Miss Anna will hot open their house on Winford avenue, Bryn Mawr, but have taken a home at 2031 Pine street for the winter. Among the guests who will attend the and there are several other dinner paries as well.

DAGE ANDERSON is an attractive PAGE ANDERSON is an attractive girl. You know she is from Savan-nah, and came up here to attend Helen Harte's wedding, which took place yea-terday in Jenkintown. Page was one of the bridesmaids, and looked very sweet. She is engaged to Harry Platt Mrs. Charles Platt's son. She has been up here visiting John Hampton Barnes in Westacres, Devon. Cecily Barnes. who is engaged to Emil Geyelin, was also a bridesmaid at the Harte wed-ding.

TTAVE you seen Mrs. William Warden lately? I met her on Chestnut street the other day wearing the most stunning frock of dark brown tricolette, the skirt having several panels, into which were woven stripes of dark red, blue and lighter brown. Her hat was a small affair of brown velvet, and she wore one of those new lace veils and a very good-looking fur. She is certainly the youngest looking person to be a grandmother I have ever seen. You know her daughter, Agnes Mason has a baby, and a very darling on too, I hear.

Among the guests who will attend the dinner tonight to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Collins Maule at their home. Gulf Road, Bryn Mawr, in honor of Miss Ottille Morris, daughter of Mrs. Alfred Paul Morris, before the dance Mr. and Mrs. D. Knickerbacker Boyd will give at the Merion Cricket Club to introduce their daughter. Miss Lyabeth Boyd, will be Miss Henrietta Wilson, Miss Nan Beebee, of New York; Mr. Roger R. Townsend, Mr. Philip Corson and Mr. Edward Kneass. SAW Margáretta Jeanes at the Bellevue the other afternoon looking Edward Kneass. Mr. William P. Martin, Jr., of Chi-cago, son of Mrs. William Wilkins Carr, of Sunset Hill, Ambler, will arrive next week to attend the wedding of his sis-ter. Miss Helene Louise Martin, and Mr. Joseph H. P. Howard, Jr., of San Mateo, Cal., which will be solemnized on Saturday afternoon, October 23, in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Chestnut Hill. The bride will be given in marriage by her brother. sweet in a dark blue tailored suit and a stunning hat of benna duvetyneone of those semilarge toques, turned up in front. It was very becoming and up in front. It was very becoming and suited her exactly. She had some good-looking furs, too. She has just com-home from a trip of several months abroad with her mother and sister, and the two Baird girls. Elizabeth Jeanes is to come out at a dance which her mother. Mrs. Henry S. Jeanes, will give at the Bellevue-Stratford Decem-her 10. her brother. THE Rose Tree races will certainly her brother.

L be exciting this season. You know Mr. Riddle's famous horse "Man O' War" will be there. And this year they are going to have a cafeteria at the races, which will be an innovar early in November. Miss Mary Marvel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Marvel, will be present-ed to society at a tea to be given by her parents on November 29, at their home, Nanticoke, Greenville, Del. Miss Marvel will arrive today and will be the guest of Miss Eloise Warriner, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dexter Warriner, of 135 South Eighteenth street, over the week-and, and will at-tend the dance tonight to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Knickerbacker Boyd in honor of Miss Lysbeth Boyd at the Merion Cricket Club. The nurses attached to the Media Hospital are to have charge of the cafeteria and the proceeds are to go toward the building of a nurses' home. It sounds like a good idea to me.

THERE was a sad atmosphere around Jackie's home the other day when his fond aunt returned from a day in town. She was "put wise" as it were, and her face saddened, too. For Jackie, it appears, had that morning formally and positively refused to go to school. His refusal was so positive, indeed, that, four years old though he was, it was thought better not to force him, but to give a wee lesson instead and, methinks, from the finale of this tale, said lesson went home. Well, as he refused to go to school, it was, de-cided he must be ill and to bed he went from 9 o'clock until 3, with nary a toy nor book to look at. When lunch-eon was sent to him he could not have s second portion, for, "Of course, a boy who will not go to school must be sick." After 3 o'clock he was allowed to get up and when auntie arrived home he approached her and remarked. Mr. and Mrs. John H. Brownback. Jr.

PAULETTE DESIRES TO ACQUAINT YOU WITH THE FACT THAT MENTIONING HER NAME TO THE SHOPS WRITTEN ABOUT AS-SURES YOU SPECIAL COURTESY AND ENABLES HER TO PROCURE FOR YOU BETTER VALUES AND MANY BITS OF CHOICE SHOPPING INFOR-MATION REVEALED ONLY TO THE FAVORED.

A silk sale at Allens, 1214 Chestnut St., is an event worth the telling-you should see the delightful, luxurious silk bargains that are to be on sale this week, satin de luxe, satin radiant, satin charmeuse, heavy dress satin (everything is satin these days, you know), and then there are silk messalines, fancy striped silks, taffetas, etc., etc. I wouldn't miss that sale if I were you -indeed, I wouldn't! Think of lustrous satin de luxe, $2.75 a yard, instead of $5, messaline, $1.75 a yard, instead of $3, and gorgeous satin America at $4 a yard, instead of $6.50. Who wouldn't have a beautiful satin frock at prices like that. Some of the silks will make beautiful linings, and there is some navy blue dress taffeta at $1.95 a yard, excellent quality. Forty-inch satin charmeuse can be had for only $3.35. All these beautiful fabrics, except the taffeta mentioned can be had in a generous assortment of the most fashionable colors. An important sale. Don't miss it! The acme of perfection is reached in the millinery salon of the House of Wenger-there I recently lingered for an entranced half hour, chatting with that creative artist, Chertak Wenger, while she showed me exquisite artist, Chertak wenger, while she showed me exquisite importations and some of her own glorious originations. Chertak Wenger is invariably ahead of the season—that is perhaps the renson that I was so amazed at the number of fine French felts; one does not see their like elsewhere in the city. A Chertak chapeau has an undeniable exclusiveness—that is what I like about the Wenger salon. Mr. Wenger's regal fur creations, to be seen upon the second floor, are also of this character, and in advance of the season. Indeed, some of his 1919 creations are now appearing in some of the shops for the first time. Be very sure that you find the right shop. The House of Wenger is located at 1229 Walnut street, directly opposite the St. James, and is connected with no other shop of that name. Not a shop in town has more delightful kiddies' things than B. F. Dewees, that truly Philadelphia shop, at 1122 Chestnut street. All over town have I been looking at children's coats, but I returned to Dewees. So excellent is the quality of Dewees toppers for girls, little and big, and so attractive are the styles, at $15 up. The sizes begin at two years. Also I had a peep at the dearest little frocks imaginable — beauties — of finest French chambray, in pastel shades, hand finished and smocked—frocks for little aristocrats to be had for a brief while for $5.00, instead of $7.50, in sizes 8 to 6 years. Don't miss the hosiery department eitherbeautiful ribbed stockings, for dress or school-fine mercerized lisle, fall weight, sizes 6 to 9½, at $1.45 for three pairs, in black, white, cordovan and Russia calf. They're wonderful for the price. A step or two down at 1305 Walnut street and there you are in Lilla's little gown shop, surrounded by the prettiest garments you'd want to see for fem-ininity! Each time I pay Lilla a visit I exclaim over her low prices. "How do you do it?" is my invariable cry, and she simply shrugs her shoulders prettily and says, "I am content with reasonable profits and I have the pleasure of seeing my patrons return again and again." And they do, my friends, you may believe me. Lilla has just received some stunning dinner and theatre gowns, including an exquisite black panne velvet of youthful lines for $82.50, a brown all-over lace shadow-ing copper bands at $67.50 and a duck of a black char-meuse afternoon frock at $39.50. The latter would easily Nighta at 8:20 sell for $59.50! Of course, she has many more models. Some stunning little tricotines are just as reasonably priced and just as high quality. I repeat again, "I don't know how she does it!" A long-felt need has been filled by the advent of the Trained Nurse Infant Shop at 1810 Chestnut street. No wonder that it is prospering beyond the wildest dreams of the two graduate nurses whose inspiration it is. Imagine going to a shop and being told what not to buy! That is what happens at this unique little shop—these professional nurses know exactly what is needed and you have the benefit of their professional advice on ever so many things besides their marvelous little layettes absolutely without charge. They are glad to give telephone information, too, and you need not feel under obligations to purchase. It isn't every mother who knows just what young babies should wear in all kinds of weather. When it is impossible for mothers to leave the house a box of little garments will be sent for their selection. The little shop's layettes are indi-vidually selected and they may be simple or elaborate, while at the same time practical. Matinces, 2:15 Week Paulette of October Eleventh
