

RED CROSS TO PLAN FOR ANNUAL DRIVE

Yearly Meeting of Pennsylvania Chapter Will Be Held Here Tomorrow

ROLLCALL STARTS NOV. 11

Plans for the fourth rollcall, which will begin on November 11, Armistice Day, and also for the work of the ensuing year will be discussed at the annual meeting of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter of the American Red Cross, which will be held tomorrow afternoon in the clover room of the Bellevue-Stratford.

Mrs. August Belmont, of New York, formerly Miss Eleanor Robson, who contributes much of her time and money to the cause of the Red Cross, will be one of the principal speakers.

Dr. Thomas E. Green, of Washington, prominently connected with many patriotic organizations throughout the country, will also speak. Dr. Green is regarded as one of the finest orators in the United States. He was a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church for twenty-five years and elected bishop of Iowa in 1905, but declined the high office.

For many years Dr. Green has taken an active interest in Red Cross work. He has worked untiringly for the cause and has led many movements of the organization in various parts of the country. Dr. Green is at present director of the speakers' bureau at national headquarters.

The former distinguished actress, Eleanor Robson, will speak at the great Red Cross rally here tomorrow

Reports of work done during the last year will be made and these will show highly gratifying results, it is said. The excellent work done during the war has aroused great interest in the organization and its directors look for still bigger results during the year of 1921.

Dr. Charles J. Hatfield, chairman of the organization, will preside at tomorrow's meeting. Annual election of officers for the Southeastern Pennsylvania Chapter is being held today at the headquarters in Rittenhouse Square. The polls will be open all day and returns will be announced tomorrow.

PAVLOVA CHARMS IN DANCE

Gowns Worn in Russian Ballet Are Delight to Eye

Anna Pavlova and her Russian ballet appeared at the Academy of Music last night in a performance for the benefit of the Educational Dressmakers' Alliance. The academy was filled with an enthusiastic and appreciative audience, not composed wholly of dressmakers. Indeed, unless all the signs were misleading, a large part of the audience was made up of those who patronize the dressmakers and those who pay the bills of those who do the patronizing.

If the fashionable women of Philadelphia should begin to wear costumes modeled on some of those seen on the stage last night a filip would be given to all social functions this winter that would serve very well as a substitute for the alcohol which is soon to be lacking in the punch. Take for example the costume worn by Pavlova in the Gavotte Pavlova, which she danced with Alexandre Yellinier. It was of yellow satin. There was stuff in it to cover the figure of the dancer, but the greater part of the satin was in a long train held up from the floor by a strap over the wrist. The satin that might have been used over the shoulders and that might have brought the skirt within reach of the floor was used in the train. It was what the women would call a "fetching costume" in very truth, for it would fetch partners in any ballroom.

But the performance was a brilliant success aside from its relation to educational dressmaking. If the Russian ballet had been produced by the Bolshoi visits those innovators would have a better excuse for existence than they have yet offered. The ballet as produced by Pavlova is a product of order and grace, beauty and subordination of the parts to the whole. In short it is an artistic production of the highest character, full of grace and beauty. The program opened with "Snowflakes," a ballet in one act, to music from Tschalkowski's

"Nutcracker." This was followed by the "Thais" ballet, with the Massenet music, and the conclusion was a set of seven dances, including Polish, Greek, Arabian and Russian. The "Thais" ballet showed Egyptian frescoes and the figures of Greek vases brought to life and moving with ineffable grace. As to Pavlova's dancing, nothing need be said, for it has all been said before. It is enough to remark that she still justifies the reputation which she has won.

PRaises WORK OF FRIENDS

Fullerton L. Waldo Returns From European Trip

"In Berlin and Vienna I saw thousands of children who owe their lives to one meal a day they got from Americans," said Fullerton L. Waldo, who has returned to this city from Finland, Estonia, Czechoslovakia, the Balkans, southern Russia, Turkey, Georgia, Armenia, Germany, Austria and Hungary. He praised the work of the Friends, directed by Robert Marshall, Prof. Henry J. Cadbury and Alfred Scattergood, of this city. "Half the children of Berlin are undernourished, and nine-tenths have tuberculosis latent or developed," he said. "In Vienna I visited the Freyhans barracks three centuries old. A dog that runs into the court is likely to be killed and eaten on the spot. Even the refuse from the streets is collected, unsorted and devoured by the inmates."

The Seat of Honor

SINGER UPHOLSTYLED
The Seat of Honor

The comfort and beauty of the home depends in large measure on the living room suite

EVERY woman knows that a trade mark is a manufacturer's guaranty that his goods are what they seem to be. Inferior goods are never trade-marked.

A careful housekeeper knows the name of her refrigerator and her kitchen cabinet. She looks for the maker's name when she buys a fountain pen or a box of talcum powder.

SINGER UPHOLSTYLED
The Seat of Honor

Do not spend hundreds of dollars for a living room suite without first looking to see whose name is on it as a guaranty that it is good furniture and will wear.

Always look for the SINGER trade mark. It stands for rare beauty of design and craftsmanship.
