

DREAMLAND ADVENTURES

CRAFTY MR. CROW
By DADDY

The birds hold an election to see the Judge Owl or Caw-caw Crow. The Judge Owl or Caw-caw Crow shall be Head Watchman of Birdland. The crows, blackbirds and English sparrows, first in the voting line, but crowding out the other birds, but by a trick, cause the crows to vote for dead fish, the sparrows rush for wild rice, and the sparrows to leave the line to feast on grain in a thrashing yard.

CHAPTER VI
When the Sun Set

"CLANKETY, clank, clank! The sun is almost touching the western hills. As it goes from sight the voting line, Judge Owl or Caw-caw Crow, will then be Head Watchman of Birdland. It is Judge Owl, who was the chief officer in charge of the voting.

Peggy and Billy crowded forward to back the voting was going on. Caw-caw Crow, the crows, blackbirds and English sparrows, first in the voting line, but crowding out the other birds, but by a trick, cause the crows to vote for dead fish, the sparrows rush for wild rice, and the sparrows to leave the line to feast on grain in a thrashing yard.

Lower and lower sank the sun and bigger and bigger grew Judge Owl's pile of votes, until, as the sun sank to the rim of the hills, it became as large as that of Caw-caw Crow.

Back came the crows, flying as fast as they could. They had found the dead fish, but there were only a few and the crows had taken them only a few seconds to tear the fishes to pieces and gobble them down.

"Caw, caw! Let us in line to vote," called Caw-caw Crow, trying to crowd his black voters into the line of regular Birdland birds.

"Clankety, clank, clank! Get back here at the end of the line!" boomed Blue Heron, the officer in charge, and whack! his big stick came down on Caw-caw Crow's back, making him hop, scurry and crawl down on the ground. The stick came down on the back of the crows, and away scurried the chap in a hurry.

Then back came the blackbirds. There were so many of them they they had scripped the wild rice field bare of what had been left by the wild ducks and wild geese. They tried to squeeze into line, but the whacking club of Blue Heron sent them fluttering to the rear.

Next came the English sparrows. The thrashing field hadn't held as much grain as they had thought it would, and had been snatched up so almost no time. But when they tried to get their feet on the voting line, Blue Heron's whacking club found them away to the end, behind the crows and the blackbirds.

When the crows and blackbirds and English sparrows had been at the head of the voting line, Caw-caw Crow had tried to make them go slow, so the other birds wouldn't have a chance to vote. Now he hopped up and down in a frenzy, trying to get the Birdland birds to vote faster and faster.

And the birds did vote fast—they voted so fast that just before he sun sank from view Judge Owl's pile of feather votes became larger than Caw-caw Crow's.

By this time all the regular Birdland birds had voted. As the sun pushed up in line and began to lay their feathers on Caw-caw Crow's pile, the sun set for a moment on the rim of the hills, then the voting line might as though he had gone into a hole.

"Clankety, clank, clank! The sun is down and the voting is over. Judge Owl has the bigger pile of votes, and he is elected Head Watchman of Birdland," announced Blue Heron.

"Caw! Caw! Hurrah! Hurrah!" cheered the Birdland birds.

"Aw! Caw! Caw! No fair! My voters didn't get a chance to vote. There were too many of Judge Owl's voters in line," cawed Caw-caw Crow, forgetting that he had tried the same trick himself. But no one paid any attention to Caw-caw Crow's complaining, except to laugh at him.

As for Judge Owl, he thanked Peggy and Billy for helping him, then he puffed out his chest and walked up to Caw-caw Crow.

"I'm Head Watchman in Birdland now," he cawed. "And when the sun sets, you are here when it gets dark you know will be in charge of the voting. Caw-caw Crow knew, and away he flew, and so did all the crows and blackbirds and English sparrows, leaving Birdland to go to sleep in peace. Head Watchman Owl on guard.

Next week will be told a funny story about Judge Owl.

Great Days of Glowing New Fashions and Worthwhile Economies in Wanamaker's Down Stairs Store

Wonderful Choosing Among Women's Winter Coats These Days

And with October well under way women are beginning to think in earnest about their winter wraps. Between $23.50 and $69 there are hundreds of pretty coats in the Down Stairs Store.

Even at $23.50 to $29 there is variety in the silvertone, velour and polo cloth coats that are lined with silk and often trimmed with sealene fur.

The three coats sketched are all excellent value.

The $32.50 coat is of warm, serviceable cheviot in brown, reindeer or taupe, cut on sports lines with mannish raglan shoulders and a tailored collar. It is half lined with silk. Older women will like the conservative coat at $35, which is sketched. It is of velour in black and navy blue and can be had in sizes 14 to 44.

The third coat is of soft and lovely duvet de laine in taupe, black and brown and is cut on simple lines, which will be becoming to heavy figures. It is lined with silk and has a collar of skunk opossum. Sizes 36 to 44 at $69.

Other soft and luxurious coats of Bolivia, chameleon cord, Calcedonia, tinseltone and duvet de laine, many handsomely trimmed with fur, are here at $59 to $110.

Two Charming New Georgette Blouses at $5.90

Each is in flesh and in white; both are in all sizes from 36 to 46, inclusive.

One has a pretty tucked roll collar that develops into frills in front and is edged with lace.

The other has a charming collar, trimmed with filet lace, and a tucked vest.

Cheery Cretonnes Will Make Your Home Cozy and Inviting for the Winter!

Special Values at 35c to 85c a Yard

For bright curtains and draperies, couch covers, scarfs, lamp shades, for re-upholstering furniture, for sewing aprons—for all of these things, cretonne is like a magic wand, making cheer and giving freshness wherever it is used.

A 25-inch cretonne in many patterns is 35c a yard. 36-inch cretonne is 50c, 65c, 75c and 85c a yard and choosing is excellent.

Particularly good for upholstery is the London crash (cotton), which is 30 inches wide and 65c a yard.

Velour Pillow Covers, Special at $2

Complete, square covers are of excellent quality velour in lovely shades of rose, blue, green, brown and mulberry.

Double-Faced Portieres of Velour

Rich, deep velour is used and the portieres are in various combinations of color, for instance, gold on one side and blue on the other.

Each portiere is 36x90 inches at $34.50 a pair and 50x90 inches at $40 a pair.

Scrim Curtains at $1.75 a Pair

Of nice white scrim, the curtains have hemstitched borders with narrow lace edging.

New and Jolly Sports Suits of Heather Jerseys at $25

They're all-weather suits and jolly companions on country jaunts, as well as on city streets. Colorings are particularly soft, running to navy, mist blue, brown and green tones. Jackets are made in several ways—with box pleats or inverted pleats in the backs and plain or stitched belts. Plenty of pockets, of course.

Other jersey suits at $17.25 to $35. A finer suit with a collar of Australian opossum is $48.75.

Silvertone Is Another Serviceable Material

and it is used in a great many suits this season. Its softness makes it very pleasant to wear and its colorings are most becoming.

At $25 to $39 there are nine different models, some with rippling jackets, some with nutria or sealene collars and, perhaps, bandings of fur. In navy blue, brown, reindeer and Copenhagen blue.

Velour Suits, Trimmed With Fur, $45

Imagine how soft and cozy collars and cuffs of Australian opossum or nutria would be in cold weather. Or perhaps you prefer one of these little box jackets with sealene collars and pockets or rippling coats banded with sealene fur. All are most delightful.

Handsome Model Suits for Young Women

But one, two or three of a kind of most of these suits and their styles are very new and quite original. Most of them are quite elaborately trimmed with fur and the jackets fit closely around the shoulders with a flare below the waist. Any young woman will like them. $50, $60 to $125.

Every Woman Needs an Extra Skirt That Will Stand Hard Wear

A skirt of this type will save the suit, skirt or dress a great deal and is an excellent investment. Good skirts of wool jersey, serge, tricotine, silvertone and broadcloth, plain or pleated, are to be had in regular and extra sizes at $5.75 to $12.75. Many of these are specially priced.

WANT TO STUDY AUTO

Frankford High School Has 200 Applications for Courses

Demand for a course in automotive engineering has reached the point, according to William C. Ash, director of vocational activities in the schools, where more than 200 students have filed applications in the Frankford High School for enrollment in such study.

The growth of the automobile industry, said Mr. Ash, has created the demand on the part of students, who are anxious to qualify themselves as trained men in this industry. Such a course, he said, if adopted, would have to be in the evening schools, although it would be the eventual plan to have such a course in the day schools as well.

REFUGEES LIVE IN MISERY

Fullerton L. Waldo Reports Miserable Conditions Among Greeks

Eight thousand Greek refugees are living miserably in tents on the beach at a Batumi, according to Fullerton L. Waldo, of the Public Liaison staff, who is attached to the American committee for relief in the Near East. Mr. Waldo has just arrived at Constantinople from Armenia.

These refugees, Mr. Waldo told the Associated Press representative at Constantinople, are awaiting transportation to Batumi in six weeks.

No ship has touched at more refugees are being held up at the frontier, as the Georgians are unwilling to permit any more refugees to enter.

Dr. Emily MacCloud and Mr. F. E. Cambo are doing relief work among the refugees, Mr. Waldo said.
