

'NASSAU' AND YALE BEGIN SCHOOL YEAR

Princeton Expects Enrollment of 2000, Far Surpassing Pre-War Days

CHANGES AT NEW HAVEN

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 29.—As the bells of Nassau hall tolled the hour of 8 yesterday afternoon the faculty of Princeton University, wearing black gowns and orange-lined hoods, led by Colonel William Fisher, Dean West and President John Grier Hibben, filed slowly into Alexander Hall, where the student body had assembled for the formal opening of Princeton's 175th year. Finally, with the faculty sitting behind him in a semicircle on the marble rostrum, Doctor Hibben delivered an address of welcome.

"We are beginning the 175th year of Princeton's history," said Doctor Hibben, "and it is fitting that we should pause to express our grateful recognition and appreciation of the men of the past who have given our university her present name and position in the world.

"For every one of you before me today there are two possibilities. One is that which is characterized by a development along the line of least resistance. Such a course results from an initial desire and determination to have a good time at all hazards, to choose the easy way, to ignore evident duties, to turn aside from obstacles rather than face them and, finally, to acquire a set of habits which lead inevitably, in life, to barren results, disappointed hopes and expectations.

An hour before the beginning of the exercises, the registrar's office reported that 573 new men had registered, 425 being freshmen and 147 men who had transferred their credits to Princeton from other colleges. The number of students enrolled probably will be in the neighborhood of 2000. The pre-war record was 1500.

The influx of students has caused a premium to be placed upon rooming accommodations. The university dormitories were filled weeks ago by men who made early application. Freshmen are crowding the boarding houses on the outskirts of the campus and the college authorities are permitting a doubling-up process in the dormitories wherever possible, three men being allowed to occupy a double suite, and two to take over a single room. Hill Hall is the dormitory most popular with the freshmen, and Patton and Cuyler with the upper classes.

Classes will begin work tomorrow morning with the sounding of the 8 o'clock bell, and all college activities will be in full swing within a few days. The bleachers have been well filled at football practice recently, and the students are talking over the prospects of seeing a championship Tiger eleven on the gridiron.

Society Man Sent to Workhouse
Trenton, Sept. 29.—Richard C. Whitehead, of Greenwood avenue, socially prominent in this city was sentenced by Judge Geraghty in First district police court to serve a sentence of thirty days in the Mercer County Workhouse. Whitehead was charged with operating a motorcar while under the influence of liquor. After the court had found him guilty, Whitehead asked Judge Geraghty to send him to the workhouse, and in doing so the court said that he had found nothing since his term began, so difficult to do because of his friendship for the defendant.

PEACE BODY NONPARTISAN
Enforcement League Issues Statement of Its Attitude
New York, Sept. 29.—The executive committee of the League to Enforce Peace yesterday defined its position on the League of Nations, giving a list of many of the present tasks which the league has undertaken. The statement was prepared some time ago, but has been withheld to wait the approval of William Howard Taft, president of the league, which was received yesterday. The statement said:
"The League to Enforce Peace is a nonpartisan organization founded to secure an association of nations to minimize war. Both parties have confirmed the necessity and given assurance of the formation of such an association. It is not our function to cast our influence on the side of any political party. The statement then points out the activities of the league and goes on:
"The league has not functioned in the present war between Poland and Russia because, being an unfinished part of the great war, it has not been taken out of the hands of the Supreme Council of Allied Powers.
"In view of these facts this committee reaffirms its position that the only practicable method of framing and securing an association to minimize war by either party which may come into office lies in building upon the foundation of the existing League of Nations with such reservations or amendments as may be required and approved by the President and two-thirds of the present members of the League of Nations, and as may be acceptable to the Senate."

Quality Goes Clear Through

Good Looks coupled with

Good Performance

Let your eyes dwell upon the clean, shapely design of the Dort.

Observe how pleasing the body lines are viewed from any angle.

All lines are smooth lines that give a flowing, graceful effect.

No less effort was expended by the Dort engineers in seeking attractive appearance than was put forth toward achieving mechanical excellence.

The satisfaction that you feel in the smooth, competent, trouble-free performance of the Dort is further supplemented and strengthened by your justifiable pride in its outward beauty.
