LOWEST RATE IN HISTORY

By the Associated Press Washington, Oct. 7.—Pennsylvania's population, as reported today by the census bureau, is 8,720,150, an increase of 1,055,048, or 18.6 per cent over the figures of ten years ago. This over the figures of ten years ago. This is the smallest ratio of increase in the history of the state. The total marks Pennsylvania's second largest numerical growth on record, and also the second greatest growth of any state in the 1920 census.

The state retains its rank as second most populous in the Union, which it has held since 1830, when it dislaced Virginia.

While showing a substantial growth at a remarkably uniform rate during every decade since 1790, the population of Pennsylvania increased more rapidly during the first sixty years of the 140-year period ending in 1920 than during the last seventy years. In 1850 the population of the state was more of the country.

The relative growth of the nation from 1900 to 1910 was 21 per cent, but this rate is expected to be cut to at least 15 per cent this year, chiefly, census bureau officials say, through stoppage of immigration during the war and by the heavy emigration during that period.

Tone Building The four generations of Steinways, whose creative genius placed their piano so far in advance of all other musical instruments, were not mere makers of pianos-they were successive groups of experts in tone building. To them the mechanics of the piano, its finish, etc., was elemental work-a matter "of course" in the perfected system of Steinway production. But tone—the spiritual quality of the Steinway—has been the great crowning work of the family. There has been no rival to Steinway tone because no other instrument was ever made under like conditions-successive trained effort of generation upon generation, each new organization's work beginning at the apex of its predeces-
