DID you ever know such weather as we having? I just want to be welking out in the country every day, far, far from the madding crowd, away from all the troubles and problems of this great world of ours, and breathe in the air of these perfect fall days. However, it is nice to come back to earth now and again and see the little debs in their party frocks attending the teas and luncheons and dinners and dances. Mary Bayard is being given a luncheon today by her grandmother, Mrs. Charles McKean Bayard, at ner home, 105 East Johnson street, in Germantown. Mary is a sweet girl. She has been at boarding school for a number of years, but has been to the parties and doings during the holidays throughout that time and she is very well liked. Her mother was Miss Esther Starr, and her aunt-in-law, Mrs. Isaac Starr, will entertain for her during the season. Among the debutantes who are stoday's luncheon are Charlotte Starr, Buth Packard, Annabella Wood, Dorotty Stevens, Helen Sewell, Anna Ashton, Mary Bartow, Nancy McKean, Huth Packard, Annabella Wood, Dorothy Stevens, Helen Sewell, Anna Ashton, Mary Bartow, Nancy McKean, Atlee Downs, Marjorie Glbbon, Augusta Harrison, Eleanor Gummey, Elizabeth Jeanes, Polly Griscom, Jane Coxe, Priscilla Davis, Anna Barclay, Mildred Carpenter, Virginia Carter, Eloise Warriner, Mary Howland, Elise du Pont, Jane Hepburn and several others.

HEAR the Charity Ball beneficiaries HEAR the Charity Ball beneficiaries have been named and will be the University Hospital's orthopedic ward, the Jefferson Hospital's maternity department, the Bables' Hospital, the Visiting Nurse Society and the Children's Aid Society.

The ball will be held a week earlier than usual this season. It will be on Thursday, December 2, and all sorts of plans are in the making for a beautiful affair.

THAT was a beautiful tea which Auxiliary No. 1 of the Southeastern Chapter of the Red Cross gave yesterday at Red Cross headquarters. Mrs. Henry Brinton Coxe, who is chairman of that auxiliary, was hostess of the afternoon. Assisting in receiving with Mrs. Coxe were Mrs. Benjamin Rush, Mrs. Thomas J. Dolan, Mrs. William Norris, Mrs. Henry Boyer, Mrs. Theodore Cramp, Mrs. Alfred Weill. Mrs. Jasper Y. Brinton, Mrs. David Lewis, Mrs. Horace Brock, Mrs. Cyrus H. K. Curtis, Miss Mary, Girvin, Mrs. Thomas L. Elwyn, Mrs. Arthur Gerhard, Mrs. James Large, Mrs. William B. Campbell, Mrs. Frank Nirdlinger, Miss Mary Wagner, Miss Lillian Hanson, Mrs. Thomas Robins, Mrs. Milton Work, Miss Etta Goldsmith and Miss Gertrude THAT was a beautiful tea which diss Etta Goldsmith and Miss Gertrude

Smith.

The reception rooms were beautifully decorated, Mrs. Curtis having had a number of flowers brought in and arranged. The object of the tea was to arouse interest in the fourth annual Red Cross rollcall, which, as you know, is to be held from November 11 to 25. There was a short business meeting at 3 o'clock, and after that tea was served. A great many Red Cross members attended, as all of the auxiliaries throughout the city are interested in the drive, out the city are interested in the drive, which is nation-wide, of course.

Y SAW Mrs. Walter Thomson on Chestnut street recently looking very well in a dark blue satin and georgette frock and a small toque of very dark brown velvet. The hat was rimmed off the face and was plain but fashioned of a succession of folds. With it she wore a French lace vell, which was very becoming.

MARY BARTOW is to be intro-duced tomorrow evening at a dance which her parents, the Joe Bartows, will give. Mary is a younger sister of Elizabeth Bartow, who came out last year. Their mother was Miss Margaret Allen and they live on Gravers lane, in the house their grandmother, the late Mrs. Allen, formerly occupied with them. Mrs. Allen died nearly two years ago, and for that reason Elizabeth's formal coming out was postponed last year until after the 1st of January.

Mr. and Mrs. Bartow gave several theatre parties for her then before three of the largest balls of the season.
