Nancy Wynne Chats About the Harrison Dinner-Dance Tonight-She Hears About the Tea to Be Given to Auxiliary No. 1, Red Cross, on Monday

THE first of many parties that have been planned for Augusta Harrison will be given tonight by her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Custis Harrison. Jr., at Chuckswood, their home in Villanova. Augusta is the Harrisons' eldest daughter, though it just seems impossible that she is old enough

Do you remember Augusta and Ellen playing in the square in their smart little tailored coats? It seems only a year or so ago and yet here is Augusta coming out and Ellen a sub-deb. Time do fly, do it not?

AUGUSTA'S party is to be a dinner-dance for the debutante set. It will be very pretty. Autumn foliage and dahlins will be used in the decorations of the rooms and the small tables will have dahlias and chrysanthemums.

than a brunette, and very smart looking. She is having a dandy time, the wee bird told me, and I rather thought she would myself, because she has a charming disposition and is very popular with the girls as well as the boys. MRS. HENRY BRINTON COXE tells me that Auxiliary No. 1 of the Southeastern Chapter of the Amer-lean Red Cross, is to have a reunion at Red Cross hendquarters on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock. There is to be a short business meeting and then a tea and good time. Mrs. Coxe, you know, is chairman of that auxiliary and the nificent work during the war and since then, when there was need, that they remain banded together and are ready for any emergency. They have given up their own headquarters at 1512 Spruce there is occasion at the headquarters. South Rittenhouse square, as they will on Monday. was very interested to hear of the work the women of that auxiliary did during the war. You know originally they comprised the Philadelphia General Chapter for Preparedness, and then when the war came they entered as a body into the Red Cross as Auxiliary No. 1. For a short time they had rooms on the second floor of 608 Chestnut street, and then later moved to 1512 Spruce street. where they virtually occupied the entire house, various rooms being assigned to various activities. Such excellent work did these women do that about the mid-dle of the war the Pennsylvania-Delaware division of the Red Cross took over the whole nuxiliary as an instruction department. Mrs. Coxe had been made director of the Pennsylvania-Delaware department of knitting and Mrs. Ben Brush, who is vice chairman of the auxiliary, was made director of the department of garments for the di-vision first. Finally the whole aux-iliary was used, as I said before, but it never lost its identity as Auxiliary

This auxiliary undertook the first big feeding of the canteen. In fact, Mrs. Coxe says the women have been simply wonderful throughout the whole work. Mrs. Thomas J. Dolan is the second vice chairman of the auxiliary, and Mr. Tom Reath is their treasurer. Mrs. Theodore Cramp had the canteen de-partment. Mrs. William Norris, Mrs. William Campbell, Miss Mary Girvin; in fact. I can't begin to tell you all of those who took part in the work and did it indefatigably. And on Monday they are to have this party, which well be a real reunion and renewal of the ties which bound these carnest women so when mother was called to the telephone for an important reason and so she said . "Darling, kneel down and say your prayers while mother is gone. You know them by heart and it will please God, if you do it all yourself."

The conversation being very short on he telephone, she hastened back to the nursery to look through the crack in the door. There she beheld Billie kneeling on the floor quite a little distance from the bed and saying his little pray-ers in his reverent baby voice.

"Why did Billie kneel so far from the bed?" asked mother when the prayers were finished. "Why I had to," said Billie. "I had to leave room for God's knees." NANCY WYNNE.
