

NEW VOTERS TAKE RESULTS CALMLY

Republican Women Happy but Restrained, and Democrats Good Losers

AWAITED LATE RETURNS

"Isn't it heavenly?" breathed the Republican women with ecstatic sighs. "It shall never be said of us that we are poor losers," said the newly enfranchised Democratic citizens, smiling bravely.

That was the way Philadelphia party women took the election returns. Many of them, despite the deluge of rain and the wind that turned umbrellas inside out, remained down town until late last night and are sleeping late today in the calm conviction that early returns are true indications of the real result. It was a quiet evening at all places where returns were received. The women didn't even have the consolation of smokes, poker, or billiards. At the Republican women's headquarters, in the Crozer Building, the first comers straggled in about 8 o'clock, sedately took seats in Griffith Hall and gossiped till the first returns came in. Gradually the audience increased and at 11 o'clock when the storm had somewhat subsided, the place was comfortably filled. Community singing, special entertainers and announcements of returns relieved the tension of waiting.

Women Workers Happy
Between times, the women talked about their experiences of the day, or teased one another about voting.

"It has been very calm everywhere," said Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton, chairman of the state Republican women's committee. "The most excitement I heard of was when some Democratic women threatened to challenge my vote, claiming I was not an American citizen. Too bad to disappoint them, but my vote was cast and is perfectly legal."

Mrs. John J. O'Brien, former mayor of Moorestown, Pa., who has been aiding in the Republican campaign here, and who had charge of the G. O. P. cafeteria, was jubilant all evening. "The women have worked splendidly and voted splendidly," she said. "The returns are what I expected and certainly pleasing."

Mrs. Dolson Altemus, Mrs. Thomas Edwin, Mrs. Thomas Robins, Mrs. Norman McCloud and many others of the "faithfuls" of the campaign, stood about or went from telephone to auditorium, keeping in touch with every slight bit of incoming news.

Light luncheon was served to the waiters at the G. O. P. headquarters about 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Warburton and others left at 11 to visit state headquarters. "Not for any special celebration; simply to see what the men are doing there," they said.

Wanted Some Excitement
Women at the Crozer Building and attending all the small parties given afterward at hotels and clubs had the same attitude. They didn't want to miss any fun or any experience of their first election. Most of them were disappointed because of the calmness of things. They didn't voice it loudly, but they would have been most interested if there had been a few riots, a closer presidential race or some local excitement.

At the Democratic women's headquarters, 38 South Sixteenth street, only a handful of women gathered after 9 o'clock. Mrs. Gertrude Mellon was in charge. Mrs. Edward P. Davis, chairman, who was among the first to vote in her district yesterday morning, was worn out from a day of constant and careful watching at the polls. She received returns at her home, 250 South Twenty-first street, calling up headquarters now and then to tell or receive the latest news and to cheer the waiters in the little third-story headquarters room.

"I am very proud of the women," said Mrs. Mellon, "for their quiet, dignified and intelligent method of voting. Other than the fact there are more votes to count and that additional preparation was necessary, the women's vote has made this election day little different than in former years. There is in most districts a splendid feeling between Democratic and Republican women. We remain good friends in spite of differences in party beliefs."

"The only funny thing I experienced concerning partisanship was in a district where I asked for Mrs. Davis and a Republican woman answered, 'Who do you mean, Mrs. Democrat Davis?'"

Thomas Higgins, of the Twenty-seventh ward, entertained Democratic women who braved the storm and waited for returns at headquarters late last night.

NEW CONGRESSMAN AND HIS HOME

James J. Connolly, newly elected Republican congressman from the Fifth district, has lived in this modest two-story house at 2615 East Clearfield street ever since his marriage thirteen years ago. He and his wife and four young children will continue to live there in spite of his new honors, for they declare they are "home people" and have no desire for the social life of Washington.

CONNOLLY HOME JUBILANT

New Congressman and Family Take Election Modestly

There was quiet jubilation in the house of Connolly today. The nominal head of it, James J. Connolly, was elected congressman from the Fifth district on the Republican ticket yesterday. The real head of it, Mrs. James J. Connolly, a pretty, young-looking woman with wavy brown hair and blue eyes, today owned up that she was very much pleased with the result of the election.

The Connollys live at 2615 East Clearfield street. They have four children, two of whom, Margaret and James, Jr., went to school today just as though their father had not suddenly become a celebrity. The other children, Billy and Catherine, are too young for lessons.

"I am just a home woman," Mrs. Connolly said today, "and that is where my chief interests lie. That is about all that can be said of me."

In a previous interview Mrs. Connolly said she was not looking forward to any social life in Washington, but preferred to go on in a quiet home way here with the children in Philadelphia.

REBUKE TO WILSON IS SEEN BY SPROUL

Governor Says People Have Repudiated "Political Insincerity" in Plain Manner

TALKS TO UNION LEAGUE

"The American people have rendered the most decisive verdict in a generation. This was the comment of Governor Sproul today on the result of the election.

"The people have repudiated political insincerity," the Governor added, "by the greatest majority in history."

"The Cox tactics, appealing at the same time to the lowest element of our population and to the half-baked philosophy, failed to judge the great, sober sense of America, and the whole Wilson program is thrown overboard by a disgusted and resentful nation."

Early in the evening Governor Sproul sent this telegram to Senator Harding: "To the Hon. Warren G. Harding, Marion, O.: 'It looks as though this submerged state will give you a majority of 200,000. This, of course, is not news to Pennsylvanians, but it shows the trend of the nation.'

"WILLIAM C. SPROUL."
At 11 o'clock the governor sent another message of congratulation to Senator Harding: "To the Hon. Warren G. Harding, Marion, O.: 'Our counting machines have run over the top figures. It looks like more than a million in Pennsylvania. This state will keep the banner.'

"WILLIAM C. SPROUL."
Mayor Moore last night sent the following telegram to Senator Warren G. Harding at Marion, O.: "Your Philadelphia friends are enthusiastic. The country is to be congratulated."

"J. HAMPTON MOORE, Mayor of Philadelphia."

SECRETARY FOR HARDING

R. W. Child, Writer and Lawyer, Expected to Get Post
Marion, O., Nov. 3.—Richard Washburn Child, writer and lawyer, is expected to be Senator Harding's private secretary at Washington. The appointment is not yet officially announced.

RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD Lawyer and litterateur, who is expected to be chosen by President-elect Harding as his secretary. He is a resident of New York city.

or generally known, but there is reason to believe it is imminent.

Mr. Child is thirty-nine years old and a native of Worcester, Mass. He is an A. B. of Harvard (1908) and was made an LL. D. of the same university in 1906. Before America's entry into the war Mr. Child was a special correspondent in Europe, serving with the Russian army on the eastern front in 1915 and 1916. In 1917 and 1918 he was assistant to Frank A. Vanderlip in the war savings department of the treasury. In 1919 he became editor of Collier's Weekly.

Mr. Child at present is engaged in law practice in New York city, though during the campaign he was attached to Senator Harding's headquarters at Marion as an adviser on publicity matters. He is the author of several books and a widely known contributor to magazines, including the Saturday Evening Post. He is married and has two children.

Mr. Child will spend his summer vacations in Pennsylvania, having recently purchased a cottage at Buckhill Falls, in the Pocono mountains.

PARTY UNITY HERE URGED BY WATSON

Vare Leader Says Harding Victory Should Be Signal for Harmony

COMMENDS WOMEN'S VOTE

A plea for harmony among all factions of Republicanism here was made today by Thomas F. Watson, chairman of the Republican city committee. The sweeping Republican victory, he said, was a call to harmony.

"The Harding plurality in Philadelphia is very gratifying," Mr. Watson declared. "It is a wonderful thing that the vote was as big as it was considering the little help that Philadelphia had from any source."

"The women are to be especially commended for their intelligent vote and the men for their courtesy to the women at the polls. Everything went off harmoniously."

"In going around my ward, the Twenty-second, for example, I noticed that the men and women got along splendidly, and when there was a question of political strategy the women often outwitted the men."

"The big vote in the city, state and nation augurs well for continued Republican domination for many years to come."

Commenting on reports that Joseph

C. Trainer may be "read out" of the city committee, Mr. Watson said: "I did say something like that, but I don't want to say anything now. The fight is over. I only hope that the Republicans will be able to get along better hereafter in this city. No personal grievances should exist. We should unite. If we are all Republicans we should all work together and not continually try to keep pulling apart."

"As chairman of the city committee, it will be my mission to make this great Republican party the basis for harmonious action all along the line which will make it successful for years to come."

Women in Jersey Assembly

Trenton, Nov. 3.—The next State Legislature will have the novelty of two women members, Margaret B. Laird and Jennie C. Van Ness, both Republicans, elected from Essex county.

Reid & Fort Were The First To Do It

To our best knowledge, we were first in the United States to offer Kirschbaum Clothes at a 25 percent discount. And we did it without any juggling of prices preceding this event—without the bringing in of sale lots or undesirable merchandise.

The original prices were marked on the closest basis in our whole history—and of course with no thought that any discount would later be offered. This action was taken to meet fully the public viewpoint on prices—taken in the usual honest, straight-forward R. & F. way.

Where else can these prices, these goods, these values be matched?

25 Percent Discount On Our Entire Clothing Stock

Which fully anticipates any possible decline for at least six months to come.

When the clothing market was rising, Reid & Fort were one of the few stores who marked their goods upon a strict basis of wholesale costs—not upon the replacement values which were increasing day by day. Now as the market declines we are reversing that policy—reducing our goods to replacement value, irrespective of the wholesale prices we paid. In offering a 25 percent discount on suits and overcoats, we have done that—and more.

Discounts made at time of purchase. Necessary alterations at actual cost.
