Nancy Wynne Talks of the Fall Luncheons at Sedgley Club, Fairmount Park-She Sees Some Pretty Frocks at the Robert Montgomery Dance

Prince de Bearn de Chalais, serving as charge d'affaires of the French Embassy, will be best man, and Mrs. Charles de Rham, Ruth's sister, will be matron of honor. Small Griswold Flagg and David King Flagg will serve as pages for their aunt. The wedding will take place at the Kings' home, 9 East Seventy-ninth street. A reception for the relatives and intimate friends will be given after the ceremony.

THAT was an awfully pretty dance at the Montgomerys for Jessie Da Costa. The girls looked perfectly sweet, and wore such pretty gowns. Some one said the ball room reminded her of a rainbow, so many, so varied and brilliant were the frocks.

There were several black frocks, too, which in times gone by no debutante ever thought of wearing. It would be "too old." but, bless your heart, the black seems to make them look younger these days, and if one has fair hair it. is most becoming. Atlee Downs, for instance, wore a black chiffon velvet frock built on plain lines, and with the bodice cut in a V shape. She is very pretty, and the dark velvet contrasted wonderfully with her light hair and hlue eyes.

Augusta Harrison looked very chic in black velvet too. Her frock was made on plain lines, as is the way of velvet gowns, and had a narrow sash which was fastened in front with an oblong ornament of rhinestones and

Jane Hepburn looked lovely in a dak. It was fashioned on plain lines. cut square at the neck, and draped effectively from the lower left side of the bodice to the right shoulder with a scarf of American Beauty colored tulle which was finished in a sort of butter-fly bow and streamers. The color was extremely becoming to Jane, who is Helen Sewell looked stunning in a frock of pink taffeta made with a long waistline and embroidered in rose petals of silver. Bands of opalescent sequins formed the shoulder straps. There were lots of other lovely gowns, but I could not begin to remember them all. Those I have spoken of struck me as particularly stunning.

MARY LAW is to be given a dance tonight by Mrs. Ogden Hoffman. Mary is the daughter of Mrs. Ernest MARY LAW is to be given a dance tonight by Mrs. Ogden Hoffman. Mary is the daughter of Mrs. Ernest Law and a sister of Mrs. Livingston Biddle. She is a first cousin of Virginia Carter, you know, and related to the Cassatts and various other members of the Carter family, Mrs. Hoffman will give the dance at Ithan Derlyyn, her home in Radnor.

THE family had spent the summer in the country in a house which was several times larger than their winter home, and when November 1 came and they were to move home, it must have worried Tommy, though he said nothing at first. But when the day for several times larger than their winter home, and when November 1 came and they were to move home, it must have worried Tommy, though he said nothing at first. But when the day for moving arrived he walked up to his mother and remarked: "Gee, Mother, won't it he funny moving back to our little house? It'll be sort of like getting into an undershirt that's too small for you."

are in full swing, and today will see a goodly number of parties there. Mrs.
Charles Price Maule will give a large debutante luncheon for Ade'aide Souder, the Ralph Souders' daughter. Jane Maule McIvor is to chaperone the party. I always smile when I hear of these young chaperones, for they don't look old enough to be married, let alone chaperone affairs. Jane is so pretty, don't you think? She has such lovely eyes, and was one of the prettiest brides
I have ever seen.

Mrs. George Reynolds will also entertain at a small luncheon at Sedgley, and so will Mrs. Walter Waring Hopkinson.

QUITE a number of Philadelphians go over to New York today to attend
the wedding of Ruth King and Baron de Villiers de Terrage, of France, You know Ruth King is a sister of Mrs.
Stanley Griswold Flagg, 3d, of this city, who was Dorothy King, and so,
of course, the Flaggs will go on to the wedding, and the Geyelins and several others.

Real French gloves, the best made (from Trefousse's), are taking an unheard-of tumble at George Allen's, 1214 Chestnut. Just why, I don't exactly know-but I do know that the gioves are perfect and from the regular stock and that on many of the gloves the new import price is higher than Allen's sale price. The sale will last ten days, but the earlier you attend the better the selection. Already I have ordered a pair of the wonderful 16-bu ton white kid gloves, regularly $9, for $7.75. There are 2clasp French kid gloves, overseam sewn, in white, black, tan, navy, gray, mode and brown, at $3, regularly sold at $4.50 and the new import price is raised. Pique sucde 1-clasp gloves in gray and beaver regularly priced at $4.75 (I saw them in another shop for $5) are only $2.85-think of it! And are fashioned of the finest skins the world affords. There are gloves for every occasion and every costume in this remarkable sale. 'Tis an excellent opportunity to buy for Christmas giving, too.

Lilla in her little shop at 1305 Walnut street will give her patrons an exciting time this week. It's such a wee shop, and Lilla, the acme of chic and a lover of change, becomes most uneasy if a frock lingers more than a month in its charming envir nment-and the more adorable the frock the more restless Lilla So, said she, "Paulette, let's hurry them on their way! "Goody!" exclaimed I, so here I tell you about them-how they are reduced unbelievably just to make room for slightly later arrivals. Imagine it-stunning, individual tricotines tagged up to $75, literally slashed to $37.50 before my eyes, not to speak of a whole group of pale tinted georgettes, crepes de chine, mignonettes, etc. excellent for winter house wear and next summer's wardrobe, which, just because of a negligible bit of shop wear, will go at $25. Some had been $69.50 and even more. There were several evening frocks among them. I found it difficult to resist them myself, but, of course, I can't buy everything I see. There were satins, too, at remarkably reasonable prices.

How I do love reduction sales-when they are really and truly "plummy"! Now here are velvet handbags reduced just in time for fall carrying. Somehow a handbag gets shabby all at once. Think then f velvet bags to be had at such a good shop as B. F Dewees's, 1122 Chestnut, for sometimes as low as half price. For example, $12 and $15 bags are $7.50 and $8.50 and $10 bags are $5.95. The bags come in black, navy, taupe and purple velvet—mostly one of a kind, variously mounted on shell, silvered, gilded, gunmetal and velvet covered frames. That bag department of Dewees's is underlably interesting at all times to the weman who desires the combination of quality and economy. A collapsible over-night bag of glistening vachette or dull cobra leather, measuring 14x10 inches, costs but $17.50. Another beautiful overnight case fitted with twelve "ivory" toilet pieces is priced at $48 All of these are suggestions for Christmas giving, and there are ever so many more for you to find at that counter.

That good furrier, Theodore Siefert, at 1426 Walnut, seems to be specializing in sports models this season, judging by the short snappy fur coats he is exhibiting so plentifully. They're just the nifticst things for either street or motor wear and so interestingly priced. Natural muskrat coats, 30 to 45 inches long, cost $325 to $950 some are trimmed with seal. Stunning opossum models are $675, and beautiful gray and blended squirrel coats are $425 to $850, while nifty little leopard sports coats are $325 and $425, some with collars and cuffs of nutria. And, my dears-tremendously good-looking brown marmot sports coats are only $125 to $175 for 30-inch lengths. They're just the thing for rough-and-ready machine wear. Now, don't forget, either, those new "sp ffy" suede sports coats Siefert has this year for only $85 and $95-big fur nutria or 'possum collars on 'em and all! They're leather lined for warmth. By the way, pony coats are fashionable and the reliable Siefert is remodeling old ones most reasonably.
