She has a set were, but she actually is not, you BESSIE DOWNS EVANS is to be the youngest patroness of the Assemblies this year, the bride of the year as it were, but she actually is not, you know, for she has been married two, nearly three years. I have noticed very often of late the committee has not stuck strictly to that old tradition. Last year they had one, Mrs. Charlie Cheston, who was Harriet Frazier. I remember how sweet she looked at the first one, too. She has such blue eyes and they show so beautifully when she wears blue. Bessie Evans is very pretty, too, and would certainly have been the bride of the year when she was married, but the war being then a present thing the Assemblies, as well as all the other large balls, were discontinued till after peace was signed.

The other patronesses this year are to be Mrs. Thomas Leaming, who is Rita Heckscher's grandmother, you know: Mrs. Charles Eckley Coxe mother of Jane Coxe, another debutante; Mrs. George C. Thayer, whose daughter, George C. Thayer, whose daughter, Mary B. Thayer, was introduced recently at a tea; Mrs. Cap Morris, who was Helen Cuyler, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. De Witt Cuyler; Mrs. Ted Paul, who was Adeline Pepper, daughter of the George Wharton Peppers, and Mrs. Evans.

AM glad to hear that the Junior League is coming much to the fore again. It rather died down here during the war, when Emergency Aid Aides and National League for Women's Service seemed to fill the requirements of the time. The League still existed, however, and this year it is being well revived. Members are taking part in the "Talk of the Town," which is to be given at the Academy of Music next mouth, and today they are to have their be given at the Academy of Music next month, and today they are to have their first fall meeting at the Emergency Aid rooms, 221 South Eighteenth street, Mr. Ccorgo Wharton Pepper will give an address today. I understand, and a wee bird whispered to me that the League intends to do really active work through the year.

Some of those in the Junior League are Gainor Baird, Catherine Coxe, Mrs. Norton Downs, Mrs. Ralph Earle, Mrs. Lincoln Godfrey, Jr., Margaretta Jeanes, Hope Wilson, Jean Thompson Thayer, Frances Scott, Mrs. Aleck Yarnall and a number of others.

It is for this worthy cause that the committee, of which Mrs. John Rogers Maxwell is chairman, has arranged a most novel entertainment. Like a three-ringed circus, the affair will have something for all ages, afternoon and evening. and evening.

Those who will entertain at dinners

Those who will entertain at dinners at the club include: Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell, who will entertain in honor of their niece, Miss Elizabeth P. Hull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William I. Hull; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Thornton will give a dinner for their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Thornton, at which sixteen guests will be present; Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Janney, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll B. Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. Logan McCoy, Mrs. Charles J. McIlvaine, Miss Esther Lloyd and Miss Edith Collins.

MARY BAYARD is to be given a large luncheon today by her grandmother, Mrs. Charles McKean Bayard, and Mary Bartow is to be introduced at a dance which her parents, the Josiah Bartows, will give. Through a mistake in print, it was said yesterday in this column that Mary Bayard's luncheon was on that day. It was changed as soon as the error was noted. I hope no confusion ensued from the mistake.

OPEAKING of debutantes, there seem to be new ones cropping up every day. I hear Helene Turner is to make her debut this season, the date for her tea having been somewhat delayed on account of her mother having been ill.

girl and is very attractive. She has a very pretty reserved manner and is very well liked. She has large hazel eyes and light brown hair, and one of those lovely rose-leaf complexions. She dances very well, too. Mrs. Turner, who was Miss Adeline Carr, is a Bostonian, so Helene has not many Philadelphia relatives, but she has lots of friends, and I hear there are plenty of entertainments in the making.
