Nancy Wynne Hears That Rodman Wanamaker Will Sail for Europe Next Month-Miss Ruth Packard to Be Introduced at a Tea Today

RODMAN WANAMAKER, 2d, is shade, which was just right for her very blue eyes. She looked extremely well, I thought. NANCY WYNNE. know he will be twenty-one next Monday, but as he is in mourning for his grandmother there will be no celebration.

Rod is going to sail for Europe on November 27, and he will join Tommy Hitchcock, the polo player, who is studying at Oxford. Rod will return to this country in January, but in May be again will go to Europe. Mrs. Thomson is planning to go with her son in May and to take a house in England during the polo season, while Rod takes part in the international polo bride tournament, which by the way, will be the first one over there since the war. After the golf season they will probably travel on the continent. DUTH PACKARD is to be introat her home in Villanova by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Packard. Buth is a sister of Mary Packard, you know, and a very sweet girl. She and her family returned several weeks ago from the Adirondacks, where they spent July and August at their camp.

A large number of the debutantes. spent July and August at their camp.

A large number of the debutantes will receive with her, some among them being Jane Hepburn (didn't I tell you she is popular as can be). Lysbeth Boyd, Elsie duPont, Augusta Harrison, Virginia Carter, Anne Ashton, Russell Tucker, Ottilie Morris, Elaiue Sellivan, Margaretta Harrison, Polly Griscom, Rita Heckscher, Mary Lloyd Norris, Anne Barciay, Mary R.

WHAT a time poor Mrs. Roland Taylor has had in the last year!
You remember she and her two daughters Marjorie, who is now Mrs. Gordon Hardwick, and Elizabeth, were at the hotel in Old Point Comfort when it was burned down. And now this sum-mer she had gone to Winter Harbor, Me., with Elizabeth for the warm months when Elizabeth was taken down with appendicitis and had to be rushed the Bar Harbor Hospital, where the Bar Parior Hospital, were the was operated upon. Everything went well after that and they were on their yacht coming home when Mrs. Baroara L. Clayton, of Graywyn. Fraylor was taken very ill and just their city home, which they recently purcached Boston in time to be taken to the Bay State Hospital, where she, too, was operated upon for appendicitis. I most of the winter. am glad to be able to sny that she is fragrance of them all.

There were a great many persons there: in fact when I went in about 5 o'clock it was as much as I could do to to get into the drawing room where they were receiving. People often say they are bered by teas, but if they are strictly honest with themselves, they will acknowledge it's more the idea of going than the actual being there, that bores them for when you do go you always have a dandy time and you see so many people you know, and the girls always look so pretty and shy and their frocks are so dainty and sweet.

There were a great many persons them for when you do go you have see them for when you do go you have so dainty and sweet.

DID you happen to notice the frock Mrs. Antelo Devereux was wearing on the last day of the Horse Show at Bryn Mawe? It was most remarkable and also most becoming to her. She is so tiny and dainty that she can wear old gowns like that one, and if you did not see it you really ought to hear about it. It was a navy blue Russian blouse dress made with an extremely short skirt. The blouse was held in with a narrow leather belt and the whole thing was rib-knitted by hand. Mrs. Devereux wore gray silk stockings and tan low shoes with those new buckles which appear to come out of the shoe like a vamp, turn over and end in a long fringe which spreads over the foot. They are very becoming to a small foot or a long narrow one. Mrs. Devereux's foot is very small. She wore a large blue hat, of a sort of turquoise Dib you happen to notice the frock
