

SOPHS TO PUNISH NAUGHTY CO-EDS

Dutch Supper Will Be Bait to Lure Girls Who Have Broken Rules

MYSTERY HIDES PENALTIES

Naughty University of Pennsylvania co-eds, who have persisted in disobeying freshman regulations, will be brought to judgment today when the sophomore class entertains the yearlings at a cold supper in the architectural building at 9:30 o'clock. Herein lies the secret. Under the misleading guise of a Dutch supper, the sophs have planned to tempt the offending members of the first-year class into their clutches.

Just what they are going to do with them by way of punishment is more or less of a mystery. But from what could be gathered from the innumerable rumors circulating around the campus, it is suspected that the innocent freshmen will be obliged to entertain their hosts with some light fantastic dancing, at least.

Just now the officers of the 1923 class, under the leadership of Miss Rose Schars, recently elected president, are endeavoring to overcome the one serious obstacle which threatens to interfere with their plans. At the scheduled time for the banquet there are always still a few architectural students in the building completing their assigned drawings, and the co-eds fear intrusion into their sacred festivities. However, it is thought that a solution of the problem will be found in time.

For many years it has been a traditional custom for the second-year class to entertain the freshmen at this time and to publish the names of those who have violated the freshman regulations. The so-called freshman blacklist this year is unusually long and as the regulations will not be enforced after tonight it was considered a fit time to penalize

Foremen Training

In this period of reconstruction, trained men will come out on top. Under the personal direction of Mr. George J. Barber, of New York, we shall conduct a course in Industrial Management for foremen and executives, commencing Friday, November 5. Call or write for leaflet to opening session. A few free scholarships for discharged service men.

those who have been habitually disregarding the rules. It is at this time, also, that the name of the freshman class president is announced. She will immediately take charge of the class and it will be her duty to frame freshman regulations for next year and see that they are enforced.

UNITED STATES ARMY TRANSPORTS FOR SALE!

BY THE WAR DEPARTMENT

IT WILL stir the imagination of the shipping world to learn that the United States Army is about to turn back to the commerce of the world those fine old veterans of two wars, the transports Meade, Warren, Crook and Kilpatrick, with five others at a later date.

Carrying the halo of a glorious past, they stand ready to shoulder the burden of the congested freight of the world.

The War Department has decided to place these vessels before the shipping world with no hampering restrictions regarding trade routes or freight rates, and with the understanding that at the option of the purchaser either American or British registry may be obtained.

Points of compelling interest, history, deck plans and details of construction are contained in an illustrated booklet which is available upon application by responsible parties.

Don't Be a Sluggard in Politics

DON'T be a hold-back and hold-out—a laggard. Promise us and promise yourself that you will take a keener interest in your own city government. You are very deeply interested in your own personal affairs. Naturally!

But the Bureau of Municipal Research wants you to know that the business of government is as much your business as is the proper rearing of your children.

Indifference to what is going on in the political world, lethargy where public affairs are concerned, is as inexcusable in you as it is in your neighbor; is as unpardonable as laxity in discharging your personal obligations, your business obligations, or your social obligations.

Promise yourself that beginning this Election Day you will take a LASTING interest in Government.

American democracy is a huge game at which all of us are or ought to be trying to play. Its rules are not very definite, and there are plenty of pikers who are willing to cheat, and plenty of people who show an indifference to the world around them. But the game goes on, nevertheless. Fundamentally, the thing we are playing for is service to the community. Our game is like "drop-the-handkerchief" or "three-deep," in which everybody takes part and the whole group plays the game for the good of every one. But we have grown sophisticated and haven't been content with the simple issue of good government. We have changed the form of the game. We have amused ourselves by lining up into parties and factions and fighting for possession of office. Only in great crises does our interest return to the original purpose of Government. In our attitude toward "politics" we have behaved like thoughtless children who get so interested in "choosing sides" that they forget the game they started out to play. Politicians are forever "choosing sides"; statesmen remember the game is to be played after the sides are chosen. "Politics"—professional politics—is a sport for the few. Government is the game which we all can play, and which goes on all the year.
