FUNNY, ISN'T IT, THAT YOU CAN'T BECOME A FOOTBALL STAR UNLESS YOU USE YOUR HEAD?

Dobie is built along the same generous lines as C on n i e M a c k, which makes it possible for him to take a bath in a fountain pen. He has the same jovial disposition as Connie after watching the Ath- letics win the cel- lar championship of the American League for the six th consecutive years.

'How's football team?" was the opening question. Dobie stopped. Then he frowned and said, "How's the

WHAT?" 'The football team.'

'There nin't no such a thing up here," he replied slowly. Then he raised a skinny hand and continued : "Don't ask me to explain. Come out to the field this afternoon and see for yourself.

This seemed strange and unusual. Judging from reports, Cornell was doing well on the gridiron this fail. having scored easy victories in the first three games, piled up a total of 128 points and was all steamed up to take a fall out of Colgate on Saturday. In fact, the Ithacans were touted as one of the most formidable teams in the

The field was crowded with red-jerseyed athletes when I broke through the outer guard. At one end Pendleton, the short, stubby guard, was practicing goals from placement. In the center, some of the players were trying to master the intriencies of the forward pass, and on the other end Carey, last year's freshman captain, was kicking spirals to a lot of ambitious catchers.

After a short session of this, Dobie called his sound together and ordered tackling practice. The dummy was not used and in its place were real live runners. A man would run straight at another and allow himself to be .thrown without opposition: provided, of course, the tackler was able to do it. Most of the time the runner gained the decision

After watching the practice a short time 1 turned to Stan Hunt, the assistant coach, and asked :

'When does the varsity report?' • •

"THIS is the varsity." replied Hunt weavily. "But it isn't so lad as it looks. We have one man who can tackle, but he can't come out this

Football has take the slap and the coach always is working under difficulties

When Dr. Sharpe was head coach he never was able to hold practice on Monday or Friday afternoons, and it was the same with Speedy Rush last year. Dobie has been fortunate in having the daylight-saving time for the remainder of the month, but after that he will have to do his work by electric light.

R^{OMEYN} BERRY, graduate manager, has been of great assistance to the new coach and had ten big electric floodlights put up on the field. Next month these will be used considerably, because this artificial light is the only thing which will allow any practice.

Not a Star on the Team

DOBIE had four teams running through signals later ame tion in the day and the players seemed to be fairly well drilled. The new head coach has taught his men how to ifter go through their formations, and it must have been quite cel-

Two assistant managers sat near me while the signal drill was being held.

"Who is the star of the team?" I asked.

"I don't think we have any," replied one assistant sadly. "Can you think of any?" he asked of his com-1201121021

Cornell did not have much of a team last year. All of the big games were lost and only three small ones re-Shiverick, Carry, Davis, McKenzie, ulted in victories. Miller, Sutton, Taylor, Kraus and Hoag are gone, and Captain Schuler has left coilege. That makes a total of ten. To replace these men Dobie drew exactly three players from the freshman team of last year. They are Carey, quarterback; Munns, end, and Waw, halfback,

Now, if Cornell had a poor team last year and has only three additional men this year, how can the feam make a good showing? If it does, Dobie will have performed a miracle and can be referred to as the Master Mind of the gridiron

There are eight letter men on the squad. Four are on the first team. They are Knaush, tackle; Pendleton, guard ; Dodge, tackle, and Mayer, halfback,

The other men who stand out include Gouinbeck, end, who played on the Lafayette S. A. T. C. team, He also is the best pole vaniter in college. Ebersole, a guard, never played before and was on the freshman crew. Mayer played on the varsity last year and also captains the baseball team. FTER visiting a college and having a look at the A football squad in action one always likes to write a glowing, optimistic, rosy story about the great prospects of the team and how it will triumph in the big games. The only thing which prevents such a story now is the Cornell football team.

I wish I could kick in with a big boost, but it can't be done. The Ithacans have a mediocre football squad this year and all of the coaching in the world will not bring much improvement. The players are willing, hard workers, but lack experience. Individually they are poor; as a team, only fair.

It is hard to believe that a college with 4300 students could have such a football team. After looking over the squad and comparing it to the track team and crew, one wonders if football really is a major sport at Cornell.

But it must be remembered that a football man faces many handicaps and has to sacrifice a lot to play on the team. The scholastic rules are strict-as they should beand a majority of the players have classes up to 5 p. This means they don't get out on the field until 5:30 and then it is almost too dark to do anything.
