryland State.

Rothrock and Magaw, the two ends who will start against Penn, have shown great improvement this year. They were the only two to stay in the game the entire time in the Maryland State scrimmage. Marconneti and Holton, veteran guard and tackle, never looked better, while Repp, the other tackle, is improving.

Shipley is well fortified as to his backfield. Captain McCaughan, Harmer, Elliott and Wintrup form the best backfield that Delaware has had for for the first-year team yesterday. Mc-Govern, beside being a football player of no mean ability, is a good all-around track man.

The Philadelphia Paper Trade Golf League, after a two-day session over the west course of the Merion Cricket Club, yesterday figured out the winners. The low-net score prize went to D. Lindsay, Jr., and the kickers' tournament was won by A. B. Sherrill.

The Delaware College eleven will assist the Red and Blue in opening the football season. Captain McCaughn, the Delaware quarterback, is shown below the group

Label Goldblatt Takes Up Studies at Old Penn

Label Goldbatt, one of the greatest all-round high school athletes in local history, has taken up his study at the University of Pennsylvania. Today was the former South Philadelphia High star's first day in the medical department at the Quaker institution. While at South Philly, Goldblatt was a three-letter man, having played feature roles on the baseball, football and basketball teams. Because Label is anxious to get a good start on his studies he does not expect to find time to go go out for the freshmen eleven, but he will be among the candidates when baseball and basketball breezes

Bezdek Working Overtime in Effort to Develop Man for Big Games

State College, Pa., Sept. 23 .- Alhough it is hardly likely that Penn State will be pushed very hard in the pening game of the season tomorrow, Coach Bezdek has been working overtime this week in an effort to unearth good, reliable punter. The Blue and White coach realises that in the big games with Dartmouth, Penn. Pitt and others, a good punter will be an absolute necessity. In practice, Bezdek has had no less than six men learning to had no less than six men learning to boot spirals.

Penn State faced the same situation last fall, but at that time Bezdek had the ever-dependable Bob Higgins to fall back upon. Captain Hess is the logical man for the punting job, but he doesn't seem to be able to acquire consistency. "Buck" Williams is really the best nunter on the squad, and he Sersey City, N. J., Sept. 24.—Mike O'Dowd, of St. Paul, former middleweight champion, cleverly outfought Ted (Kid) Lewis, claimant of the English weiterweight and middleweight titles, in a twelve-round bout at the baseball park here last night. The weights were: O'Dowd, 158, and Lewis, 155. The American had the better of every round except the opening one, which was even. There were no knockdowns.
