Nancy Wynne Speaks of the Tea to Introduce Miss Charlotte Churchill Starr-She Attends the Women Writers' Children's Party

CHARLOTTE STARE is to be introduced this afternoon at a tea to be given by her uncle and aunt, Mr.
and Mrs. Oliver Boyce Judson, and, while I think of it, the Judsons have arranged to have motors meet the 8:47 and 4:23 trains from Broad street this afternoon for St. Martins, so if you do not find it convenient to go out in a motor, you can use the train and still will not have to walk from the station.

Charlotte Stave is very good looking.

Charlotte Starr is very good looking, very dark of course (both her father and mother are extremely dark, you know), and she is very vivacious and artistic. I told you I think that she is keeping up her art study during the weekdays for at least an hour a day. She is very much in earnest in her work and means to make something of it.

I think it is always so fine if one night, and it certainly came up to my expectations. Such a joyous set of children I have never seen. There were babies in long clothes and little boys of three and four years of age, little girls of five and alv with long mark. of five and six with long curls, large nurses. All these little children played just as nicely as possible and their milk and ate their cakes and candies and played jacks and tid-dledy-winks and had a wonderful time. Any one looking on would have thought what a nice lot of little children and would have been amazed, indeed, to know that most, if not, all of them had passed the quarter of a century mark in years. For the frolicome mark in years. For the frolicsome Women Writers had their children's party, and not a writer, no matter ow great or dignified her nature, as allowed to enter the clubroom last tht unless she was dressed as a child ler ten years of age. It was a sight well worth seeing. I would not have missed it for worlds.

That sort of heather material, homespun which is mottled you know, is quite the rage. I saw Mrs. John B. quite the rage. I saw Mrs. John B. Townsend on Chestnut street yesterday vearing a suit of a sort of light inte colored homespun. Her hat was rather a large toque with a wide up-turned brim of folds of brown velvet.

REN'T you excited to pieces about A voting today? I went up to the ways and means committee meeting yesterday at 11 o'clock and heard a most interesting address given by Mrs.

I. H. O'Harra. She explained the wisdom of voting a straight ticket for this election at least. Many of the women are so new in the practical part of voting, she explained, they might make a mistake if they split the ticket and their votes would then be thrown and their votes would then be thrown out entirely. It was a most interesting meeting and the committee has certainly done great work, judging from the report. The women formed a per-manent Republican club up there, after

WELL, I suppose yesterday you got into the cars and it took you about an hour to go two squares, because everyone who was getting out tried to pay five cents and had to stop and fish around for two cents more when re-minded of the change and then when they wanted a strip of tickets some of the poor conductors had no more to sell. The conductors were pretty patient too, because different trate and unreasonable souls were condemning the company, and fussing generally, but one finally could not stand it another mo-ment and in the car in which I was taking my siesta, when a woman remarked: "Suppose we refuse to pay seven cents, if you cannot supply us with four tickets, what will you do?" son, J. Elkins, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lorimer, of Belgraeme, Wynuote, will also give a theatre party and supper at the Bellevue-Stratford, on Monday, Novembar 29, in Miss Sewell's honor. Several other entertainments are being planned for Miss Sewell.

I think it is always so fine if one has a talent to make the most of it, don't you? Charlotte is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Starr. She spent several years at boarding school before coming out, but has always been at home for the holidays and has attended the dancing classes and other parties.

Of course Mrs. Starr will receive with Mrs. Judson, and the debutantes assisting will be Virginia Carter, Anne Ashton, Jane Coxe, Polly Griscom, Eleanor Gummey, Marianne Harris, A wedding of social importance to this

MISS E. G. WILLIAMS WEDS MR. C. A. SCULLY

Marriage Takes Place at St. Asaph's Episcopal Church,

A wedding of social importance was solemnised at 13:30 o'clock today in St. Asaph's Episcopal Church Bala. When Miss Elizabeth Good Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Evans Williams, of Overleigh, Bala. became the bride of Mr. Charles Allison Scully.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harrison B. Wright, rector of the church. The bride, who was given in mariage by her father, wore a gown of livory white satin adorned with old family lace. The long court train, which extended from the shoulders, was edged with Brussels point lace. Her veil was composed of tuile, surmounted by a grown of lace fastened at each side with a cluster of orange blosoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids.

Mrs. Johns Hopkins attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a smart frock of orange-color satin, fashloned on simple lines, unadorned. Her hat of brown velvet was trimmed with brown plumes and she carried an arm bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaids were Miss Mary M. Williams, another sister of the bride, and Miss Elizabeth T. Williams, of Hartford, cousin of the bride. They wore attractive frocks of cafe au lait color satin, unadorned, with large brown velvet picture hats, trimmed with orange-colored piumes. They also carried bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums. The two small flower girls were Miss Gainor Roberts, daughter of Mrs. T. Williams Roberts, daughter of Mrs. T. Williams Roberts, and Miss Maida Williams, niece of the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Evans Williams, Jr. They wore simple frocks of white organde with dainty organdle hats and carried small baskets of autumn flowers and foliage.

Mr. H. Bartol Register attended as best man.

The ushers included Mr. Stockton Townsend, Mr. David Evans Williams, Jr., brother of the bride; Mr. Johns Hopkins, brother-in-law of the
