The dispute as to whether a man olding a college degree should or should not be barred from athletic teams has revived at the University of Pennglvania by John C. Bell, a trustee, and H. Laussat Geyelin, president of the Athletic Association. Mr. Bell and Mr. Geyelin are opposed to the present University regula-tion known as the "degree rule," which prevents any student holding a degree om another school from playing on a University team.

Their attitude, as summed up in letto the Pennsylvanian, the student daily, is that every man in the University should be eligible for ath-

I saw the unifying effect and beneficial result to university spirit of permitting all students to take part in athletics provided they are scholastically and athletically qualified."

Recently the Pennsylvanian warned the student body in an editorial against the attempt that was being made to football team. The stand taken by the Pennsylvanian is that it not only breeds pro-fessionalism but that it is unfair to the students in the strictly undergraduate departments of the University to have to compete against older men who have graduated from other colleges and who seek places on Penn teams. Mr. Bell advocates the

mr. Bell advocates the variaty which permits every student to participate in athletics. 'He declares the 'degree rule' 'is discriminatory, inequitable and an artificial rule.'' MEMBERS WANTED BY PENN SOCIETY

Alumni Organization of Univeriity Will Start Drive to Get 25,000 Names on List

A drive to obtain a membership of at least 25,000 will be begun at once by the University of Pennsylvania General Alumni Association. Thomas W. Hulme. president, announced the beginning of the drive today.

During the summer a general reorganization of the association was completed by a committee headed by A. R. Brunker, of Chicago. The committee also made a survey of the activities of the organization and the work it plans to do.

The main features of the reorganization proposal were argued by the individual societies and by the general organization at its convention in Wilmington last year and the last approval accessary to introduce the new system was not given until late in the summer.

The most important change was perhaps the reduction of the number on the board of directors which hithertofere has been a large, unwieldy body. On but one point was the society un-on but one point was the society un-able to agree, and that was a financial one. Formerly the society had been charging $3 a year dues. Under the proposed reforms, dues would have been abolished and the society supported by means of a weekly magazine to which all the alumni would be asked to sub-scribe. The new board of directors will be charged to effect a settlement on the question.

will be charged to effect a settlement on the question.

The new system also assigns different duties to all departmental societies, rather than having each attempt to do all the work individually. Along with that measure, Edward R. Bushnell, editor-in-chief of the Pennsylvania Gasette, in an editorial appearing in the first edition of the magazine this year, suggests now would be an appropriate time to create a new Wharton School Alumni Society. At present the Wharton School comes under the jurisdiction of the college, along with the Towne Scientific School, the School of Education and the School of Fine Arts.

Mr. Bushnell points out that the membership of the Wharton Society is growing rapidly and probably is equal to, if not greater than, all the others combined. It is, therefore, he centends, entitled to an organization of its own.

New and Delightful Autumn Suits Abound at $30 to $55

In this very moderate price range there is a pleasantly varied collection of suits appropriate for a great many Autumn and Winter occasions. Silvertones and velours are the principal materials used and the colorings are as soft as the texture of the cloth. Quite a number of suits have collars of sealene, nutria or Australian opossum.

The suit at $80, which is sketched, is of brown, reindeer or Copenhagen silvertone, with a collar of nutria. Sizes 14 to 18.

At $39, another silvertone suit is sketched; in navy or brown it has a collar of sealene fur.

Among the Finer Suits

that are quite nice enough to wear to matinees and afternoon teas, are lovely things of llama cloth, duvet de laine, suede velour and such luxurious materials. They are trimmed with heaver, squirrel, nutria or sealene and some are quite handsomely embroidered in silk. $60, $65,

We Never Seem to Be Able to Get Enough Wool Jersey Suits

For sports wear and general outdoor good times wool jersey is incomparable. In rich heather mixtures, these serviceable suits can be had at $17.25, $25 and $35. The jacket of the $35 suit is lined with silk through the yoke and sleeves.

Time for Flannellet Nightgowns

And a great many women are coming in for them! At $2, pink or blue striped or plain white flannellet nightgowns with high collar and long sleeves. At $3, a pink and blue striped flannellet nightgown has a hemstitched voke and no collar.

Also at $3, extra-size flannellet gowns, in pink and blue stripes or plain white, are made with high collars. (Central)

What Lovely Autumn Hats and What a Collection at $10 and $12.50!

Toques Rolling Brim Hats Flaring Hats Large Hats

-but mostly small hats, for they are the smartest for this season of year. For the most part they're of gleaming panne velvets, plain veelvets, combinations of the two and silk combined with either. Black or navy are in the majority, but there are many bright hues—rust, coxcomb red, Nankin blue, amber and pretty combinations.

Trimmings are varied and smart—uncurled ostrich, glycerined ostrich, pretty pins and bright ribbons all used to advantage. A shining example of the smart toques is one of glistening panne velvet with soft folds of the velvet all around and two small, pearly pins peeping out of the folds in front.

In fact, a hat for every face and fancy!
