Leeds Vauchan Waters, one-time of a former Philadelphia woman and a wea'thy c'ubman, was besten to death early vesterday morning with his own gold-headed cane in a New York hotel room he had shared with a roughly dressed young man.

The supposed murderer, who had registered as "James Dunn, Milwaukee," fled from the room, carrying the heavy cane, as a hotel clerk was harrying down the corridor. The clerk had been attracted by the noise of a strug-

Waters asked John Car-ney, the night clerk, for a room, and paid in advance. He left a call for 7:45 o'clock.

At 6:55 o'clock an e'evator boy told the night clerk a struggle was going on in the room assigned the newcomers. Carney told the two belated guests to stop the noise. The struggle was reumed a few minutes later, and as Carney ran up he noticed the room door
