Letters to the Editor

Ministers Marrying Divorcees the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: readers approve of a minister's marrymg a woman or a man who has been diversed. I am a minister myself, and note what "Mrs. A. T. H." says about the performing of the marriage ceresnonies of diversed parties. I detest the minister was knowingly would unite in marriage any parts who have been diversed when the who have been divorced when the of that divorce was a question-

What does our Lord plainly declars in Matthew v. 21-22; zix, 8-9? And for a minister to unite such guilty parties is particeps criminis. and remarriage, that long will she be shorn of a great part of her strength. There can be no real advancement to the church until this abominable evil is put aside.

Says "Don't Be Egotistical"

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:

Sir-Kindly print the following for the benefit of "Mary T. L." whose letter of the 21st inst. appears in tonight's edition:
To judge by the description you give of rougelf, you should have quite a number of friends. Now, the fact that you haven't of friends. Now, the fact that you haven't any may be due to the following reasons:

Perhaps you are overanxious in pointing sut your good qualities to a "would-be friend": or, perhaps, you are a trifle too frank in your criticisms of other girls.

Most of us humans are aware of the fact that we have faults. We are, perchance, confronted with a person who seems to have no faults at all, and is quite conscious of it and doesn't mind telling us.

Our sole aim will be to behave in our very best manner when in the company of such a person, and, after our departure, thank our lucky stars that we got away without making a break and resolve not to take any chances hereafter.

without making a break and resolve not to take any chances hereafter.

If you will try to overlook some of the things you do not approve of in others and look for their good qualities and speak freely of what you have found to their advantage, at the same time avoiding the use of the capital "I." you will at once become attractive to others.

It is well to practice what you preach, but in your case there may be a subtle wisdom in not to preach what you practice. If this bit of advice is painful to you. "Mary T. L." or has caused you a feeling of annoyance, it will be a sign that there is, somewhere in it the answer to your question. to your question, ONE WITH MANY PRIENDS. Philadelphia, October 27, 1920.

Subdued Incorrigible Daughter To the Ecitor of the Evening Public Ledoer: Sir-To 'Mrs. E. L. G...' who has spoiled her daughter: Let me say, do what Mrs. Haines advises you to do at once. Just a few days ago I saw a mother whip her eightlate at night and would not get up when her mother called her to go to her work in the morning. She had not been whipped for years.

This woman is a second or second house. She told me her troubles, so I advised her to whip this incorrigible daughter. The girl is very big and strong, and this seemed no easy task, but where there's a will there's a way.

rning she refused to get up, the mother lost her temper, and asked me to help her, which I gladly did. She pulled the spoiled girl out of bed and turned her across a sofs. While I held her down the mother a sofa. While I held her down the mother maye her a good, old-fashioned spanking. She soon cried for mercy, and promised to ekey her mother.

To humiliate her more, the mother took and kept her in the room clothes away and kept her in the room day. It cured the girl all right. Next and day. It cured the siri an right. Seek morning she was up early and went to work, and is afraid of her mother now.

Now, "Mrs. E. L. G.," spank your daughter while she is in bed, in the healthy, old-time way, and you will cure her. Let us me way, and you will cure her. Let ear from you soon, THOMAS WATSON. Philadelphia, October 28, 1920.

Opposes Sunday Baseball Games To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:

ettes in this country. Because they allow them does not say that we have to follow in their footsteps. Each city has a right to decide for itself. Nor am I opposed to Sunday sports alone: I am also opposed to the opening of the places of amusement on y. The same people who argue for baseball also argue for the theaneed the exercise and to be in the open air after being confined in offices and factories all week. In the second they ask for reo-reation of this character, even though it is enjoyed in a badly ventilated building. The whole thing is illogical,

As to Sunday baseball, I am sure you will find that the majority of those who enwait and that the majority of those who are confined in offices and factories, especially in the former. As a rule it is too strenuous for the office man to engage in. I do not believe that the average person cares an lota about Sunday baseball, but only the base-ball fanatics, who are making all the trou-ble. Where a small audience assembles to enfor the game a bigger audience made up of the residents of the neighborhood are very much annoyed by the hoodlumism that very much annoyed by the hoodlumism that accompanies the sport.

Sunday is a day of rest and quiet enjoyment, and the man is better fitted for the week's work who spends the day as quietly and with as little vigor as possible, especially if his work during the coming seven days is strenuous. While some may be benefited by the same. I am sure that the big majority of those who play and who attend, from my observation, are not benefited physically, and I am sure not montally and morally.

The way to enjoy the Sabbath most, in

The way to enjoy the Sabbath most, in my estimation, is to attend divine service in the morning: in the afternoon, when the weather permits, to go out into the country and enjoy nature and the fresh air, and the evening should be spent at home with the family and friends who may be gathered about the circle. No harm can be done in can be done in the schedule, to give offense to any one or to prove an annoyance to your nighbors or to any neighborhood.

The theatres should not be open Sundays for the reason that every one should be given one day out of the seven for diversion of a different sort from what he is compelled to go through the other six. The people who work about the theatres and picture houses do not want the additional day's work; neither do the actors, the help his sort of the musicians or any one who is engaged in this sort of work. If you do not care to keep the Sabbath from a Christian stand-point, then keep it for the benefit of yourselves and your families. CHARLES T. MYERS. Philadelphia, October 24, 1920.

The Housing Situation To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger Sir-The belief on the part of a great many people that the prices of homes are soins to show a great decline in the near future, I consider is unwarranted from the Within a few years, no doubt, there is going to be considerable of a decline, was a great but prices will never go back to what they bace were. The reason for this is ap-parent. It is only by very slow stages "Away, awa that labor cost is going to be reduced, and that the high cost of materials is going to some back to a normal basis.

The number of building operations that are in progress is going to furnish but a very small percentage of homes for those who are seeking them, and this is going to maintain the purchasing prices. Until there is sufficient building each year to meet the demands, it is not to be expected that the prices of homes are going to be materially less. This is most unfortunate, for there is a gradual tendency of salaries to be reduced, and as long as this confidence with the salaries of the salarie condition exists, it is going to make it harder for the persons receiving a salary to meet the continued high rate of cost of orrything.

Once the public has got to the point where their salaries will not permit them to buy, then there will have to be a decime, but that point is at least a few years who are holding off off, and those persons who are holding off heir purchases awaiting the reduction, soing to find many causes for disap-tment at the delay.

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger Sir—I am sending an old song asked for by "W. H. K.," Camden, N. J., in the EVENING PUBLIC LEDGER of October 22. "SOME DAY I'LL WANDER BACK

Some day I'll wander back again To where the old home stards. Eencath the old tree down the lane, Afar in other lands. It's humble roof will shelter me From every care and pain; And life be sweet as sweet can be When I am home again.

Some day I'll wander back again To scenes so dear to me To where sweet infancy's refrain Beside a mother's krase.
To live again those happy hours
Of childhood's merry play:
No thorns, but only sweetest flowers. There in life's merry way.

Some day's I'll wander back again To hearts so kind and true, Whose cherished faces still remain In memory's cherished view.

No more my wayward feet shall roam
Life's dreary pathway o'er.

But in the light and love of home

Shall rest forever more. CHORUS I'll wander back, yes, back again Where childhood's home may be And memory in sweet refrain Still sings its songs to me. EDWARD CARRIGAN.

Father's a drunkard and mother is dead. Mother, ch! why did you leave me alone With ne one to love me, no friends and no home?

Dark is the night, and the storm rages wild; God pity Bessie, the drunkard's lone child We were so happy till father drank rum. Then all our troubles and sorrows begun; Mother grew paler and wept evere day. Baby and I were too hungry to play. Slowly they faded, and one summer's night Found their sweet faces all silent and white. And with big tears slowly dropping. I said: Father's a drunkard and mother is dead,

Oh! if some temp'rance men only could find Poor, wretched father, and speak very kind; If they could stop him from drinking, why I would feel very happy, so happy again.
